LOSS OF THREE HOMEWARD BOUND CHINA SHIPS.—A telegram has been received in the city from Calcutta, dated Oct. 31, reporting the total loss of three ships from China for London, with most valuable cargoes. The message gives the following particulars: "The barque Alice Maud, 458 tons, Captain Sorensen, from Hong Kong, lost on the 6th of October; crew saved. The ship Garrawalt, 621 tons, Captain Phillips, from Shanghai for London, totally wrecked at Point of Taiwan; she was a first-class built ship, A 1 at Lloyd's for 14 years. The ship War Eagle, 599 tons, Captain Maulet, which sailed from Singapore on the 19th of September, has been lost at the Thousand Islands, near Anjer; crew saved." The amount of insurance effected on the above ships is very great.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ACCIDENT TO SIR C. WOOD.—A very alarming accident occurred on Thursday to Sir Charles Wood. The Badsworth Hounds met at Marr village, near Doncaster, and the Secretary for India was enjoying the sports of the field. Sir Charles was in the act of opening a gate near the residence of the late Rev. J. W. Armytage, at Hickleton, when his hat fell off, which caused the horse he was riding to plunge and gallop with him across the adjoining field, ultimately throwing him violently upon his head against a stone wall. His head was severely cut, and Sir Charles remained for some time insensible. The assistance of Mr. Kenyon, of Hooton Pagnell, was immediately procured. Although the hounds were running in full cry at the time Lord Hawke ordered them to be stopped out of respect to so thorough a sportsman.—Times. An evening paper of Friday says:—"We are glad to be able to state that a very favourable account has been received this morning of Sir Charles Wood. He had a fall, but it was not a severe one, and the doctor says, if he keeps quiet for a day or two, he will be all right."

MILITARY ITEMS.—Major-general Sir C. Van Straubenzee, who has been acting Commander-in-Chief in Bombay, returns home on the arrival out of Sir Robert Napier. His divisional command will, in all probability, be filled by Brigadier-general Frank Adams, c.b., now commanding a brigade at Aldershot. Brigadier Adams had formerly commanded a brigade in the Bombay Presidency, which he gave up last spring, on the return of his regiment, the 28th, to England.—Major-general Sir John Garrook has resigned the command of the Peshawar division, and his place will be taken by Colonel Rainier, of the 98th Regiment, now commanding a brigade in the Bengal Presidency.—An army good service pension is vacant by General Parlbys's appointment to the colonelcy of the 21st Hussars.—Colonel George Campbell, c.b., formerly of the 52nd Light Infantry, and now Inspecting Field Officer at Leeds, will succeed Brigadier-general Adams in command of a brigade at Aldershot.—We understand that Colonel H. Bingham, of the 60th Rifles, will succeed Colonel Campbell as Inspecting Field Officer at Leeds.—Army and Navy Gazette.

HEALTH OF THE ARMY IN INDIA.—From the Blue-book, lately issued from the Army Medical Department we gather the following summary of the health of the European army in India in 1863—some of the results of which have been already alluded to in these columns:—The average strength of the European troops serving in India in 1863 was 67,525 non-commissioned officers and men. The admissions into hospital among them amounted to 110,357, and the deaths to 1,442 in India, and 154 among invalids on their passage home or at the Invalid Depot, while awaiting their discharge, making a total of 1,596. The admissions therefore were in the proportion of 1,634, and the deaths of 23.64 per 1,000 of the mean strength. These results show a reduction in both the admissions and deaths compared with the proportion in 1862. The deaths per 1,000 among the troops in each of the Presidencies was (omitting decimals) 26 in Bengal, 22 in Madras, and 16 in Bombay. Last year the proportions were 37, 19, and 27 in these presidencies respectively. There was a reduction in the admissions into hospital in all the presidencies, but most marked in Bombay. There also was a very considerable reduction in the mortality in Bengal and Bombay, but a slight increase in Madras. The reduction in the admissions in all the presidencies has been chiefly in miasmatic diseases. In Bengal and Bombay there has also been a decrease in the amount of venereal. The marked decrease in the mortality in Bengal and Bombay has been in miasmatic diseases, while the increase in that of Madras has been due to miasmatic and tubercular diseases, and to accidents. From the statistics of invaliding from India, it would appear that during the year 1863 there were 1,415 invalids sent home to England from Bengal, 506 from Madras, and 401 from Bombay, being in the ratio of 33, 40, and 32 per 1,000 of the strength serving in each presidency respectively. The table shows a large relative proportion of men invalided from Bengal on account of paroxysmal fevers, rheumatism, and the diseases of the digestive system; from Madras for dysentery and diarrhoea, venereal, and tubercular diseases; and from Bombay for diathetic diseases and those of the circulatory system. The numbers finally discharged the service of the Invalid Depot in England were, of invalids from Bengal, 773, from Madras, 186, and from Bombay, 407. This shows a slight increase in the number finally discharged as invalids compared with the average of the three preceding years. Taking the European force in India collectively, the proportion discharged in 1863 was 20.23, and on the average of the three preceding years, 14.57 per 1,000 of the strength. Diseases of the digestive system—chiefly affections of the liver—and rheumatism were the most frequent causes of discharge, but diseases of the nervous and circulatory systems, enthetic and tubercular diseases, dysentery and diarrhoea, and diseases of nutrition, also furnished considerable numbers.

THE BANDA AND KIRWEE PRIZE MONEY.

At the Admiralty Court on Tuesday this important case, involving the distribution of about £700,000 sterling, captured from the rebels in the Indian mutiny in the year 1858, again came under consideration. Dr. Twiss, Q.C., appeared on the part of Captain D. Campbell, of the Sappers and Miners, for leave to appeal; the Queen's Advocate, Mr. Prendergast, and Mr. Ayrton, M.P., were for General Sir George Whitlock and others, the actual captors of the booty. Dr. Twiss claimed, on the part of Captain Campbell, that the statement he had made of his claim should be printed, and that he should have a copy of the pleadings and evidence already printed. The Queen's Advocate objected to the motion. Captain Campbell appeared before the Court in the petition of Sir George Whitlock, and now he made a claim as to the alleged finding of some jewels and money. Dr. Twiss said Captain Campbell claimed 25 per cent. for the property he had found, and which, no doubt, formed part of the booty to be distributed. The Queen's Advocate said Captain Campbell was admitted already as a claimant to the booty; in fact, he was stated to be in the company "H," when it should have been "L." Dr. Lushington: Then you turned "H" into "L"—(a laugh). The question was discussed at considerable length. His Lordship repeatedly declared that he had no jurisdiction to decide as to the percentage for finding property, and if the parties had come with the intention to get him to decide that question all he could say was that they had come to the wrong shop—(a laugh). Eventually leave was given that the petition of Captain Campbell should be printed, but no opinion was given as to percentage.

SIBERIA AND PEKIN TELEGRAPH.—The Cabinet of St. Petersburg has not yet succeeded in obtaining authorisation to connect the telegraphic lines of Siberia with Peking. An attempt made at Shanghai by an Englishman has not been more successful. The posts were broken and the wires cut during the night.

THE ASIATIC BANK CORPORATION have declared an interim dividend at the rate of 5 per cent., free of income-tax, on the original shares, which will be payable on and after the 13th instant.

ADULTERATION OF COTTON GOODS.—The Times mentions in its City article of Wednesday that "cotton goods shipped from Manchester to India have of late been found to be mixed with a proportion of foreign substances, far beyond anything previously experienced. The articles thus manufactured have become mildewed and rotten, as they are especially liable to absorb moisture, and it is said that from all the up-country dealers complaints are received by the merchants at Bombay and Calcutta, and that the repute of British goods is undergoing damage that may create a prejudice such as it would take years to eradicate."

The objects of this Company are the acquisition and working of Coffee Estates in Ceylon, and the selling of their produce.

The Directors have purchased three valuable coffee estates, situated in the Matella district; the contract may be seen at the Solicitors' office. These estates are known as the Beredewelle, Delagahoya, and Oodageria Estates, and contain about 1,010 acres—825 of which are freehold and 185 leasehold, at a nominal rent, held for the unexpired term of forty-six years. The Directors are making arrangements for an extension of the term to ninety-six years. 614 acres are planted, 552 are in full bearing, and the remainder will be so next year; fifty-five acres are in guinea grass, for cattle. 200 acres of very fine forest land are to be planted this year, which will leave about 140 acres to be brought into cultivation at a later period.

The crop for 1864-5 (when the full-bearing coffee was only 455 acres) amounted to about 4,000 cwt., which, after deducting the merchant's commission of about £120, being 2½ per cent. on gross proceeds, will give a net profit of about £6,000. The Company will sell without the intervention of the merchant, and thus save the above commission.

The crop for the year 1865-6, and which is now partly picked, is estimated between 5,000 and 5,500 cwt., and as the vendor bears all expenses of up keep to the 30th June last, 5,000 cwt. should give a net profit available for dividend and reserve fund of more than £10,000.

When the whole acreage, exclusive of the 140 acres, is in full bearing, the estimated profit available for dividend would at present prices amount to about £12,000, or at the rate of £20 per cent. per annum on the entire capital.

The Directors consider that the present price will certainly be maintained, if not exceeded; seeing that the demand for coffee is greatly on the increase, whilst the Brazil and Java crops are annually decreasing, and that the re-opening of the Southern ports of America cannot fail still further to stimulate the trade, and that there is little good land now procurable in Ceylon to be brought under coffee cultivation.

The before-mentioned estates have advantages which few properties in Ceylon can command; they are within a few miles of Matella Town, the great depot for labour and draft cattle; the Government road from the coast, by which most of the coolies travel, is the eastern boundary of the Beredewelle estate; this estate has a contract with Government for cleansing the town of Matella, by which much valuable manure is obtained at a trifling cost; and being situated on the high road from Colombo, the owners of these estates, instead of incurring a heavy loss (as many proprietors do) on the rice which they supply to coolies at fixed prices, have in most seasons actually derived a profit upon it; and whilst the cost of transit of coffee to the port of loading from many estates ranges between 5s. and 12s. 6d. per cwt., the cost from these estates averages about 3s. 6d. per cwt.

The railway from Colombo to Kandy is now partly open, and the contemplated extension to Matella will bring it within two miles of the Beredewelle estate. This will greatly reduce the expense of transit.

All the buildings are substantial and in good repair; there is an ample supply of water, cattle, carts, and machinery driven by water-wheels, and all necessary appliances for taking in and pulping the crops.

It is proposed to retain the present manager, who has had upwards of ten years' experience in the district.

The Directors and their friends take 4,000 shares, leaving 2,000 for the public.

During the period of the guarantee, the Directors will place to a reserve fund all profits beyond £12 per cent. per annum on the paid-up capital. At the expiration of that period this fund will be distributed pro rata amongst the then holders of shares to which the guarantee extends.

The Ceylon Coffee Estates Company's success shows what large profits are derivable from coffee cultivation. The Directors of that Company, which has a capital of £60,000, out of the profits on their first year's operations paid a dividend of £10 per cent., and carried to the reserve fund £4,757. 5s., equal to about £8 per cent. more.

Prospectuses and forms of application for shares may be obtained at the Offices of the Company, and of the Bankers, Brokers, and Solicitors, where the Contract for purchase may be seen.

Copies of the Memorandum and Articles of Association can be had at the Offices of the Solicitors, or at the Temporary Offices of the Company. Copies will be forwarded by post without charge, on application to the Secretary.

EXPANDING SADDLE.

GIBSON AND COMPANY

Respectfully invite the attention of MILITARY MEN, EQUESTRIANS, and OWNERS OF HORSES, to their Newly-Invented EXPANDING SADDLE, which admits of ready adjustment to the size of any horse, creating a secure and easy seat without the slightest inconvenience to either horse or rider. The principle of EXPANSION and CONTRACTION comprises a simple arrangement of mechanism within the saddle so perfect, that by merely turning a screw the pad is proportioned to the size and form of the animal, on which it firmly rests with a uniform pressure, and is securely retained in its position by means of an ordinary girth.

This invention has obtained the approval and distinguished patronage of HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF, and from the very favourable opinions expressed by competent judges, and all who have had an opportunity of testing its merits, there is no doubt it will come into general use; indeed, its success is already established.

THE NEW THEORY IN RIFLES.

Lieutenant James Forsyth, in his excellent work, "The Sporting Rifle, &c.," first pronounced the startling theory that Rifles could be so constructed as to lessen the elevation by increasing the charge of powder. This theory, which the Advertiser has proven to be correct, alters the whole position of Rifles in favour of the sportsman. Formerly, with a high trajectory, the bullet would have hit a tiger in a vital part at 100 yards, would pass over his back at 25 or 50 yards. By the new system, as elaborated and perfected in DOUGALL'S LOCKFAST BRILLIANT LOADERS, there is a point-blank range to 150 yards, combined with a velocity and smashing power hitherto unknown.—(See Times, 11th October, 1864.) No other Rifle possesses the same advantages.

Quintessence of Jamaica Ginger and Camomile.

GINGER has long been deservedly known as an excellent domestic medicine, and, combined with camomile, it is the most efficient stomachic tonic known, for while the ginger relieves the stomach from distension and flatulency, arising from impaired digestion, the camomile strengthens the coats of the stomach, and by that means gives it a healthy and invigorating tone. So highly concentrated is this preparation, it is unimpaired by age or climate, and well adapted for exportation. In Gout, Spasms, Dysentery, Cholera, or those complaints incidental to tropical climates, it is invaluable, as in numerous cases a dose or two has checked and frequently cured most alarming attacks. No family should be without it. Sold in half-pints, quarter-pints, and one-eighth pints.

Agreeable Seidlitz Powder, in one bottle, protected by a case, with measure and spoon included. The advantage of this preparation is the perfect combination of the solid ingredients of the Seidlitz Spring in one compound powder.

It is very cooling and refreshing, well adapted for exportation, or travellers by land or sea.

Aromatic Tincture of Quinine.—For the prevention of Fever, Intermittent or Remittent Ague, and other effects of Malaria.

No person exposed to the influence or predisposing cause of Fever should be without it, for if taken in small doses daily the system will become so thoroughly impregnated with its principles as to be rendered proof against all attacks of Contagion or Malaria.—Sold in pints, half-pints, and quarter-pints.

The above articles prepared only by THOS. WILKINSON late Wilkinson, Bridge, & Co., 270, Regent-street London, W.

MRS. JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTH- ING SYRUP, FOR CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR

TEETH.—This infallible remedy has preserved hundreds of children when thought past recovery from convulsions arising from painful dentition. As soon as the Syrup is rubbed on the gums the child will be relieved, the gums cooled, and the inflammation reduced. It is as innocent as effluvia, tending to produce the teeth with ease; and so pleasant, that no child will refuse to let its gums be rubbed with it. When infants are at the age of four months, the Syrup should be rubbed on the gums, and parents should never be without the Syrup in the nursery where there are young children; for, if a child wakes in the night with prims in the gums, the Syrup immediately gives ease, thereby preventing convulsions, fevers, &c. The great success of this medicine during the last twenty-five years has induced unprincipled persons to imitate it, under the name of American Soothing Syrup, and copying parts of Mrs. Johnson's Bills, &c. Parents will, therefore, be very particular to ask for JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTHING SYRUP, and to notice that the names of BARCLAY and SONS, 95, Farringdon-street, London (to whom Mrs. Johnson has sold the recipe), are on the stamp affixed to each bottle.

Sold by all chemists and medicine vendors.

Earl Russell sent to the College of Physicians a communication received by him from Manila (where Cholera had been raging fearfully), to the effect, that, of all remedies tried, Chlorodyne was the most effective.—See Brit. Med. J.,

Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Cramp, Ague, Consumption, Asthma, Cough, Colds, Bronchitis, Sea Sickness, &c., immediately relieved by a dose of TOWLE'S CHLORODYNE, which is admitted to be a most wonderful and valuable medicine, and preferred by the profession for its known composition and moderate price.

IMPORTANT TO SHIPPERS AND EMIGRANTS.

Liverpool, Feb. 22nd, 1864. Ship Gertrude.
Mr. TOWLE.—Sir,—Having recently arrived from Bombay and during our stay there myself and crew being violently attacked with dysentery, so general in India, Captain Clements, of the ship Marseilles, lying near us, seeing the condition we were in, kindly sent a bottle of your Chlorodyne, from which myself and crew found immediate relief, and during the voyage home proved a most effective and valuable medicine. Having been instrumental in saving my own life and that of others, we feel it a duty and pleasure to send this statement of facts, to make what use of you think proper, believing that no vessel ought to leave port without a good supply in her medicine chest.

ANILINE DYES.—"I shall commence my observations on dyeing, by referring especially to the remarkable and beautiful colours derived from coal tar, the introduction of which into this art may be said to constitute the chief distinction, as far as dyeing is concerned, between the present and the former Exhibition, creating, in fact, a new era in the tinctorial art. Coal tar colours deserve attention for their power, as well as for the facility with which they may be applied, for one grain will deeply tint half a gallon of water, and little or no skill is required for their application."—Vide Report by Crace Calvert, Esq., F.R.S., Ph.D., Honorary Professor of Chemistry.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

We have received our usual files of papers from Bombay to the 28th of October, Calcutta to the 22nd, Madras to the 24th, and Ceylon to the 17th of that month—the latter arrival being unusual via Bombay.

The most important intelligence which we have to notice in this place is the announcement of peace with Bhootan, made by a telegram from Sir Bartle Frere to Sir Charles Wood. The despatch, dated Saturday, November 14, was received at the India-office on the 15th—an apparent degree of speed strongly suggestive of a mistake. To judge by ordinary rates of progress, the 4th would seem far more likely to be the real date than the 14th. With regard to the fact itself, however, there is no reason for doubt. Up to the date of the latest arrival, preparations for the campaign were in full force; but it was known that these would not be relaxed pending any proposed negotiations, and that the Government was determined to push on the war until peace, if agreed to, should be actually signed. Tongsoo Penlow had determined to hold the road from Dewangiri to his own territory, leaving the Deb Rajah to arrange, as best he could, for the defence and protection of the rest of the country. On the part of the British Government, the greatest difficulty was experienced in arranging for the conveyance of baggage or military stores—owing to the objection of the cattle drivers to venture beyond the boundaries of Assam and Kooch Behar. On the other hand, the sudden cessation which had taken place in the rains—though unfortunate on every other account—was, of course, facilitating to the movement of troops, and it was thought that the advance might be made sooner than had been anticipated. But peace, though not expected, was still it seems on the cards. For according to the Englishman, the Viceroy, even at the last moment, had addressed a letter to the Deb Rajah, warning him of our movements, and still holding out to him the opportunity of coming to terms. "As negotiations at this juncture," says our contemporary, "could not fail to be most embarrassing, and no dependence could be placed on any terms they might lead to, we regard this policy as both weak and dangerous." It has, however, been successful so far as the signing of peace is concerned. How far the Bhooteas will observe the conditions is quite another matter.

The committee appointed after the great cyclone of 1864 to report upon the moorings of the Port of Calcutta, have recommended the adoption of the system of screw moorings instead of that hitherto in use, as likely not only to secure the most efficient known means of mooring ships, but also the most economical. The committee have further recommended the immediate construction of screw pile jetties. They are also of opinion that if it be found practicable to establish screw pile lighthouses, such structures will be found less costly than the lightships both in first construction and after maintenance."

An outbreak has taken place at the Arrah jail, particulars of which will be found elsewhere. A determined attack was made upon the authorities; but there seems to have been no political feelings at work. Judges and jailors are everywhere considered by the criminal class as natural enemies.

The Viceroy, as already announced, was not to arrive in Calcutta until the 2nd of November. During the cold season the Commander-in-Chief and Staff were to take up their quarters at Barrackpore, while the Adjutant-General's department was to be located at Calcutta.

The death of Major-general Showers, commanding the Presidency Division, had cast a real gloom over Calcutta. The deceased was an admirable officer and an admirable man, and in his professional and private character was equally respected. He was a Christian Soldier of the Havelock type, and he so thoroughly carried out his principles that a copy of the Scriptures might generally be found on his official desk, to be consulted in the intervals of business—a fact which came under the present writer's observation when the subject of these remarks commanded at Agra.

Sir C. Van Straubenzee had arrived at the Presidency en route for Europe by the present mail. His urbanity and social qualities, we are told, have rendered him a very popular commander-in-chief, and his departure causes much regret at Poonah head-quarters. Sir Robert Napier was hourly expected by the mail then overdue.

It is said that many changes in the Staff of the Mhow division of the army are taking place. Major-general Green, C.B., is resigning command of the division; and at present is likely to be succeeded by Colonel T. Tapp, C.B., of the 103rd Foot.

From Madras there is very little news of note, except that Sir Gaspard Le Marchant is said to be the Governor elect to succeed Sir William Denison, retaining the local command-in-chief at the same time. A few items from Ceylon will be found elsewhere.

The business of the Bombay Legislative Council had terminated for the present session. The Governor had returned to Poona, and was to proceed shortly on a tour in the Southern Mahratta country.

It was whispered that the Chief Justice of the Bombay High Court (Sir Mathew R. Sausse) will retire in December next, and that he will be succeeded by Sir Joseph Arnold, the senior puisne judge.

The Bombay Chamber of Commerce has passed a resolution condemning the course pursued by the Asiatic Banking Corporation and the Central Bank of Western India in refusing, at their option, to receive payment and deliver up shipping documents hypothecated to them as collateral security; the Chamber resolved that it is "contrary to mercantile usage, and tends to obstruct business and interfere with mercantile confidence."

The captains of the merchant ships in the port have been holding a meeting to protest against magisterial interference between themselves and their men, whom they claim the privilege to ill-treat at discretion. It is not supposed the remonstrants will increase their privileges by this course of action.

The state of affairs in Afghanistan are still disturbed, the disaffected brothers of the Ameer are coquetting with the Shah of Bokhara, and the Russians are supporting this potentate.

A painful impression has been caused by the sale of an English girl, by her parents, to a native rajah. The girl is only fourteen years of age. Her parents have not been apprehended, nor does it appear that there has been any interference in the matter on the part of the authorities.

Commercial affairs are improving in all three Presidencies. In Calcutta, we are told that the Money Market is gradually growing more stringent, in consequence of the set in of an active demand for Bombay and Madras, rather than of any great increase in business there. The Bank of Bengal, on the 19th ult., raised its rates one per cent., as it had already twice done during the previous week. In Bombay the sudden advance in the price of cotton had restored a good degree of animation to business; when the high prices in the Liverpool market were quoted there was great excitement. Very large quantities of cotton changed hands, and in a few cases enormous gains were realised. There has since been greater quietness, mainly because all the cotton available has been purchased, and little reliance could be placed on the quality of that to hand. The supplies from Dharwar and the remoter districts of Berar were only beginning to arrive; it is said that the cotton from the former district is even finer in quality than ever before. The shares in all the better joint-stock undertakings of Bombay have advanced; but there is little speculation, and there seems every prospect of a return of sound prosperity to Western India.

The next arrival from India will be the Calcutta Mail, which has not been heard of since its arrival at Suez was telegraphed a few days ago.

SIR CHARLES WOOD.—We regret to hear that the accident to the Indian Secretary is understood to be more serious than was at first supposed. The Right Hon. Baronet has not attended at the India Office since the unfortunate occurrence, nor is it expected that he will be able to do so for some time to come.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

THURSDAY, November 23, 1865.

THE LATE MAJOR D. L. RICHARDSON.

We publish in another column a notice of the death of Major David Lester Richardson, late of the East India Company's Service. The announcement is made by the Court Circular, of which journal the deceased officer had been editor and proprietor for some years. Major Richardson had from early life been much devoted to literary pursuits; and one of his latest occupations was the editorship of Allen's Indian Mail, which he held for some time, in conjunction with his other duties. Born in 1801, he was appointed a cadet on the Bengal Establishment at the usual age, and proceeded to Calcutta. He saw, however, but little military service, being early placed in civil employ. At one time he served on the personal staff of Lord William Bentinck, and he has told us himself, in some interesting papers upon Macaulay, published in the Court Circular some months ago, of his association with that illustrious man in Calcutta, in connexion with the Educational Department. Macaulay appears to have had a very high opinion of his subordinate's talents and attainments. In later years Major Richardson, who had passed to the Invalid Establishment, left the employment of Government and became Principal of the Hindoo Metropolitan College. He employed himself besides greatly with his pen, and was for a considerable time Editor of the Bengal Hurkaru, having accepted the post on the retirement of the Rev. Mr. Bellew. He had for some years previously, we believe, conducted the Calcutta Literary Gazette, in which a great number of his poems and criticisms first appeared. Major Richardson relinquished the Hurkaru early in 1857, and having retired upon his pension, gave up his attention entirely to the career which most accorded with his tastes. His health, however, soon began to fail, and late he suffered so severely from an internal malady as to be unfit for any sustained work, though he continued to employ his pen almost to the last. His death took place on Friday morning, Nov. 17. Major Richardson has left behind him several volumes of verse and prose, collected for the most part from periodicals. They evince an extensive acquaintance with a wide range of English literature; but the Poets and Essayists of a past day were evidently his favourite studies, Byron, Shelley, and the "Lake Poets" being, perhaps, the latest to which he has given any great attention. His criticism evinces a keen appreciation and an elevated and delicate taste; while his verse is marked by a pure poetic feeling which places it on a higher level than many works of greater power. In his general writings, indeed, it was impossible to mistake the indications of high culture and accomplishments and genuine love of literature by which they were marked.

THE COMPETITIONERS IN TROUBLE AGAIN.

THERE seems no rest for the Wallahs. In England as well as in India the press pursues them with a remorseless activity, not only upon the system which they represent, but their personal qualities, and professional and social claims. The Indian papers are particularly irritating; for they are at close quarters with their victims, and can make "pot shots" at weak places which would be tolerably safe from the British long range. And curiously enough the journals which are least favourable to the new class of civil servants are exactly those who were most adverse to the old class. The reforming writers in fact, who were most zealous in denouncing the monopoly of the Company, and the monopolists of office under its rule, are foremost now in finding fault with the present state of things. They attacked the old school as a tyrannical oligarchy, assuming insolent pretensions to social superiority; they attack the new school as nobodies, who as an Ensign once said in a sublime spirit of contempt, "actually owe their position to their talents," and blame them for not keeping up the position in society to which they are entitled. In Calcutta in particular there is always some report afloat of an uncomplimentary character, concerning this much badgered body of public servants. At one time it was said that the successful candidates were all to be sent to the Universities for a few terms, to "learn manners" before being let loose upon our Empire in the East; and there was this truth at least in the story, that a proposition of the kind was made by Sir Charles Trevelyan, and was very punctually negatived by Sir Charles Wood. Then it was declared that the Inns of Court were to be substituted for the Universities, and that the Wallahs were to take the degree of barrister-at-law before going out. There was no truth whatever, we believe, in this idea. The story about the hangman's sons being in the service—now proved to be unfounded—had its origin apparently in a malicious hoax. And there is always some question being discussed in the local papers about the unfortunate Wallah's habits—their alleged tendency to herd together at stray boarding-houses, and avoidance of society proper—not to know which is to be unknown indeed, in Calcutta. And at the present time the Englishman is circulating a report that they are all to be sent up country as soon as they arrive at the Presidency, in retaliation, it is supposed, for their shyness, and indisposition, it is further added, to enter into matrimonial engagements; for, of course, on the "three-hundred-a-year-dead-or-alive" principle, they are as tempting as their predecessors to match-making mammas.

In this country the discussion upon the subject is naturally of a less personal kind, being principally confined to the regulations in reference to Examinations—whether the present are or are not calculated to secure the best men. In more than one morning paper, during the last few weeks, there have been many letters upon the subject, the writers agreeing but little with one another except as regards the main point—that a change of some sort is desirable. The principal question at issue is whether the examinations shall be so arduous as to be most favourable to University and Public School men, or more especially adapted to the miscellaneous youth of the country, educated at private establishments, or it may be crammed for the purpose by professional trainers. One of the best advocates on the former side is the writer of a letter in the Times a few days ago, signed "A Public-School Master;" but he made very slight impression upon our august contemporary, who decided that the present kind of examinations are best fitted to attain the object of the main system—that is to say, to get the cleverest available men from all classes in the country—and that if the training of the Universities and Public Schools be unfavourable to success in the examinations, the best plan would be to change the training and leave the examinations as they are—to bring Mahomed to the mountain, in fact, on the failure of the other alternative.

This conclusion is, we think, too sweeping. The object of the competitive arrangement is undoubtedly to get the best available candidates from all classes in the country; but this object is surely not answered by the practical discouragement of any particular class—and if such discouragement must fall somewhere, it seems absurd to allow it to fall upon the chief seats of learning in the land. It would be well for the Universities and Public Schools to widen their range, and some day they will have to do so; but in the meantime it is in the interest of the service and the cause of good government in India that some concessions should be made towards these institutions. Such a course would involve no injustice to the miscellaneous aspirant, who ought to be able to get up one class of subjects as well as another. The only difference would be in rendering cramming not quite so easy, and this, however unpleasant to the candidate, is at least a gain to the country. It may be, as is frequently alleged, that Indian service has grown unpopular, and no longer offers attractions to University and Public School men who have any fair opportunities for a home career. But if such be the case, it is highly important that we should be sure of the fact. As it is, we can only hazard the supposition to account for the certainly decreased number of candidates from the classes in question.

We must be understood as expressing no opinion upon any possible shortcomings of the Competitioners, as a body, in comparison with their patronage predecessors. That there are many able and efficient men among them is beyond a doubt; while it is impossible that their number can include any such "bad bargains" as occasionally got into the service under the old system. That the new men may not take very easily to general society is likely enough; but it should be remembered that they started with a strong prejudice against them, and every discussion upon the subject, instead of closing the breach, is calculated to widen it. Our object in making these remarks was rather to notice the progress of opinion upon the subject than to pretend to decide what must remain for some time to come a very doubtful question. We should not forget, however, to remark upon one of the many suggestions concerning the subject—that in reference to Civil Servants taking the degree of barrister-at-law. Of late years a great many of these gentlemen have kept terms at one of the Inns of Court during their visits home, and been "called" before their departure, their object being to qualify for an additional class of appointments, or, at least, in the capacity of magistrates or judges, to obtain a greater degree of respect from the local Bar than is apt to be accorded to Civil Service men on the Bench. We are not sure, however, that the object is gained so unfailingly by the means as in former times; for people who see that the new dignity has made no particular change in its wearer, will not believe that he is quite the same thing as a regularly trained and practising member of the body. The natives indeed call such men kutchu barristers, and make a broad distinction between them and their pukka professional brothers. We may mention, however, for the benefit of those members of the service who may desire to attain the dignity, and especially as some misconception exists on the subject, that the Inns of Court some time since agreed to a resolution in common, taking off one year out of the three years necessary for keeping terms, in the case of students proceeding to India or the colonies—in consideration, doubtless, of the local nature of a portion of the training.

INDIAN TRAMWAY COMPANY.—The report of the directors, to be submitted at the general meeting on the 29th inst., states that the works on the Arconum and Conjeveram line have advanced steadily and satisfactorily. The line was opened for a length of sixteen miles and three-quarters on the 8th of May last, and further to the terminus at Little Conjeveram on the 1st of August, 1865; the whole distance being eighteen miles sixty-five chains. The land has been provided by the Government, fourteen miles and a-half of the line being constructed upon the ordinary Government public road, and four miles and a-half on land where no road previously existed. The gross receipts from the 8th of May to the 31st of August amounted to £1,769; and of this sum the receipts of three weeks from the opening, during a festival, on the 8th of May to the 31st of May, were £857; for the month of June, £275; for July, £283; and for August, £354; or an average of £450 per month. It is impossible at this early period to accurately estimate the future traffic; but to realise a net profit of 5 per cent. on the whole capital a revenue of £9 per mile will suffice. The total expenditure, after payment of all charges of whatever kind, was £88,934. 15s. 1d.; but of this expenditure there has been incurred in payment of interest, during construction, £6,151. 2s. 8d., and in items applicable to the surveys and expenses in Madras and in the other Presidencies, £6,848. 17s. 4d., previous to undertaking the Arconum line. Of the capital of £100,000 there remain yet 2,825 unallotted shares of £5 each, equal to £14,125 unexpended. The goods and passenger traffic are both likely to increase and to be permanent, "through booking" to and from Madras having commenced on the 1st of August. In estimating the future value of the line and its probable pecuniary results, the shareholders will bear in mind that the lines connecting Calcutta, the North-Western Provinces, and Bombay join the Madras Railway at Arconum; that an extension to the French settlement of Pondicherry, to connect it with Madras and the above northern lines, is in contemplation, and urgently demanded; and that the whole traffic must, under these circumstances, pass over the Arconum line.

VACANT BISHOPRICS IN CHINA AND HONG KONG.—The American bishopric in China, recently vacated by the death of Bishop Boone, has been conferred on the Rev. William Channing Moore Williams, who has been for many years a missionary in China and Japan. The appointment to the English bishopric of Victoria (Hong Kong) has not yet been made.

TROUBLESOME NEIGHBOURS.—It is said that certain followers of the late Koor Singh, of Arrah, who have settled in the Nepalese Terai, north of Tihoot, are making preparations for a raid upon the British territories. The Nepaul Durbar has assured the Government that it will take stringent measures to prevent them.

BENGAL.

THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ON THE WRONGS OF THEIR OFFICERS.

A perusal of the returns of the correspondence between the Government of India and the Governments of Fort St. George and Bombay, on the subject of Sir C. Wood's remedy for the injustice brought about by amalgamation, will satisfy any impartial mind as to the terrible confusion which the violent departure from ancient ways, attempted in 1861, has caused in the Indian army. Perhaps the strangest circumstance in the whole matter is the utter inability of those who ought to be the guides and leaders of the mass, who helped to devise the new scheme, to suggest any practical remedy. We see two Commanders-in-Chief out of the three floundering in the dark, either blindly accepting the dictum of the Secretary of State, or simply confessing that the solution of the subject is too great for their powers; the third pointing out the injustice which he cannot remedy. Thus Sir Hugh Rose shows so little knowledge of the subject on which he was called to offer an opinion, that he declares "the local officers gain very important and solid advantages under the recently-sanctioned regulations." We have not heard that this "opinion" has restored to any local officer his lost standing, his place in his disbanded regiment, or, what was more important than all, his career as a soldier. Sir William Mansfield is far more reticent. He declares that "the difficulty is very great," and, it being apparently insurmountable, he leaves it without attempting a remedy or offering a suggestion. Sir Hope Grant evidently sympathises with the local officers, but he contents himself with pointing out the injustice and anomalies which the Secretary of State's order has produced, and with charitably suggesting that the effects of the promotions ordered may have been lost sight of at the India-house.

With one exception we do not find the remarks made by the Governments more valuable, or more indicative of the real feeling of all, but the small minority of officers who have benefited by amalgamation, prevalent in India. The Madras Government merely forwards the case, as made out by Colonel Cooke, to the Government of India and to the Home Authorities. The Bombay Government, with the boldness for which it is famous, exposes the weak points of Sir C. Wood's scheme, its anomalies, its injustice, its general unfairness, with a severe logic in which it is impossible to detect a flaw. But what can we say of the despatch on the subject of the Government of India? Overruling the remonstrances of Sir Bartle Frere, it directs him not to delay the publication of promotions in the Bombay Army, and in informing the Secretary of State of this order, it writes thus:—"It is scarcely possible that extensive changes in the army should ever be made without unfavourably affecting the position of some individuals relatively, i.e., as compared with some of the others; and the instance in question is no exception to the rule. But we think there can be no doubt that, by the measures ordered in your despatch, substantial hardship in the matter of promotion is avoided." This was the deliberate opinion of the Government of India in November 1864. Yet though the opinion of the Government as a body, it was not apparently the opinion of all the members of whom the Government is composed. To that despatch there is wanting the signature of that member of Council who is the representative in Council of the Indian army. Sir Robert Napier, it appears, was not of opinion that "substantial hardship in the matter of promotion had been avoided." The absence of his signature is extremely significant. The only member of Council capable of forming an opinion on the subject—for it is purely technical—does not sign the despatch. It is not to the civilian members of Council that the officers of the Indian army ever looked for sympathy and redress.

The paragraph which we have quoted from the letter of the Government of India is the more unfortunate, as it was not only incorrect in itself, but it put into the hands of Sir C. Wood a weapon of which he was too ready to avail himself. It is curious to notice how, in all his replies to complaints about the Indian army, he repeats and falls back upon this unfortunate assertion. When driven to the wall in the House of Commons by Captain Jervis, the "opinion of the Government of India" constituted the main point of his argument. In his letter to the Government of Madras, after indulging in a few characteristic platitudes, such as, "no sound conclusion can be arrived at by a partial view of the operation of those measures," "it was incumbent upon your Government to have inquired carefully into statements of this nature," he falls back upon the old support—the opinion of the Government of India. Such being the unfortunate result of the loose and inexact expressions of the Government of India, the press of India may not inappropriately borrow from Sir C. Wood one of the platitudes we have quoted, and remind the Government that "at the present time it was especially incumbent upon them to have enquired carefully into the accuracy of statements of this nature." If the Government of India be right, the House of Commons must be wrong. The Government of India declares that substantial justice had been done; the House of Commons, by the appointment of a new commission to re-open the question, gave a very decided opinion that justice had not been done. If the anticipations contained in letters from officers of high position in England, and indulged in by the journals, prove correct, the commission appointed will have decided that substantial justice had not been done to the Indian officers. Can the Government of India be surprised that their local officers should fly to the House of Commons for redress, should deluge it with petitions, when the Government itself thus openly expresses its want of sympathy with their wrongs? It seems most extraordinary that a purely military despatch, affecting only military officers, yet which the military member of Council did not sanction by his signature, should have met with so ready an acceptance from the non-professional members. Was it indifference, was it carelessness, was it the pressure of, to them, more important business, that caused this strange acquiescence of the civilian members only in a despatch that vitally affected for evil the fortunes of Indian officers? The signature of a member of a Council to a document connected with his department is considered sufficient to guarantee its correctness; but that the other members should have signed a most important military despatch from which the signature of the military member was wanting, is a fact which, under all the circumstances of the case, ought not to be looked over.

What have the Government of India gained by this careless assent to opinions which no one out of the Council Chamber would have endorsed? They have aided Sir C. Wood to put down Sir William Denison, and they have, by its aid, performed the same office for Sir Bartle Frere, but that is really all. The opinion was quoted in vain in the House of Commons. The statement of the Government of India, which ought to be decisive on such a question, was quoted by Sir C. Wood amid the "derisive laughter" and "ironical cheers" of the Opposition benches. Lord Stanley, who voted that substantial justice had not been meted out to Indian officers in the matter of promotion, was ready, had there been necessity, to support that by his speech. In no high quarter, except in the India House, for which it was penned, has that opinion met with sympathy or approval. But it has served on the other hand to show officers that their individual cases of wrong have but little chance of being listened to in a fair and kindly spirit in this country, and that they must appeal, as they have appealed heretofore, to the higher tribunal of the House of Commons. Such a course may not conduce to the discipline or good feeling of the Indian army, but why, in that case, does the Government force it upon its officers?—Friend of India.

THE LATE MAJOR-GENERAL SHOWERS.

We (Englishman) announce, with a feeling of regret, which we believe will be felt far beyond the Presidency, where it must be universal amongst the English community, the death, yesterday morning (Oct. 8), in Fort William, of Major-General St. G. D. Showers, C.B., commanding the Presidency Division. By this casualty the Government loses a most gallant and zealous soldier, and private society a perfect English gentleman, a warm and attached friend, and a man eminent for all the social virtues. The name of General Showers will always be indissolubly connected with, and wound up in, the memorable siege of Delhi, where, amongst the many who distinguished themselves during that momentous event, he was conspicuous for gallantry, energy, and devotion. In peace, as in war, the services of General Showers retained their full value to the Government and the military service, and his tenure of the presidency command during the last five years has been marked by a high capacity for administration, and resulted in an excellent state of general discipline and efficiency, and innumerable benefits and advantages to the private soldier, by whom the deceased officer will be long remembered and regretted.

(Hurkaru.)

General Showers was a man whom we cannot call great in the sense that we speak of Outram and Henry Lawrence, and yet he was a man of mark, whose place amongst us will not be easily filled, and who had won the reputation of being a thorough soldier, a thorough gentleman, and a thorough Christian. If General Showers has not won the greater honours attained by men with larger opportunities, he has yet run a career of singular usefulness and honour, and has set an example which it would be well for our younger officers to set before them. He was a man of Havellock's stamp, a man without fear, and who realised in all its fullness the peculiar significance which in the mind of an Englishman attaches to the idea of duty.

Entering the army in the early part of 1825, it was his lot to see much service, and to rise but slowly, till the siege of Delhi saw him a colonel in command of a brigade, and fighting with a valour which won for him the unstinted confidence and admiration of those under him. When the terrible siege was over, he quieted the Delhi district by a display of energy and determination which awed the natives, even more than the terrible vigour with which he launched his column at their disordered ranks, whenever they were mad enough to risk the chance of such an onset.

But to go back; on the death of the Nawab Homayoon Jah, of Moorshedabad, Captain Showers was selected to fill the responsible post of Superintendent to the young Nazim, and well did he perform his part. So well that the Nawab Nazim never forgot his tutor and friend, and always treated the General with respect and affection almost filial. As soon as he heard of his illness he placed the Moorshedabad Palace at his disposal, and to no one will the death of the General prove a severer blow than to his former pupil. This affection, which the General reciprocated, is honourable to both alike, and shows that, in spite of his devotion to duty, the General, like many other earnest and able men, had qualities which won for him friendships as abiding as they were tender.

General Showers has long been sick; almost as soon as he took the command of the Presidency Division, he was called on to chastise the Cossyah and Jynteah tribes, and it was whilst in their jungles that he was attacked by the sickness which finally carried him off. A trip to England put off the end, but could not prevent it.

The event becomes the more mournful as it took place on the eve of an intended sea-voyage, and was, so to speak, unexpected. It is long since the sympathy of the public was evinced in so marked a manner—nearly every man of note followed the General to the grave; and no one could see the immense crowd which had gathered to take part in the ceremony without feeling how powerful a claim to public favour and confidence is that unobtrusive discharge of duty which was so marked a characteristic of General Showers.

The army has lost one of its best chiefs, and the soldiers one of their best friends in the blow which has smitten down a public servant trusted and looked up to on all sides, and ever ready to answer any call the Government might make upon his services.

OUTBREAK AT THE ARRAH JAIL.

The Arrah jail has lately been the scene of one of those outbreaks which every now and then occur among convicts in all parts of the world, and which generally, therefore, can hardly be said to have any political significance. The darogah, or jailor, had, it appears, lately been changed, and the former incumbent was undergoing sentence in the jail—a fact which was in itself likely to be a fruitful source of disaffection. A correspondent writes: "A story also seems to have got abroad in the jail, that all the prisoners were to be put in uniform, which alarmed the prejudices of the Rajpoots, in particular, who consider it contrary to caste to eat their food with clothes that have seams. But, be the cause of the disaffection what it may, the outbreak occurred under the following circumstances. One of the prisoners was ordered by the magistrate to receive fifteen stripes, for a breach of jail discipline. At the time the punishment was to be inflicted, it so happened that the magistrate, the assistant, or deputy-magistrate, the European inspector of police, and the jailor, were all present. The culprit had been secured to the stake, and one stroke of the rattan had already fallen, when a tall athletic Rajpoot seized a long bamboo, and slyly moved just behind the magistrate; and no sooner had he got within a proper distance, than he lifted up the bamboo for a telling, and, perchance, a murderous blow at that official's head. It was just at this critical moment that both the inspector and jailor observed the Rajpoot, rushed upon him, and seized the bamboo. There was a determined struggle, when a second convict, also with a bamboo, came to the rescue of his comrade; but it so happened that the stroke he gave to the bamboo, which the two officers and the mutineer were struggling for, caused it to break in two; and thus both the inspector and jailor found themselves most conveniently and opportunely armed. This was the commencement of the affray. The ringleaders were soon driven back, but it was found that a number of the prisoners had begun to arm themselves with bamboos, &c. There were but four police-constables at this time within the jail, but there were twelve more outside, and these were immediately called in. This number, however, had to be told off in two parties, as there were two points to be protected, to prevent the escape of the prisoners out of the jail, and, for this reason also, the police force could not leave their posts. Under these circumstances, as might be expected, the prisoners on one side were giving battle, by throwing every possible kind of missile they could lay their hands on at the magistrate's party, and varying the game now and then by charging them; but every time they attempted this they were driven back by a bristling display of the bayonet's point. Thus it went on for some time, when one of the policemen fired off his gun. It so happened that, up to this point, he was the only man that had his piece loaded; but how he came to fire, remains to be explained. However, no one was hurt; but this very circumstance seemed to give the mutineers heart, for they grew bolder, and charged again and again, with more and more determination. The Inspector, an old soldier, by way of precaution, now ordered his men to load; and it was not long after that the affair seemed to grow quite serious enough to justify the police firing. Who gave the order to do so, or whether any order was given, is matter for inquiry, which, we believe, is now going on; but the men fired, and three of the convicts were knocked over, and among them the tall Rajpoot who commenced the emeute. This appeared to bring the rioters to their senses, as it most assuredly put an end to the riot." A considerable number of the prisoners, however, effected their escape.—Englishman.

MISCELLANEOUS.

NEW POST-OFFICE ACT.—The new Post-office Act, published in the Gazette of India of the 7th instant, contains two concessions of trifling importance to the public. It is proposed that the rate of postage upon letters above two tolas in weight should increase by an anna for each half tola, instead of by two annas for each tola. The effect of this will be that letters weighing more than two tolas, and not more than two tolas and a half, will be charged with a postage of five, instead of six annas, as formerly. The other concession refers to the rates to be charged on parcels to be conveyed by the Indian post, by sea. Eight annas was previously the charge for all parcels not exceeding one hundred tolas in weight. It is now proposed to charge two and four annas for parcels not exceeding twenty and forty tolas respectively. Neither of these changes will probably much affect the revenue, the number of inland letters exceeding one tola in weight, and of sea parcels, being comparatively small. Section 22 of this Act, which gives the Governor-General authority to make registration in certain cases compulsory, constitutes an important alteration in the law, which was greatly needed, and is likely to prove beneficial by preventing the despatch of money and valuables in unregistered letters. A source of temptation which, even in England, was frequently too strong for the letter-carrier, will thus be removed. Altogether, the changes proposed by this enactment are not so many, or so important, as one might have expected from its length. The heavy and anomalous rate of postage upon newspapers is left untouched, and, while a weight of four ounces is allowed to English imported papers for an anna, only six tolas, or two ounces, are allowed to newspapers printed in India sent through the inland post. Surely the improved state of inland communication points to the present as a time when the opportunity might be taken of removing this anomaly, by allowing ten tolas instead of six. We trust, also, that the proposed Act will be followed by a reduction of the registration fee, to say double the ordinary postage—a measure which would remove the only obstacle to the more general use of the Indian Post-office, and double the revenue of the department.—Englishman.

LIABILITIES OF THE LATE GOVERNMENT OF OUDE.—The Home Government have approved the proceedings of the Indian Government in rejecting all the claims against the late Native Government of Oude.

OPIMUM SALE AT CALCUTTA.—The opium sale was held on the 20th October, and, as we had surmised, on the ground floor of the Exchange, a precaution for which Messrs. MacKenzie, Lyall, and Co. deserve every credit. The sale of Behar opium was only 2,620 chests, or no less than 300 chests under the quantity brought forward. The effects of the large stocks held by buyers was apparent in yesterday's sale. Benares opium receded to almost the same figures as in the August sale. The Behar drug held a kind of half-way position, due, no doubt, to the smaller quantity bought. 5,055 chests were sold, which will bring the stock up to 13,855 chests. The following table will show the prices realised at the last three sales:—

	Highest.	Lowest.	Average.	Total.
August	1,070	1,025	1,047-3-7½	30,57,900
September	1,195	1,150	1,160-15-5½	33,90,025
October	1,135	1,055	1,091-13-9½	28,60,675

	Highest.	Lowest.	Average.	Total.
August	1,045	1,025	1,034-11-3½	25,19,475
September	1,175	1,140	1,157-13-4	28,19,325
October	1,045	1,025	1,035-14-9½	25,22,475

Comparing the sales for September and October, we have the following results:—

Behar	...	Rs. 60	less on the highest price.
Benares	...	130	"
Behar	...	95	" lowest price.
Benares	...	115	"
Behar	...	78 1 8½	" average price.
Benares	...	121 14 6½	"
Behar	...	4,29,350	" total proceeds of the sale.
Benares	...	2,965,850	"

AN ODD TALE.—A story of an extraordinary nature is afloat in the station to the following effect:—An old widow lady, wife of a Colonel of the Bengal Army who was murdered in the mutiny, has for a long time been leading a life of almost entire seclusion; those who formerly had been her most intimate acquaintances being refused admittance, their letters even being declined acceptance. However, three or four days ago the daughter of the old lady arrived, and with her husband, Major—, called at the house and begged to see her mother; the servants declined to give them an entry, whereon the Major forced his way through them, and, proceeding into the drawing-room, found old Mrs.—, who, on recognising her daughter, flew into her arms overjoyed at her meeting, &c., &c. It now turns out that the servants have been systematically preventing visitors from coming into the house, opening and getting answered all letters, &c., &c. The old lady's confidential servant immediately on Major—'s unforcibly entering fled, and has not since been heard of. Of this man there seems to be well-founded suspicions, arising from facts now being brought to light, that he was the actual murderer of the Colonel above alluded to, had been his servant for years before the mutiny, and was so at the time of his master's death, when he bolted, and was afterwards known to have turned a fakcer. By plausible means he succeeded in persuading Mrs.— that he knew nothing about the murder of her husband, but merely left for his own personal safety. The police are endeavouring to apprehend the ruffian, and is to be hoped they may be successful.—Pioneer, October 9.

REST-HOUSES FOR TROOPS.—The Governor-General in Council has determined that rest-houses for 180 single men and 20 families, giving each single man 1,000 cubic feet of air, exclusive of verandah, shall be built at Sahibgunge, Dinapore, Allahabad, Cawnpore, Toondla, Meerut and Umballa, with quarters for officer at the rate of 3 per cent., and the necessary offices.

THE CINCHONA PLANT AT DARJEELING.—The first sale of Cinchona plants at Darjeeling, held on the 2nd ult., was as satisfactory as might have been expected. Although there was little or no competition, there was a fair demand, and the whole of the plants offered for sale were disposed of at the upset price of four annas each.

MILITARY ITEMS.—We hear that the following changes are likely to take place in the relief of regiments, in consequence of the arrangements with regard to Bhootan:—H.M.'s 91st to Agra, H.M.'s 27th to Dum-Dum, and H.M.'s 41st from England to Hazareebaugh. Colonel Dunsford, C.B., is re-appointed temporarily to the Brigade Staff of the Army, with the rank of Brigadier-general from Nov. 1. He will leave Simla for Peshawur, to assume command of the brigade there, on the 20th Oct.—The designation of the Punjab Irregular Force will be in future the Punjab Frontier Force. The Government of India does not consider the former appropriate. It has been stated that the 91st Highlanders, and not the 41st Regiment, as set down in "the Relief," will relieve the 23rd Welch Fusiliers in Agra. This point has not yet, however, been finally settled. The 91st have not received any order to change their route. The matter will be decided in a few days we dare say.—Captain G. G. Cunliffe, of the Staff Corps, is to officiate as second in command and wing officer of the 43rd N. I., vice Williams, on sick leave to England.—Captain B. N. Smith, officiating second squadron officer, 15th Bengal Cavalry, has been appointed wing officer of the 24th N. I., vice Scott, who has overstayed his leave.—Captain E. M. Jones, first battalion, 20th regiment, A.-D.-C. to Major-General Sir John Garvock, has been ordered to join his battalion, a wing of which is proceeding to Bhootan.

DEATH AT NYNEE TAL.—The Nynee Tal correspondent of the Pioneer says:—"I little thought, when in my last letter I told you of the melancholy death of Lieut. Whipple, of the 12th Regiment, that I should so soon have to record another under still more melancholy circumstances. Major Lees, wing officer of H.M.'s 31st N.I., and doing duty at the Depot, died at the Club very suddenly on the night of the 18th inst. He was at the band the evening before, and twenty-four hours did not elapse before that same band was playing the Dead March over the poor fellow. Major Lees was very well known, and was a great favourite in the station. Nynee Tal has been most unfortunate this season; four officers of some rank and standing have been carried away, and several have been obliged to seek change of climate. It is curious to notice that about the four worst thunderstorms we have had this year have taken place while these four funerals were going on, the most fearful of all bursting upon us as poor Major Lees's coffin was being lowered into its last resting-place."

THE DYCE SOMBRE CASE.—Our Delhi correspondent lately announced that the great case of the heirs of Dyce Sombre, v. the Secretary of State, for the possession and mesne profits of certain estates in the province of Delhi, was to be appealed. The great public interest and importance of this cause célèbre will be at once appreciated when it is stated that the sum claimed is so large that, even with the assistance of the rise in the price of opium, Mr. Massey would be compelled to impose new taxes upon the country to satisfy the amount, if decreed against the Government.—Englishman.

POLYANDRY.—We had rather an amusing case in our Criminal Court last Thursday. A young woman named Boory (we suppose so named from her shrewdness) appeared to be the subject of litigation between two living husbands, a Moslem and a Eurasian. We hear the contending parties are on very slippery ground, and have an eel of a woman to deal with. We hope the Hakim who was to decide the case will not order her to be halved, as she is already the half of some one.—Dacca News.

A STRANGE ORDER.—We hear (says the Hurkaru) that orders have been issued by Government for the release of all the Booteahs now confined in the Assam and Rungapore jails. The object of this has not transpired.

NEW REGULATION FOR STAFF ALLOWANCES.—It has been ruled by Government that when a commanding officer of a brigade of Royal Artillery, or of a regiment of British Cavalry or Infantry, acts in command of a brigade on the half staff allowance, he shall receive his regimental pay and allowances, in addition to the half staff salary of the acting appointment. The same rule will be applied in the case of an officer, not of the staff corps, and not holding a regimental command, succeeding to the command of a brigade. Whenever an acting officer comes upon the full staff salary he will receive staff corps pay only, in addition to the staff allowance. It is further ruled that an officiating officer's claim to the higher allowances (as also those of regimental officers appointed by his temporary removal from the corps) must depend on confirmation of his appointment, until the appearance of which in general orders no additional allowances can be drawn.

THE LATE MR. THOMAS.—The Hurkaru says:—Yesterday Mr. Robert Thomas, of the well-known firm of indigo brokers, died, after a short illness, at the not great age of fifty-six years. Mr. Thomas was for many years a merchant in Calcutta, and had seen many of the vicissitudes which tried the mettle and strength of Calcutta merchants during the last quarter of a century. But in all the changes of the time, whether in adversity or in success, he retained the respect and friendly feeling of the community.

THE MYSTERIOUS OUDE DESPATCH.—The Englishman says:—We are informed that the famous letter of instruction addressed to Mr. Davis, Commissioner of Oude, and which first appeared in the London press, was a forgery; for not only has Mr. Davis denied the receipt of any such document, as has already been announced in the Lucknow papers, but the Government of India has declared that no letter of the kind was ever written.

CONFISCATED PROPERTY.—The Lieutenant-governor of Bengal has directed the sale of the landed and immovable property belonging to the Patna Wahabees, convicted of treason at Patna and Umballa. The proceeds are to be carried to the credit of the State. The value is estimated to be 22,000 rupees, of which 18,500 rupees belonged to the conspirator Elahee Bux. Ahmedoolah's property is estimated to be worth only about 2,500 rupees.

THE DUTCH AT ASSAHAN.—Rangoon and Straits papers state that the Dutch have taken possession of Assahan. A quarrel has taken place between the King of Bangkok and the French Consul at that place, on account of which the latter is said to have left, to lay his case before the Emperor.

THE WAHABEES.—The Hurkaru hears that intrigues and plots are still in progress on the part of the Wahabee leaders ascertained to be with the fanatic colony in Mulka Sittana, for whose apprehension the Cabul Ameer has been requested by Government to take measures.

SKITTLE ALLEY ARRANGEMENTS.—Government have directed that when skittle-alleys are provided they shall be completed with pins and balls by the department of Public Works, but that all renewals and repairs are to be made from the Canteen funds.

RAILWAY TERMINUS AT TRIMULGHERRY.—An important link in the widely-extending network of railway which is spreading through the country is adverted to by the Athenæum and Daily News:—"We understand that Col. Anderson, the Consulting Engineer for Railways, has, at the request of the Supreme Government, been deputed to Trimulgherry, near Secunderabad, to advise upon the construction of the G. I. Peninsular Railway Terminus at that station. This terminus, which, we hear, is to form the junction of the lines of the three Presidencies, is to be a fortified post as well; and in the absence of a duly qualified officer from Bombay, Colonel Anderson has been requested to proceed up, as being well experienced in fortification and military matters generally."

HOW TO PASS EXAMINATIONS.—The following appears in Madras general orders:—"It has come to the knowledge of the Commissioner for the Uncovenanted Civil Service Examinations that the envelopes containing the examination papers for the late Special Test Examination, sent to Salem for performance by the candidates there, were opened, and the contents of a large majority of the papers made known to many of the candidates before the examination. Under the orders of Government the Commissioner gives notice, that the examination at Salem for the year 1865 is declared to be null and void, and that none of the candidates at that station will be passed; and, further, that no person who was a candidate for examination at Salem, by the late special test, will be permitted to be appointed to any post, for which a certificate of having passed such special test is necessary, either permanently or on probation, until after the result of the Special Test Examination, to be held in August, 1866, may be known."

BOMBAY.

SALE OF AN ENGLISH GIRL TO THE CHIEF OF BHATWA.

(Abridged from the Delhi Gazette.)

We have received a startling letter from a correspondent who, although he has gathered the particulars of the incident which forms the subject of his communication from hearsay, places implicit confidence in the truth of the information he has supplied to us. We for our part scarcely know whether to believe or discredit the statement contained in the letter; not because we doubt the honesty of our correspondent, but because the occurrence we are about to notice is of so unusual a nature and argues so much depravity in those involved in the transaction set forth in the statement of our correspondent, that we would fain persuade ourselves our correspondent has been misinformed by some one possessing but an imperfect knowledge of the matter.

It appears that a certain chief, who holds sway in the state of Bhatwa, in the Kattyawar territory, and who is named Khamaldeen or Kumalodeen, lately conceived a desire to add to his live stock in his harem, although bowed down with the weight of seventy years, by procuring an English girl and inducing her to take up her residence within its sacred precincts. For this purpose emissaries were despatched to Ahmedabad, where lived an Englishman with his wife and children. They were a dissolute couple by all accounts, and of course had long rubbed skirts with poverty; yet they had something which the wealthy chief of Bhatwa did not possess. They had an English girl, their daughter, named Anne, a girl of about fourteen years of age, and the Bhatwa emissaries having looked about them and ascertained the resources of the place at once determined to make the parents an offer for the person of their daughter. The sum of three thousand rupees was the tempting bait which was to make them drive their little fish into the Nawab of Bhatwa's net, and the experiment succeeded. The father agreed, for and in consideration of Rupees 3,000, to consign his daughter for her life to the tender care of Kumalodeen. The bargain having been struck, the contracting parties made the best of their way to Bhatwa, where the money was to be paid and the goods delivered. Arrived at their destination, this child of fourteen, the offspring of English parents, and a daughter of the Christian Church, was handed over to her purchaser, and the delicate-minded parents became the happy possessors of 3,000 rupees.

At this stage of the proceedings a clergyman, the chaplain of Rajkote, to whom the circumstance was reported, tried to interpose between the unnatural parents of Anne and her brutal purchaser, by calling upon the political agent of Kattyawar to exert his authority and rescue the child from the destruction to which, body and soul, she was doomed by her natural guardians. Our correspondent does not vouch for the truth of the report which has reached him touching the action taken by the Political Agent in the matter, but what he says is that Anne, after she had become the Nawab's property, was solemnly made to abjure the errors of the Christian Church, and formally received into communion with the followers of the true prophet. The political officer, it is said, deputed his jemadar to be present at the ceremony, and this functionary brought him a full and particular account of all that took place on the occasion.

The next step taken in regard to the child was to marry her, after the Mahomedan fashion, to the purchaser, but before this interesting ceremony (which, we believe, is not regarded quite in the light of a sacrament by the sons of peace) was performed, the political officer is reported to have caused the youthful bridegroom, just turned seventy, to draw up a marriage settlement, by which the new light of the harem is secured in the possession of an income of rupees two thousand and odd per annum, including an item of thirty rupees for pan and sooparee, which may be looked upon as an equivalent for pin money. The Political Agent, however, was not satisfied with this provision for the present wants of Anne, and, being a far-sighted man, he took care to secure her against any unpleasant accident, such as desertion, for instance, that might happen in the future. He caused another deed to be drawn up, by which it is stipulated that, in the event of her being at any time banished from that blessed abode of virtue, the harem, she is to receive, for the term of her natural life, the handsome allowance of Rs. 250 per mensem, or Rs. 3,000 per annum.

Of the Political Agent's part in the transaction we are unwilling to speak here, because we have not been furnished with information on this head sufficiently reliable to justify our commenting with severity on an officer who has gained so high a place in the opinion of the Government, and we could not speak of conduct such as that now imputed to him with any degree of patience. We can only trust that what is laid to his charge may prove a groundless fabrication. Meanwhile, what is left us is to brood over the effect which this most disgraceful incident will produce on the native mind.

We are surprised that the Government of Bombay has not in some public manner noticed this most flagrant instance of child-vending on the part of a British subject. The act is fraught with so much future danger, that immediate steps should have been taken to bring the offenders at least to justice, if it was too late to rescue their victim.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE MURDER OF LIEUTENANT OMMANNEY.—The Lahore Chronicle gives the following particulars of this unfortunate event:—Another victim has fallen by the hand of a fanatic assassin on the frontier. Arthur Manaton Ommanney, Lieutenant in the Cavalry of the Guide Corps, stationed at Murdan, was riding on the evening of the 3rd instant past the house in which the band practises, when a Mussulman approached him saying he had a petition to make, and, at the same moment, seizing the horse's rein, he stabbed poor Ommanney with a knife under the right armpit. The murderer was immediately apprehended by the bandsmen, and is now in safe custody. He states that he is a native of Bela, near Jelallabad, a follower of Syud Mobaruk Shah of Mulkah, and had come to Murdan with the express determination of taking the life of a "Feringhee" in revenge for the burning of Mulkah during the Umbeylah campaign. After the above was in type we received information that the murderer, having been convicted on the clearest evidence, was hanged on the 5th instant.

THE LAST OF THE EXHIBITION.—A meeting of the shareholders of the Bombay International Exhibition has been held, at which it was decided to wind up the affairs of the company voluntarily forthwith.

THE DOCUMENT-BILLS QUESTION.—The Chamber of Commerce of Bombay has held a meeting in reference to the rights of exchange banks to refuse to receive payment of document bills, and their claim to hold the securities attached thereto for the purpose of covering other debts of the drawer. The course adopted by the Asiatic Bank and the Central Bank of Western India was unanimously condemned by the Chamber, and a resolution was passed that it tended to obstruct business and interfere with mercantile credit, and further that the Committee of the Chamber be authorised to take what steps in reference thereto they might consider necessary. It was apparent to the members that no compulsion could be brought to bear on any bank who resorted to the method of demanding letters of hypothecation containing a clause authorising them, under all circumstances where the drawer of the document bill was indebted to them otherwise, to set-off the securities against these other debts. It appeared, however, from what transpired at the meeting, that it was not a general thing with the Bombay banks to demand such unlimited securities as those of the banks whose action in London had raised the present important question, most of them being satisfied with a clause empowering the banks to retain the securities only in the event of failure to accept or pay the document bill, or of the bankruptcy of the drawee or acceptor. The two banks, therefore, who have placed themselves in the present unwonted position will henceforth find it necessary to conform their practice in such matters to that of the other banks, if they would not see their business finding its way into other channels.—Bombay Gazette.

SAFETY OF THE MAILS IN NATIVE STATES.—The Governor-General has proposed a set of more stringent rules regarding the responsibility of Native States for the safety of the mails; under these rules every State will be held liable for the value of the property plundered, and the minimum penalty will be £50 in addition to the value of the property.

A CURE FOR LOAFERS.—The magistrates of Bombay have lately adopted a plan for dealing with confirmed loafers, which appears to us to promise better results than that which the magistrates of Calcutta pursue. The plan in question is—to flog them. This may sound harsh, but we are disposed to believe that it will be in the long run the most prudent as well as the most merciful policy to follow.—Hurkaru.

THE BOMBAY COUNCIL.—A reference was some time back made to the Indian Government, as to whether the Bombay Government is at liberty to appoint a member of the Legislative Council. The India Government decided the matter in the affirmative. Sir Charles Wood has approved this decision.

THE NEW CLUB AT SIMLA.—It is believed that the new club at Simla will soon be organised. We hear from a private source that the extraordinary exclusive rule, on which we commented a short time ago, is likely to be withdrawn.—Englishman.

ARRIVAL OF TROOPS.—The left wing of H.M.'s 49th Regiment arrived in Bombay on the 18th inst. on board the steamer Melbourne, and the head-quarters wing of the 26th Regiment on board the Dilawar on the 26th inst. (after a splendid run of 89 days from Portsmouth), all well.

ROYAL REFUGEES.—We find that Sirdars Aslam Khan and Mahomed Hosein Khan, members of the Royal family of Cabul, lately sought an asylum in British territory, and the Government of the Punjab have made proper arrangements for their reception.

THE PRESIDENCY DIVISION.—Major-General Welshman has been ordered to Calcutta, to assume command of the Presidency Division, and Brigadier-General Dunsford to Peshawur, to command the brigade there.

DELAYS OF THE TELEGRAPH.—The latest English date received via the Indo-European telegraph is, London 14th instant. A great deal of dissatisfaction is expressed at the tardy manner in which these messages are forwarded. This message was upwards of twelve days in transit.

SUPPLY OF ICE.—The Government have leased the ice house to Messrs. Stearns, Hobart, and Co., who have made arrangements for a regular and abundant supply of ice to the Bombay public.

NEW TELEGRAPH CABLES.—The question of laying buoyant telegraph cables in deep waters on the principle suggested by Major Oldershaw, of the Royal Artillery, is being agitated in Bombay.

THE ARTILLERY RELIEFS will commence next month, the F 18 Battery are to leave Kirkee for Neemuch on the 2nd proximo, and the D 14 on the 7th proximo for Ahmedabad.

SUSPENSION OF AN OFFICER.—We regret to hear that Captain F. M. H. Forbes, of the Staff Corps, Superintendent Chumba Hill States, has been suspended.—Hurkaru.

THE WEATHER for the past week has been extremely hot, yet the public health is reported good, and the crops throughout the Presidency are generally in a thriving condition.

MR. STEWART ST. JOHN GORDON has been appointed an additional member of the Governor-General's Legislative Council.

CEYLON.

The Colombo Observer of the 17th October contains but little news of general interest.

There was a mistake made in the last statement of coffee exports for the year, which is now set right.

It will be seen (says our contemporary) that the coffee export of 1864-65 was not 876,000 cwts., but actually 884,000, or only 116,000 under the million. We sent away very nearly 610,000 cwts. of plantation, an increase of 91,000 over last season; and 274,000 cwts. native, or very nearly twice the export of that kind in last season. Of both kinds our export was 884,000, against 657,000, an increase of 226,000.

The deaths in rapid succession of Colonel Sim, Mr. Pennefather and now Mr. Murray, whose decease we record with great regret, has thrown a large amount of patronage into the hands of the Governor and the Secretary of State. The Governor has at once filled up the vacancy at Jaffna and made other minor permanent appointments which will be found duly noticed in our extracts from the Gazette. Major Skinner acts as auditor-general, and Mr. Noad continues to act as surveyor-general.

The first section of the Ceylon Railway was opened formally to the public on the 2nd inst., when the train to Ambepasse carried 84 passengers, 69 of whom were third class. The earnings for the day amounted to £31.

Charge.—For gross neglect of duty, to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, in the following instances:—

1st Instance.—For having, when in medical charge of G battery, 16th brigade, royal artillery, on the line of march from "Ghyretty Ghat" to "Hazareebagh," failed to admit into hospital, for medical treatment, the late Bombardier James Mitchell, of the said battery, until Jan. 7, 1865, at Camp Frajafetta, and then only after the urgent remonstrance of the officer commanding the battery, notwithstanding that the said deceased bombardier had been for many days previously, that is from about Dec. 27, 1864, in a state which required his admission into hospital, and had during the said period frequently gone to hospital for medical aid, and had on Jan. 3, 1865, been twice sent to hospital with formal sick reports.

2nd Instance.—For having, while holding the aforesaid medical charge, failed to admit into hospital for medical treatment Gunner David McBirnie, of G Battery, until the forenoon of the 7th Jan., 1865, and then only on the urgent remonstrance of the officer commanding the battery, although on the preceding day the said Gunner had been twice taken to hospital, and again early on the morning of the 7th January, 1865, in a state of ill-health requiring his admission into hospital.

Finding.—The court is of opinion that the prisoner, Assistant-Surgeon James Dow Sainter, of the Royal Artillery, is not guilty of the charge preferred against him, and does acquit him thereof.

(Signed) J. CORNICK, Colonel, President.

Hazareebagh, 24th July, 1865.

Revised Finding.—The Court, having maturely weighed the arguments of H.E. the Commander-in-Chief contained in the foregoing letter, finds that the prisoner, Assistant-Surgeon James Dow Sainter, of the Royal Artillery, is, as regards the 1st instance of the charge, guilty; the 2nd instance of the charge, not guilty; the preamble of the charge, guilty, with the exception of the word "Gross," of which, and of the 2nd instance of the charge, he is acquitted.

Sentence.—The Court now sentences the prisoner, Assistant-Surgeon James Dow Sainter, of the Royal Artillery, to be severely reprimanded in such manner as the Commander-in-Chief may please to direct.

ADMIRALTY COURT.—Nov. 14.

[Before Dr. LUSHINGTON.]

THE BANDA AND KIRWEE PRIZE MONEY.

This important case again came before the Court. The sum involved is £540,000, besides interest, and the question is the right share in the distribution of the money.

The Queen's Advocate (with whom was Mr. Ayrton, M.P.) appeared for General Sir George Whitlock and others, the actual captors of the booty; Dr. Deane, Q.C., represented Sir Hugh Rose; Mr. Cohen, General Roberts; Mr. Bayford another general officer; Mr. T. Hughes, M.P., Mr. C. Pollock, and other counsel appeared for parties.

The Queen's Advocate applied to the Court to order the evidence brought in by the defendants to be proved by a certain date, and also to fix the hearing. Until the day was appointed for the hearing the Court could have applications made. He suggested January 8 to commence the case.

Dr. Deane, Q.C., requested that the motions should be transposed. Sir Hugh Rose had not filed any evidence. The day proposed was convenient for all parties.

Mr. Hughes, M.P., said the 8th of January would suit the convenience of the Chancery barristers engaged in the case.

His Lordship said he had read the documents. They were very interesting, but by no means could a large portion be admitted as evidence on the hearing.

The Queen's Advocate said the Court on the question of costs would know how to deal with the parties.

His Lordship remarked that he had printed pages from Blackwood's Magazine among the evidence—(a laugh).

Mr. Cohen submitted that it was good evidence. The article was written by the quartermaster of the regiment, and contained the whole facts. It might be evidence in the case.

The Queen's Advocate suggested that the parties should consider what should be printed, and after the intimation of the Court they would be careful what they allowed to remain as evidence.

His Lordship appointed the 8th January to commence the case. He could make no order as to the printing, but the parties would bear in mind what he had said. There must be some latitude, but he had statements before him long before and long after the capture, which could not be received as evidence.

The 8th January was fixed for the hearing.

He commanded the 1st Infantry Brigade at the battle of Badlee-ka-Serai, and during the operations before Delhi was severely wounded in two places whilst commanding a column in a successful attack made on the enemy's position on 12th August, 1857, and also commanded the movable column in the district of Delhi after the capture of that city (medal and C.B.). General Showers, who originally belonged to the 72nd Bengal Native Infantry, entered the service as ensign, Jan. 9, 1825; became lieutenant, June 25, 1826; captain, Feb. 22, 1836; brevet-major, Nov. 9, 1846; major, April 24, 1847; lieutenant-colonel, May 10, 1853; brevet-colonel, Nov. 28, 1854; and major-general, Jan. 13, 1864. By this casualty Colonel John Liddell, C.B., Bombay army, is promoted to the rank of Major-General.

DEATH OF COLONEL BURNS, SON OF THE POET.—On Saturday last, at Cheltenham, where he had long resided, died Lieutenant Colonel James Glencairn Burns, one of the sons of the poet Robert Burns. With his brother, William Nicol Burns, he entered the East India Company's service at an early age. Both the brothers attained the same rank. Colonel James Glencairn Burns, named after the poet's early patron, the Earl of Glencairn, was in his seventy-second year.

APPLICATION FOR SUMMONSES AGAINST MAJOR-GEN. PEARS, &c.—On Wednesday week Mr. Arnold was occupied in hearing an application of the Marquis de St. Maurice for summonses against Major-general Pears and G. P. Cochrane, of the India Board, for conspiracy. Applicant stated that he wanted a summons for suppressio veri, or, in other words, suppressing facts which they were in duty bound to have stated and made known. They had conspired to state that the Governor of Madras had dismissed him from the East India Company's service for not attending to his duty, and had so prevented his application for captain's half pay being attended to, whereas they knew and were fully aware that at the time he was discharged by the Governor of Madras he was under the Company's care in England unknown to the said Governor, and was duly admitted afterwards to be still in the service, and admitted to lieutenant's half pay. He was, however, captain retired since 1845, but had never received a captain's half pay, and his application to the India-house would not be heard, nor would they listen to him in any way through letters written by Major-general Pears and G. P. Cochrane, of the India Board. Mr. Arnold said, "I have given myself pains to listen to your application, hoping that after having heard the whole of your claim I might be able to render you some assistance, but you have not set forth any grounds upon which I can grant you a summons. I am very sorry to hear such a pitiable tale, but I cannot help you, and your only remedy—if remedy you have, which I very much doubt—is by filing an application in the Court of Queen's Bench."

TROOPS FOR CEYLON.—On Thursday detachments of the second battalion 25th (King's Own Borderers) Regiment, the Army Hospital Corps, and the Ceylon Rifle Regiment, to the number of 103 non-commissioned officers and men, with two officers' wives, and 15 women and children, embarked at Gravesend on board the chartered troopship Isabella, for Colombo. The following officers embarked with the troops:—Lieut. C. F. Barnardiston, and Lieut. C. De Swete and wife, 2nd battalion 25th Regiment; Lieut. H. K. Fenwick and Lieut. J. B. Pilkington and wife, Ceylon Rifles; and Staff Assistant Surgeon O'Farrell.

ORDERS have been received at Chatham garrison directing Captain C. Butler, and Captain C. French, attached to the depot of the 94th regt., to embark for Calcutta to join the service companies of the 94th regt. in India. Captain R. D. Barrett, 19th regt., has also received orders to hold himself in readiness to join the head-quarters of that regiment in Bengal.

ROYAL ARTILLERY.—The undermentioned officers of the Royal Artillery have been raised to increased pay, viz.:—Lieut.-colonel F. Conybeare, 18th brigade, vice Biggs, retired upon full pay; Lieut. Lockyer, 9th brigade, vice Macdougall, transferred to the Madras Corps; Lieut. E. N. Nash, 15th brigade, vice Bowie, transferred to the Madras Staff Corps; and Lieut. J. R. Slade, 1st brigade, vice Trench, promoted.

THE GREAT PRIZE MONEY CASE.—The great Banda and Kirwee Prize Money case is fixed for hearing on the 8th January. The War-office has been urgently attacked for the delay in the distribution, but it appears unreasonably so, as the War-office has nothing to do with the distribution of prize money.

ENSIGN JAMES, 2nd battalion 25th regiment, was accidentally drowned at Colombo on the 14th Oct., while endeavouring to save the life of a native. The deceased was only in his 21st year, and entered the service July 8, 1862.

CONSULAR APPOINTMENT.—(Foreign-office, Nov. 18.)—The Queen has been pleased to approve of Mr. James Whittall as Consul-general at Hong Kong for the King of the Hawaiian Islands.

INDIAN BRANCH RAILWAY.—The report of the directors, read at the sixth ordinary general meeting, held on Friday last at the London Tavern, Mr. W. Dent in the chair, states that from the very satisfactory progress made the works on the line from Lucknow to Cawnpore would be completed without difficulty by the end of the year, and that the road would be ready to receive the permanent way materials when they arrived. The despatch of those materials was commenced in July last, and the entire quantity, with the telegraph materials and a sufficiency of rolling stock, would reach India in time to admit of the line being opened for traffic probably by the middle of next year. Detailed traffic returns recently received from India, and extending over the last twelve months, showed that the expectations raised as to the amount of traffic between Lucknow and Cawnpore were likely to be fully realised. Those traffic returns were also highly satisfactory, as proving by the proportion and nature of the produce leaving Lucknow that Oude had great exporting resources, which could not fail to be largely developed by increased facilities of communication to the profit both of the railway and the country. The traffic on the Nulhatee line showed an increase in the receipts on the average of about £70 a month, and it was satisfactory that the permanent way was in very good order. The report of Mr. H. Lambert, the acting chief engineer, stated that there were 5,000 men in regular employment on the works. With regard to the Rohilkund lines the working section of the line from Shahjehanpore to Shahabad Junction, and the land survey from Bareilly to Shahabad Junction, were completed. The trial and working sections and land survey and plans from Shahabad Junction to Moradabad were made, and also a trial section of the branch from Shahabad to Allypore. The traffic receipts on the Nulhatee line, 27 miles in length, for the half-year ending the 30th of June last, amounted to £3,032, and the expenses to £1,730, or 57.06 per cent., leaving a balance of £1,302. The financial statement to the 30th of June showed that £266,019 had been received, and £206,263 expended, including £20,350 for interest on capital, leaving a balance of £59,756. The amount of the capital was £1,000,000, of which £246,719 had been raised. The report was adopted.

EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.—The report of the directors for the half-year ending 30th June, 1865, states that the traffic for the half-year has been satisfactory, and that the net receipts have amounted to about 4½ per cent. per annum on the capital expended. The receipts during the first thirteen weeks of the present half-year, compared with those of the corresponding period in last year, show an improvement of above £5,000. The agent in India has entered into traffic arrangements with the River Steamer Company for establishing a regular bi-monthly communication in connection with the railway between Kooshtea, the terminal station on the Ganges, and the district of Assam. A traffic arrangement has also been entered into with the Assam Company, by which the carriage of the whole of their teas, stores, and coolies has been secured to the railway. The directors, in consequence of the urgent demands of the residents of the Dacca district for direct steam communication with this railway, chartered a steamer, which for the last five months has been running between Kooshtea and Dacca. The regularity with which this service has been performed has gained the confidence of the public, and has resulted in the steamer obtaining a full complement of passengers and goods. The directors have secured the services of Mr. Leslie, C.E., as their chief engineer, for the execution of the works of the Goalundo Extension. Mr. Langley, one of the auditors, has sent in his resignation; an election of an auditor will, therefore, take place at the meeting. The directors regret the resignation from the board of Colonel Anderson, C.B., and Mr. Mackenzie. The directors have taken this opportunity of securing the services of Colonel Strachey, R.E., late Secretary to the Government of India in the Public Works Department.

MADRAS RAILWAY.—The thirteenth half-yearly meeting of the shareholders in this company was held on Friday, at the London Tavern. Mr. J. A. Arbuthnot presided. The report, which has been published, was taken as read, and after a slight discussion was unanimously adopted.

THE DIRECTORS OF THE MADRAS IRRIGATION AND CANAL COMPANY have issued a report, to be presented at the thirteenth ordinary general meeting of shareholders. It states that the admission of water into the main canal has been conducted with great care and prudence, and the consolidation of the embankment has progressed satisfactorily. The works have therefore been rendered, it is hoped, secure and trustworthy for the extended supply of irrigation, which may be fairly expected to arise during the season 1866. The total receipts on account of capital amounted on the 1st instant to £935,033, of which there had been expended in England £30,454, and in and for India £883,406; leaving a balance of £51,627 in hand, and the sum of £64,967 to be received on account of the present guaranteed capital of £1,000,000.

PASSAGE-MONEY OF GENERAL OFFICERS' WIVES.—A circular memorandum has been received at Woolwich garrison to the effect that the Secretary of State for War, with the concurrence of the Secretary of State for India, has decided that the wives of general officers appointed to the staff in India shall have their passage paid at the public expense, provided the claim is made within six months of the officer embarking. In extreme cases, however, the period of the claim may be extended to nine months, after which no claim will be entertained.

FRENCH ARTISANS FOR JAPAN.—About sixty skilled workmen of various trades have just been engaged by the Japanese ambassadors, now at Brest, to accompany them to the East, to work for the Government of Japan at very liberal wages.

BILLIARD TABLE MANUFACTURERS

TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, 14, CATHERINE STREET, STRAND, LONDON.

The great superiority of the Billiard Tables manufactured by this Firm is fully attested by the fact of their Tables having been patronised by Royalty since the reign of George III., during which period they have been honoured also by the patronage of the principal Nobility and Gentry of England, nearly 250 of Her Majesty's and the Native Regiments at home and abroad, and more than one hundred of the principal London, Provincial, and Foreign Clubs.

BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

EXPANDING SADDLE.

GIBSON AND COMPANY

Respectfully invite the attention of MILITARY MEN, EQUESTRIANS, and OWNERS OF HORSES, to their Newly-Invented EXPANDING SADDLE, which admits of ready adjustment to the size of any horse, creating a secure and easy seat without the slightest inconvenience to either horse or rider. The principle of EXPANSION and CONTRACTION comprises a simple arrangement of mechanism within the saddle so perfect, that by merely turning a screw the pad is proportioned to the size and form of the animal, on which it firmly rests with a uniform pressure, and is securely retained in its position by means of an ordinary girth.

This invention has obtained the approval and distinguished patronage of HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF, and from the very favourable opinions expressed by competent judges, and all who have had an opportunity of testing its merits, there is no doubt it will come into general use; indeed, its success is already established.

THE NEW THEORY IN RIFLES.

Lieutenant James Forsyth, in his excellent work, "The Sporting Rifle, &c.," first promulgated the startling theory that Rifles could be so constructed as to lessen the elevation by increasing the charge of powder. This theory, which the Advertiser has proven to be correct, alters the whole position of Rifles in favour of the sportsman. Formerly, with a high trajectory, the bullet which would have hit a tiger in a vital part at 100 yards, would pass over his back at 25 or 50 yards. By the new system, as elaborated and perfected in DOUGALL'S LOCKFAST BREECHLOADERS, there is a point-blank range to 150 yards, combined with a velocity and smothering power hitherto unknown.—(See TIMES, 11th October, 1864.) No other Rifle possesses the same advantages.

J. D. DOUGALL, Inventor and Patentee, 59, St. James's-street, Piccadilly, London.

SARSAPARILLA.

WILKINSON'S (late BRIDGE'S)

ESSENCE OF FLUID EXTRACT OF RED JAMAICA SARSAPARILLA is appreciated for its Purity, and marked superiority, daily prescribed by the Faculty for Impurities of the Blood, Affections of the Liver, Constitutional Debility, Attenuation of Body, as an Alterative Medicine at the Changes of the Seasons, and for freeing the system from the effects of Mercury.

In India and the Colonies it is extensively used to prevent taking complaints incident to Tropical Climates, and as a renovator of the system after Sickness invaluable.

"A superior preparation, that may always be relied on."—Sir Astley Cooper.

"We are in every respect satisfied with it."—Lancet.

"We recommend your Sarsaparilla as the best."—Medical Review.

"Latterly, in consequence of much debility, &c., subsequent to Cholera, I have freely used 'Bridge's Sarsaparilla' myself, with complete benefit and success."—J. Poett, F.R.C.S.

Sold in pints, half-pints, and quarter pints. One pint is equal to eight pints of the ordinary preparations.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.—The public are cautioned against cheap preparations of Sarsaparilla, which, instead of being what they profess, are nothing but a decoction of common herbs, sweetened with molasses, and flavoured with American Winter Green. The genuine has "Thos. Wilkinson (late Bridge and Co.), 270, Regent-street, London," engraved on each bottle.

AGREEABLE SEIDLITZ POWDER in one bottle, protected by a case with measure and spoon included. This preparation is highly recommended, not only as a Mild Aperient, but to allay Fever, Thirst, &c.

AROMATIC TINCTURE OF QUINODINE for the prevention of Fever, Intermittent or Remittent Ague, and other effects of Malaria. No person exposed to the influence of or predisposing cause of Fevers should be without it, for taken in small doses daily the system will become so thoroughly impregnated with its principles as to be rendered proof against all attacks of Contagion or Malaria. Sold in pints, half-pints, and quarter-pints.

The above articles prepared only by Thos. Wilkinson (late Wilkinson, Bridge, & Co.), 270, Regent-street, London, W.

Perfected and Exhibited in the Great Exhibition of 1851, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London.

MRS. JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTH-

ING SYRUP, FOR CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR

TEETH.—This infallible remedy has preserved hundreds of children when thought past recovery from convulsions arising from painful dentition. As soon as the Syrup is rubbed on the gums the child will be relieved, the gums cooled, and the inflammation reduced. It is as innocent as efficacious, tending to produce the teeth with ease; and so pleasant, that no child will refuse to let its gums be rubbed with it. When infants are at the age of four months, the Syrup should be rubbed on the gums, and parents should never be without the Syrup in the nursery where there are young children; for, if a child wakes in the night with pains in the gums, the Syrup immediately gives ease, thereby preventing convulsions, fevers, &c. The great success of this medicine during the last twenty-five years has induced unprincipled persons to imitate it, under the name of American Soothing Syrup, and copying parts of Mrs. Johnson's Bills, &c. Parents will, therefore, be very particular to ask for JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTHING SYRUP, and to notice that the names of BARCLAY and SONS, 95, FARRINGTON-STREET, LONDON (to whom Mrs. Johnson has sold the recipe), are on the stamp affixed to each bottle.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Dark and cheerless, indeed, is the present season, when the weekly deaths are far above the average. The cause is probably diffused through the dense, damp fogs, which have been so prevalent of late. These Pills purify the blood which has been contaminated by foul gases, and give tone to the nervous system, whereby typhoid, typhus, gastric, and bilious fevers are ward off. Holloway's Pills are so the best known promoters of digestion, the surest regulators of the liver, and the most valued and effective of all aperients. When the health is impaired with loss of appetite, vigour, and sleep, this medicine will be found a certain restorative, and will rarely fail to effect a complete cure.

ANILINE DYES.—“I shall commence my observations on dyeing, by referring especially to the remarkable and beautiful colours derived from coal tar, the introduction of which into this art may be said to constitute the chief distinction, as far as dyeing is concerned, between the present and the former Exhibition, creating, in fact, a new era in the tinctorial art. Coal tar colours deserve attention for their power, as well as for the facility with which they may be applied, for one grain will deeply tint half a gallon of water, and little or no skill is required for their application.”—Vide Report by Grace Calvert, Esq., F.R.S., Ph.D., Honorary Professor of Chemistry.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

We have received our usual files of papers, from Calcutta to the 22nd of October, Madras to the 27th, and Ceylon to the 23rd of that month.

The Calcutta date, it will be seen, is no later than that received via Bombay, so there is no fresh news from the City of Palaces. The intense heat and drought still continued, and appeared to be pretty general through Bengal and Behar, where crops were being ruined and rivers dried up, and things generally tending towards famine. In Calcutta, epidemic fever had made its appearance in its old haunts, and cholera was said to be raging at Dum Dum.

At Madras the principal event of the fortnight was the publication of the new order for the reorganization of the Presidency Army. The document has already appeared in these columns; but we give elsewhere a list of the postings of officers consequent upon the change, published in the Athenæum and Daily News. We also add the notification of the Governor, who does not conceal his disapproval of the measure—a sentiment, by the way, very generally shared, and more particularly by those whom it concerns. One of the latter, writing to the Athenæum on the subject, says that the result of an examination of the new conditions was this:—"Putting aside prospects, etc., I made it a question of profit or loss of pay, and turned to the order laying down the rates of pay under the new organisation. With much surprise I came to the conclusion that the infantry are great gainers, as a general rule, and the cavalry are losers. I was also surprised to see that an infantry major, 2nd in command and right wing officer, draws in the aggregate Rs. 20 a month more than a cavalry major, 2nd in command and 1st squadron officer; and that the infantry captain and left wing officer draws Rs. 70 a month more than the cavalry captain and senior squadron officer.

... Moreover, to make matters worse for the cavalry officer, he is ordered on his smaller amount of pay to maintain three chargers, that is, to buy and keep up three good horses, which must be approved of by the commanding officer before they are mustered, while the infantry officer has to keep one horse, which need not necessarily be an expensive one. Perhaps you, or any of your readers, may be able to tell me if there is anything extra given corresponding to the old horse allowance; I am told there is not. I can hardly believe it. If there was, it would then only bring the pay of the cavalry to about a par with the infantry, instead of the cavalry being the better paid service of the two, as it was in the good old times. Our army will be on a far different footing to the Bengal or Bombay armies. We do not expect that more than four cavalry regiments will be raised, which lieut.-colonels will command, majors will be second in command, while the squadrons will be commanded by very senior captains, and the rest of the officers will get what regimental appointments they can, or be attached to regiments to do duty. There are but few chances of other than regimental employment for officers in this Presidency; the consequence is that two-thirds of our army will for the future be unemployed."

The Governor was expected to return to Madras on the day of the departure of the mail, and in reference to his arrival the Athenæum says:—"It is hoped that something will shortly be done to reduce to practice the interminable theoretic discussions about the water supply of Madras, and other projects therewith connected, which have been talked and written about for thirty years. Mr. Fraser, C.E., is said to have nearly completed his plans, including those for the Adyar and Cooum works and the Junction Canal, and they will all perhaps go up to Government by the end of the year. Sir William Denison inspected Mr. Fraser's plans before leaving the Presidency, and he is known to cherish a wish that operations should commence while he still holds the reins, but this will be impracticable, unless he consents to begin with the easiest, cheapest, and most urgent undertaking, of bringing in water from the Red Hills."

The Athenæum attaches no credit to the story about Sir Gaspard Le Marchant succeeding to the Governorship, retaining also the Command in Chief.

The trial of Cornet Watkins for his assault upon the editor of the Bangalore Herald was to take place at the ensuing Sessions before the High Court.

Great discontent was excited by the raising of the fares, both for passengers and goods, on the Madras Railway—a very injudicious step, especially as large supplies of cotton were coming in, and the use of the line for the purpose would be considerably checked.

The monsoon was anxiously expected, but had not set in. There was, however, unusually good health throughout the Presidency.

In Ceylon there was a great deal of political activity, both as regards the Government and the Opposition. Party spirit, taking a personal turn in one of the local papers, had led to a case of horse-whipping. Some particulars will be found elsewhere.

The next arrival from India will be the Bombay mail, which arrived at Suez on Sunday morning last, and may be expected in London on Tuesday next.

We believe we may state with certainty that a considerable reduction in the European force quartered in India has been determined on, and that the order for the purpose will be shortly sent out.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

TUESDAY, November 28, 1865.

THE AMALGAMATION GRIEVANCE.

WE observe an announcement that "officers on furlough belonging to the local Indian Service are requested to send their addresses to the Honorary Secretary of the Amalgamation Inquiry Committee, 3A, King-street, St. James's-square, S.W." One would have thought such an intimation would be scarcely necessary, considering the strong interest which every officer of the class in question must take in the objects of the committee. But we are informed that the co-operation of that body—largely rendered as it has been—with the action of this most important organisation has come principally from India, and that too many officers in England have been comparatively inactive in the matter. It may be said, perhaps, that the enjoyment of furlough or the renovation of health in England are less favourable conditions than the performance of routine duty in India for brooding over injuries, and still less for contributing towards their correction. But the real fact we believe to be that Indian officers in this country have so deep-rooted an idea of official obduracy and public indifference on the subject, that they despair of any good being done even by the energetic and influential exertions which are being made on their behalf.

If such be really the feeling at work, we can assure the officers concerned that they form an inadequate estimate, if not of their own grievances, at least of their chances of recognition and redress. After so much has been done, there surely must be good reason to expect more; and we ourselves are assured that the conductors of what may be called the "movement" in this matter were never at any previous period so sanguine as at present in ultimate success. As far as they have gone Parliament has most decidedly gone with them; and the public—to judge by the attention given to the subject by the press—are by no means so indifferent to the interests of Indian officers as seems to be supposed. Indeed, the general apathy in respect to Indian affairs, whether in or out of Parliament, is principally ascribable to their want of familiarity; to the apparent difficulty of marking their merits and remembering their technicalities. These natural obstacles have been, moreover, strengthened by the lengthened separation of India from the general category of Imperial concerns. Legislators without special experience or study have seldom ventured to take a part in Indian questions, leaving them to be dealt with by what may be considered a Committee of the House, and contenting themselves with voting, when they voted at all, according to their party predilections. There is every sign in these latter days of a better state of things; but time alone can bring them about; and meanwhile a question like the present is precisely one in which the public are likely to take an active interest. Its comprehension involves no particular difficulties connected with the country; the professional technicalities incident to its discussion may safely be left to a few spokesmen; but everybody can understand that the rights of the officers of an illustrious service are not to be cut from under them without national dishonour—more especially when those rights have been guaranteed by an Act of the Legislature, admitted to have been violated in some of its most important respects. As yet we have no authoritative information as to the report of the latest—we will not venture to say the last—Royal Commission upon the subject; and the fact of the decision being so scrupulously withheld—even from the committee whose legitimate action should meet with more courteous recognition—is not very favourable to the immediate settlement of the case. But we are well satisfied that this possibility, so far from being injurious to the object, would only tend to its more complete attainment; for the case will be far stronger in the new Parliament than it was in the old, and the most certain assurances have been given that it will be taken up with vigour in the ensuing session.

With these prospects in view it is especially desirable that the co-operation of officers in England should be given to those who are working in their behalf; and we trust that no "cold shade" of official obstruction will discourage their warm and hearty support. Let them, at all events, place themselves in communication with the committee in King-street, and obtain an opportunity to judge for themselves.

THE MYSTERIOUS DESPATCH.

IN our last number we published a paragraph from the Englishman disposing of the question of the mysterious Oude despatch in the following brief terms:—

"We are informed that the famous letter of instruction addressed to Mr. Davies, Commissioner of Oude, which first appeared in the London Press, was a forgery; for not only has Mr. Davies denied the receipt of any such document, as has already been announced in the Lucknow papers, but the Government of India has declared that no letter of the kind was ever written."

A contemporary considers this sufficiently explicit. We do not: Mr. Davies made an official denial of the reception of the document. Where is the official denial of its dictation or despatch on the part of the Government of India? The Englishman has been informed. Informed by whom? Not necessarily by the Government of India, according to the terms of the explanation. For all that we are assured to the contrary, anybody may have dropped into the office and made the assertion, which is repeated without any reference to authority. Surely this is a very unsatisfactory mode of settling a question implicating so seriously the discretion—to say the least of it—of the supreme authority in India. Indeed, it is much to be desired, for the sake of Sir John Lawrence himself—whose enemies are busy in that country with any available materials for damaging his administration—that a more direct denial should be given, if any such can be made. Even though the despatch were drafted and withheld upon further consideration—which is not an unlikely supposition—it would be far better to avow the fact than allow the explanation to be made in such ambiguous terms as the above. A communication not despatched has no official existence, and neither the partisans of the Talookdars nor the public generally, have a right to judge of official acts by a document found in an office, and published without the sanction or knowledge of authority. But the matter having gone so far, it is only fair to all parties that not only the truth, but the whole truth, be known. If the despatch be a forgery, the next question must be, "Who is the forger?" But it does not appear that any inquiry upon that point is in contemplation. We are much afraid that the monster raised by the Opposition party in Oude will not be laid by the little paragraph in the Englishman.

Since the above was in type we have received, indirectly, a communication from India, repeating, upon the same authority as that upon which we relied for our former statements upon this subject, that the despatch emanated from the Foreign-office in Calcutta, whence the copy published was procured; and the writer further declares that "a secret and private, though strictly official and public, correspondence" has been going on for a twelvemonth and more, between Mr. Davies and Sir John Lawrence—a correspondence commenced by the despatch in question, in which, it will be remembered, Mr. Davies is authorised to correspond with the Foreign Department upon financial matters in Oude. The correspondence, it is added, was not allowed to pass through Mr. Wingfield's hands, as that official was known to uphold the existing policy.

Such statements as these render it more desirable than ever that the Government of India should make some direct avowal. Here we have a despatch published in London, bearing all the appearance of a genuine document, accurately foreshadowing and describing the policy which Sir John Lawrence has proposed in Oude. It was published, too, at a time when the minutes of the Governor-general and the official papers on the subject were unknown to any but high functionaries in India. Yet the task of disclaiming such a despatch is left to the addressee, instead of the addressor, the latter being the responsible person, from whom, we repeat, the public expect to hear on the subject.

EAST INDIA IRRIGATION AND CANAL COMPANY.—The report of the directors, to be presented at the meeting on the 30th inst., contains the following:—The past season has in India been of a really exceptional nature, and specially obstructive to open-air operations; nevertheless, most praiseworthy exertions have been made by the staff generally, so that the anticipated satisfactory state of things has been delayed only for a short period. According to the statements now made by the chief engineer it would appear—1st. That an early realisation of profits from irrigation may, with certainty (though to a small extent at first), be anticipated. 2nd. That by July next the company will be able to supply a large area of land with water for irrigation from the three main irrigating canals in the Cuttack Delta, described in former reports. 3rd. That by the same time further portions of the canal intended to connect Calcutta with Midnapore, and of the tidal canal intended to connect Balasore with Calcutta, will be opened for traffic. 4th. That the tolls upon the still unfinished first section of the Calcutta and Midnapore Canal (the Oolaberiah Canal), have steadily increased, although from the scarcity of boats, caused by the cyclone of October, 1864, trade had become restrained for a time. 5th. That the tolls on the Banka Nulla Canal—the 1st section of the Tidal Canal—had also increased. 6th. That an arrangement has been concluded with the Bengal Coal Company for the carriage of their coal through the Oolaberiah Canal by the boats of this company. And 7th. That the remainder of this company's boats have been fully employed with other freights. With deep regret the directors announce to the shareholders the death of their late colleague, Lieut.-gen. Westrop Watkins, since the last general meeting of the company. The vacancy thus created at the board it is not intended to fill up. General Sir George Pollock, G.C.B., K.S.I., &c., and Lieut.-col. John Grimes, two of the present directors, retire, but offer themselves for re-election; and Thomas Quested Finnis, Esq., Alderman, one of the auditors, will also retire, but offers himself for re-election. The audited accounts of the company will be printed as usual at the ordinary yearly meeting of shareholders in May next; but it may be satisfactory to state here that on the 31st ult. a sum of £582,737 had been received on account of capital; and that the expenditure in England and remittances to India amount to £519,109, leaving a balance in hand in England of £63,628, of which £10,000 has since been forwarded to India.

BENGAL.

DUTCH AGGRESSION AND ENGLISH INTERESTS IN THE EASTERN SEAS.

Since their cruel massacre of our countrymen in Amboyna, which has been exceeded in atrocity only by the Asiatic horrors of the Calcutta Black Hole and the Cawnpore Well, the Dutch have steadily resisted English interests, and secretly, but successfully, violated treaty rights in the Eastern Archipelago. In the sixteenth century the three maritime powers of Europe, the Portuguese, the Dutch, and the English, were successively attracted by the spices of Sumatra, Java, and the Celebes. But soon England found a more attractive field for her energies on the continent of India, where she finally destroyed her French rival's influence by the events which followed the war with Tippee. Hardly had Lord Wellesley accomplished this, when it became necessary for Lord Minto to take from the Republic those provinces in the Eastern Archipelago which had become its property in virtue of the submission of Holland to France. Thus England had all the East at her feet; she was mistress of the seas, the islands and the coasts of the southern hemisphere from the Cape to Japan. At the time that Wellington, entering Paris as a conqueror, was the foremost man of Europe, the East India Company held as proud a position in Asia. Sir Stamford Raffles, acting on a policy of free trade and Christian benevolence, governed the Eastern Archipelago in a way which would long ago have made it as profitable as Bengal, and its people more prosperous than any in India. But, as has so often been the case since, in an evil moment Lord Castlereagh, at Vienna, sacrificed the interests of England in the East to her supposed influence in Europe, and Java with the adjacent islands once more reverted to the again independent Dutch. In 1824, desirous to avoid collision with the Dutch and to promote the good of the Malays, George Canning concluded a treaty with the Hague, under which we retired from Sumatra, and the Dutch evacuated the opposite peninsula of Malacca. We exchanged our old factory of Bencoolen for the small territory of Malacca, and we both stipulated that the chiefs in either country should be left independent, and that, to secure this, all treaties of alliance or trade made in the Eastern Archipelago should be communicated to each other. Each power, while keeping what it had, bound itself to make no further annexations. We cannot, for instance, accept any direct dominance over Larut, the misgovernment of which is seriously injuring our Province Wellesley, without Dutch permission. So strictly have we acted on the treaty, that when we entered into engagements with the Sultan of Borneo, we generously obtained for the Dutch the same commercial rights which we secured for ourselves.

Whatever may be said of the grasping acquisitiveness of England in bygone days, we have been almost Quixotic in our relations towards the Dutch since we restored Java. When the treaty of 1824 was made the Netherlands Government made a "solemn disavowal of any design to aim either at political supremacy or at commercial monopoly in the Eastern Archipelago." We use language strictly warranted by their own confessions, when we say that, in the forty years since, the authorities of Netherlands India have persistently falsified that solemn pledge. They have annexed independent States, they have withdrawn from them on our threatening remonstrances, and have returned to the spoil when we seemed to have forgotten it—such has been their aim at political supremacy. Having thus violated the treaty, they have taken the second step of forcing their new feudatories to shut out all other traders, to submit to a ruinous tariff, and to specially disavow all connection with England—such has been their love of commercial monopoly. The result of this is that the civilisation of the natives in the northern or independent half of Sumatra has been checked, for the Dutch allow neither unfettered commerce nor tolerate education; and the trade of Singapore and Malacca, but especially Penang, has been threatened with extinction, for the last is the great entrepôt of the pepper of Sumatra. Last mail brought up to the Government of India, and took to the home authorities, the Chambers of Commerce, and Messrs. J. Crawford and Horsman, for Parliament, the resolutions of a public meeting held at Penang, denouncing, in calmly indignant terms, the proceedings of the Dutch.

In 1841, and again in 1850, Lord Palmerston acted vigorously in answer to similar representations. The Dutch had annexed Siak, about the middle of the east coast of Sumatra and almost opposite Malacca. Being then in his vigour, Lord Palmerston declared that the independence of Siak must be respected, and it was respected accordingly. In 1846 her Majesty's Minister at the Hague reported the withdrawal of the Dutch troops from the east coast of Sumatra, and "that the Dutch Government would no longer interfere with the execution of the commercial treaties with the native Powers existing previous to 1824." But the famous Van den Bosch, the author of the culture system so much praised by Mr. W. Money in his able work on Java, had craftily said of Siak, that its annexation must be gone about with the greatest caution; that the opposition of England must be respected "as yet and until we are well established everywhere else." The time came in 1856, and the conquest of Siak then was followed up by that of Delli and Langkat, great pepper ports, on the ground that they were its dependencies. In 1862 the Governor of the Straits Settlements represented this latter act of aggression to Lord Elgin, and informed him that the Dutch had established their influence on the east coast of Sumatra, over a distance of 240 miles, between Timian and Bila Pannai, nearly opposite to Penang; that they were apparently aiming at the occupation of the seven ports on that coast, of which four are the chief pepper ports; and that they had even taken part of Acheen in violation of the Treaty of 1824. Lord Elgin sent home to the Cabinet a vigorous protest on the subject, but nearly three years have now elapsed, and the Lord Palmerston who wrote so resolutely in 1841 has taken no notice of the falsification of the pledges then made to him. Satisfied that they will not be interfered with, at a time when the foreign policy of England reflects the age of the two statesmen at the head of its ministry, the Dutch have now added Assahan to Delli, Langkat, and Siak, and their next morsel will be the old kingdom of Acheen, whose sovereign has been our faithful ally for centuries. And the vindication of this further act of aggression rests on the occupation of Siak, the alleged suzerain of Assahan, although in 1841 Lord Palmerston forced the Dutch to surrender their ill-gotten gains, and the Chief of Siak in 1823 specially engaged to allow his feudatories to make any engagements with the British Government.

In spite of the treaty of 1824, it would not become England to object to the extension of Dutch supremacy over the native States of Sumatra, if that supremacy were in any sense a guarantee of the civilisation and prosperity of the people, or of the maintenance of our commercial rights. But in every case of illegal annexation the Dutch have closed the ports, and converted what was a prosperous inter-insular trade into a coasting monopoly. It is high time for her Majesty's Government again to interfere, as it did in 1841 and in 1850, in order to preserve the very existence of those settlements which it is about to form into a separate colony. The spirited representations of the Penang merchants will, through Mr. J. Crawford and the Right Hon. E. Horsman, M.P., who are so deeply interested in the settlement, certainly cause the House of Commons to act. And we doubt not the Government of Sir John Lawrence will reiterate still more emphatically the request of Lord Elgin to her Majesty's Ministers to call on the Netherlands Government.

1st. To withdraw from, and respect the independence of Acheen, Siak, Assahan, Delli, and Langkat.

2nd. To abrogate every article in every treaty with any native State in the Eastern Seas previous or subsequent to the conclusion of the Treaty of London of the 17th March, 1824, which tends to the injury of British trade.

3rd. To abstain from all interference with the free access of British trade to the ports of any native Power in the Eastern Archipelago, whether the Dutch have treaties with such Power or not; or to any port whatever in the Eastern Seas, except such as may have been bona fide held by the Dutch on the 17th March, 1824, in which latter ports British trade is to be admitted on the footing of the trade of the most favoured nation.—Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE CASE OF MR. WILLIAMS.—The investigation into the case of Mr. Williams, an Extra Assistant Commissioner in Oude, by Mr. Tucker, Special Commissioner, appointed for the purpose, has, we hear, resulted in an acquittal. The indictment contained several charges, but these were reduced by Mr. Tucker to a single issue, in effect, namely, whether Mr. Williams had advanced money to Zemindars on interest, or whether he had merely made them occasional advances, in order to enable them to settle on his lands, and bring them under cultivation. Mr. Williams would seem to have only done the latter, and Mr. Tucker holds him guiltless of any impropriety in the matter. Mr. Williams continues under suspension, pending the orders of the Governor-General on Mr. Tucker's report.

CHANGES IN THE ORDNANCE DEPARTMENT.—We understand that considerable changes are likely to take place in the ordnance department during the ensuing year. Colonel Lewis, deputy inspector-general of ordnance, Major Currie, agent for gun carriages, and Major Griffith, 1st class commissary of ordnance, are all, it is said, about to proceed to Europe in the spring, on twenty months' leave; and Major Hlathorn, assistant to the inspector-general of ordnance, has already left Calcutta for England, on leave under medical certificate. We believe Captain Welch, now at Saugor, will succeed to the latter appointment, when relieved by Captain Hunter, who is at present in charge of this arsenal. The removals consequent upon the vacancies likely to occur amongst the seniors of the department will change the positions of five or six officers in the department, and give an equal number of promotions to higher grades. This night, under ordinary circumstances, be considered a run of good luck; but on referring to the Army List we find that the officers at the head of the list of third class commissaries have been from seven to eight years without a permanent step of promotion, to which they are surely now well entitled. Rumour has it that neither Colonel Lewis nor Major Griffith contemplate a return to India.—Delhi Gazette.

A HINT FOR SENSATIONAL NOVEL WRITERS. A female whose name we have been unable to ascertain, and who is the wife of a gentleman residing in the Upper Provinces, some short time back applied to the commanding officer of the Royal Artillery, stationed at Barrackpore, for permission to enlist. She had disguised herself, was dressed like a gentleman, wore a gold watch and chain, and passed a few days with the men of the regiment, till a reply from head-quarters was received to a reference which had been made for permission to admit her. An unfavourable reply having been received, the commanding officer to whom the application was made interested himself on her behalf, and spoke to some official or other to try and do something for her. This request was complied with, but not long after that the would-be-soldier fell seriously ill, and as the medical gentleman who was called in to attend on her found it necessary to examine her chest, the examination was proceeded with, and it was then for the first time discovered the applicant was a female. The secret being out, the lady, it is said, made a full confession of the following facts:—That she had had a quarrel with her husband, and left the house and the country where she resided on horseback; that her horse dying on the way, she purchased another with some money which she had; that she travelled on till she came to a railway terminus—that she took the train and came to Calcutta; that all her money had been spent on the journey, and that she was left destitute. We have not yet been made acquainted with her fate.—Indian Daily News.

OUTRAGEOUS ATTEMPT.—The following particulars have reached us of a shameful and outrageous attempt on a lady on the night of Saturday last. The lady, who is the wife of the captain of a ship, retired as usual to rest in her apartments at Garden Reach. At about two in the morning she was disturbed by finding a man lying alongside of her in bed with his arm around her. The intentions of the scoundrel who had intruded were soon evident, but he was most vigorously resisted, and that so successfully that the lady overcame the man, had him down on his back, and kept him down until her cries for help were heard. When the man was seized and made over to the police he was discovered to be a grandson of the ex-King of Oude! He has been made over to the police of the 24-Pergunnahs, and will be tried before the magistrate of that division. We shall be careful to publish the result of the trial.—Indian Daily News, Oct. 19.

THE LANGUAGES.—G. G. O., No. 847 of 8th September, 1865, is so far modified as to admit of subalterns who have only passed the first standard in Hindustani, though otherwise qualified, assuming on probation the position of second doing-duty officer in native cavalry and infantry regiments, provided officers who have passed the P. H. examination are not available. They will not be permitted to draw staff pay until they have passed the second standard, but they will receive horse allowance, if attached to the infantry at 30 and if to the cavalry at 60 per mensem. Failing to pass the higher standard within a year after joining they will have to vacate. Captains of the staff corps or Indian forces, when other employment is not available for them, may, in special cases, and as a temporary measure, if qualified in the native languages, be nominated to the post of paid doing-duty officers with regiments of native cavalry and infantry.

A GANG OF PROFESSIONAL POISONERS.—Major Barrow, Officiating Inspector-General of Police, has returned from Sultanpore, where he succeeded in capturing eight out of a gang of twelve poisoners. From the confession of one of them (who was concerned in a late case of poisoning), it would appear that they have infested the province for the last seven years. The operations of this gang have not been confined to poisoning alone, but they have extended to dacoity. From the confessions of the informer a light has been thrown on the Oonao mysterious murders of 1861-62, as the deposition in some parts refers to them. It would appear that these murders, or some of them, were committed by this gang, who first drugged their victims, and then put a rope round their necks to mislead the police into the belief that the perpetrators were Thugs (Stranglers) not Thugs (Poisoners); the drug administered was powdered datoura (Stramonium), and it was generally given in the hooka or in sherbet. It is hoped that the apprehension of this gang, coupled with the conviction of four men of another recently captured in Baraiteh, will totally eradicate the crime from the province, as the confessions of these men have cleared up nearly every undiscovered case of this diabolical crime that has occurred since 1859.—Oudh Gazette.

LUCKNOW, Oct 9.—H.M.'s 46th Foot are still under canvas; but as the men are rapidly being restored to health, and comparatively few cases in hospital are now under treatment, it is very likely they will in the course of a few days return to barracks. The 5th Royal Irish Lancers and the artillery are doing well since out of camp. It is unknown when they return to cantonment. The native regiments are apparently enjoying remarkably good health. Almost annually changes and transfers are made in the Oudh Commission. Very strange that Captain J. S. Ross, of the 36th Madras regiment, has managed to remain at Gondah since the year 1858 up to the present time. To this officer it is a matter of interest, no doubt, to remain in one particular station for a period of seven years. Mr. Wilmot Lane, Deputy Commissioner, in consequence of ill-health, has, I learn, applied for a furlough to Europe. His locum tenens will very likely be Mr. P. Carnegie, of Fyzabad, who was once here in the same capacity; but, properly speaking, I consider it is the huq, or claim, of Mr. Hercules Ross, an officer of merit and considerable experience, in fact, one of the ablest officers in the commission.

MADRAS.

A RAILWAY TO PONDICHERRY.

A railway from Madras to Pondicherry will, we believe, be an accomplished fact within three years. In our issue of the 2nd instant we gave an account of the inauguration of the tramway between Arcot Junction, on the Madras Railway, and Conjevaram, one of the most sacred cities in Southern India. We are happy to be now able to announce that the negotiations with the Government of Pondicherry have terminated in a convention which reflects most creditably on the Governor, and cannot but prove highly satisfactory to all persons interested in the extension of the undertakings of the Indian Tramway Company.

The Indian Tramway Company have, as we observed on the 2nd instant, suffered great injustice at the hands of the Secretary of State, and been so unceremoniously deprived of the support originally promised them at the urgent recommendation of the Indian Governments as to be compelled to return to the public capital subscribed for the prosecution in various parts of India of such works as the Conjevaram Tramway. But the directors did not abandon their projects in toto, and the encouragement they have now received from the French Government at Pondicherry, so different from that which they had a right to expect from the Indian Secretary, will, we anticipate, result in their eventually carrying out all the objects for which the company was established.

The Pondicherry Government have fortunately a large annual surplus at their disposal, which hitherto has been absorbed by the Imperial Exchequer for want of any better investment. The power of disposing of this balance is reserved by the Imperial Government, but in effect the Government of Pondicherry are justly permitted to expend it when needed on that colony. Of this balance it has been proposed by the Colonial Government to grant £8,000 per annum for twenty years certain as a subsidy to the Indian Tramway Company for constructing a railway to connect Pondicherry with Belpur, Tindavanam, Carangooly, Chingleput, Wallajahbad, and Conjevaram, a distance in all of 123 miles. From Belpur Pondicherry draws almost all the grain, indigo, and salt, which form the chief products in which the colony is interested. The Government require that the gauge shall be five feet six inches, and as a proof of their implicit confidence in British honesty of purpose, they leave the company otherwise at liberty to carry out the work in the manner most satisfactory to themselves. The company will have to buy all the land that they may require in French territory, excepting such as may be owned by the Government; but to prevent the work being impeded by excessive demands for compensation, the Government will proclaim that the railway is a work of public utility, and, in accordance with French law, will have the value of all private lands the company need assessed by two committees, against whose final estimate there will be no appeal. The company will ballast this part of the line, excepting when Government bridges can be made available, and will construct at their own cost all the bridges which may be necessary. The Government leave the question of fares, speed, maintenance, and all other matters to the company, and after settling about the land required, will simply pay the £8,000 per annum for the twenty years succeeding the commencement of the line. From the British Government the company will probably solicit a further guarantee, but it is improbable that it will be granted, though the Secretary of State will doubtless be prepared to give the ballasted road and the bridges to the company free of expense. The terms of the convention between the company's local agents and the Pondicherry Government have been telegraphed direct to London and Paris, and as we neither anticipate opposition on the part of the French minister of foreign affairs, nor difficulty in raising the requisite capital in England, the survey of the route and the manufacture of the requisite materials should commence in January next. The district offers no engineering difficulties, the level is almost uniform, and by commencing at both ends simultaneously the work should be completed at the beginning of 1868. The narrow gauge of the Conjevaram tramway will before that date be substituted by the broad gauge, and the line will in all respects resemble the Great Trunk Indian Railways.—Madras Times, October 16.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SIR G. LE MARCHANT.—We hear it stated, with some amount of confidence, that Sir Gaspard Le Marchant will succeed Sir William Denison as Governor of Madras, retaining his present office of Commander-in-Chief. This will be similar to what was allowed in the case of the Marquis of Tweeddale. Sir Gaspard, it is believed, will enter into active civil and military measures when the change to which we have alluded takes place. He is allowed on all hands to possess immense application, and a very considerable amount of first-rate talent.—Nilgherry Excelsior, Oct. 12.

THE ORGANISATION OF THE NATIVE ARMY.—We are informed that all the papers connected with this subject, together with the necessary orders thereon by the Commander-in-Chief, were sent in to Government on Tuesday last, with an intimation of his Excellency's wish that the new system should come into operation from the 1st November. But, as these orders have yet to receive the approval of the several members of Government as well as of the Government of India, and then published and circulated to the army, is it possible that the new arrangement can have effect so soon?

MESSING OF NATIVE REGIMENTS.—We hear that the Commander-in-Chief has called for information as to whether the native regiments of cavalry and infantry, formed under the new organisation, would be disposed to adopt the messing system which prevails in Punjab corps, where cooks are sanctioned as part of the regimental establishment. Should the information called for be favourable to the messing system, we hear an application will be made to the Government, for sanction, for the entertainment of cooks in all the regiments in question, on the same scale as is allowed for Punjab regiments.

RAILWAY FARES.—We believe it is quite determined to raise the rates for first and second class passengers by the Madras Railway, and that the change will be introduced about the end of the present month. No consideration is to be allowed for children more than three years old. If we have been correctly informed, first class rates by day will be increased by 50 per cent., and by night nearly 100 per cent. Thus at present the fare to Bangalore is Rs. 13-9; hereafter it will be by day Rs. 20-5-6, and by night Rs. 24-13-10. To Salem instead of Rs. 12-15, the fare by day will be Rs. 19-6-6, and by night Rs. 23-11-6. To Coimbatore instead of Rs. 18-14, the traveller must pay Rs. 28-5, and to Bepore Rs. 38-2-6 instead of Rs. 25-7;—night travellers are only charged extra to Salem. These alterations will materially increase the cost of a trip to the Hills, and will, we apprehend, compel many people to put up with second class accommodation, the rates for which to Bangalore instead of Rs. 5-10-5 will be Rs. 6-12-6 by day and Rs. 7-14-7 by night; to Salem instead of Rs. 5-6-3 by day, Rs. 6-7-6, and by night Rs. 7-8-9; to Coimbatore Rs. 9-7, instead of Rs. 7-13-10,—and to Bepore Rs. 12-11-6 instead of Rs. 10-9-7. We doubt very much whether the receipts from first class passengers will be at all increased under the proposed arrangement, if indeed they do not materially decrease.

INTENDED TESTIMONIAL TO MR. THORNHILL.—The inhabitants of Masulipatam recently requested the permission of Government to give Mr. Thornhill, in consideration of the various favours received by them from that gentleman, after the late cyclone, a silver plate or jug, as a token of their love and esteem towards him. On the 27th September the following order was passed by Government on the application:—The Governor in Council regrets that the orders in force, which prohibit public officers in India from receiving presents, preclude his complying with the application made in the foregoing letter; but he wishes it to be understood that it is only on the ground that the rules of the service prohibit the acceptance of such presents that he feels it his duty to withhold his assent on the present occasion. The Government sympathise most fully in the feeling which has induced the inhabitants of Masulipatam to make the application, and which is alike honourable to Mr. Thornhill and to the community of Masulipatam.—Athenaeum and Daily News.

THE REMOVAL OF ARMY HEAD QUARTERS.—It is reported that the Army Head Quarters are to be removed from Madras, either to Bangalore or the Nilgherries, as our present Commander-in-Chief has an aversion to the plains. We (Athenaeum) see no objection to this in a military point of view. In fact the change might prove beneficial, since his Excellency has in these parts very few troops to command; but how about his seat in Council, and the emoluments connected therewith? Is he still to enjoy them, and yet not sit at the Council table? We fancied that his presence there was valuable, and consequently highly paid for, but in his absence the money might be better appropriated.

OFFICIAL CHANGES.—We learn that on the retirement of Mr. Rohde, the Inspector-General of Jails, which is expected to take place about the end of the year, the office will be conferred on a medical officer of some standing in the service, and that the salary will be reduced from Rs. 2,500, the amount drawn by the present incumbent, to Rs. 1,700 per month.

ANOTHER STEAMER ON SHORE.—We regret to learn that intelligence was received by telegram yesterday (Oct. 26) that the B. I. S. N. Co.'s steamer Arabia got on shore near Point Gordeware, close to Hope Island, yesterday morning. The steamer Burmah has gone to her assistance with boats, &c., from Coconada Roads.

STOCK AND SHARE MARKET (October 27).—The demand for money continues very active. The Bank on the 16th inst. advanced their rates of discount 2 per cent. all round; loans on Government securities are now unobtainable under the rate of 12 per cent. per annum. In Government paper but few transactions have been reported, and the market is exceedingly dull, rates ranging at 8 to 10½ per cent. for Five-and-a-Half per Cents, 2 to 2½ per cent. for Five per Cents, and 11½ to 12 dis. for Four per Cents. Bank of Madras shares, which were selling at 72 to 75 on the 16th, advanced to 80 to 82 per cent. prem. on the 20th. They declined to 77 on the 22nd, but have since recovered, and are now worth 80.

Exports (October 27).—Immediately after the departure of last night the price of Western Cotton has run up to Rs. 300 per catty by speculative purchases for resale in Madras, but as legitimate buyers held back the excitement soon subsided, and the price rapidly fell to Rs. 250 to Rs. 255, at which sales have been made. There is but little available for immediate delivery. At Taticorin the price of Innerveley Cotton similarly advanced to Rs. 260 per catty, but the price has since declined to Rs. 240, at which figure no business is reported. No Coffee is offering here. Hides, Skins, and Horns are going forward on native account, prices being too high to admit of European firms touching them. In 1860, a request on the excitement in the cotton trade, is neglected, and but little is coming forward. Seeds on the coast are slightly weaker, the demand having declined. A few small purchases of Sugar at Rs. 30 to 33 have resulted from the improving advices from the home market. Red Wood is scarce; the demand on native account is active. At Cochin native shippers continue to buy up for shipment to Bombay all the Coconut Oil offering at about Rs. 106 to Rs. 107 per catty, equal to £14. 10s. f. o. b. ex foreign exchange. The exports to Europe from the 1st August to date amount to only one-third of the exports during the same period last year.

BOMBAY.

STANLEY v. BUSHE.
"AUDI ALTERAM PARTEM."

[Communicated.]

During the month of February last a Court of Inquiry was ordered to assemble at Mhow, for the purpose of investigating certain complaints, or charges, which were made by Captain Bushe, of the 15th Regiment Bombay N.I., against his commanding officer, Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley.

Many ex parte statements have appeared in various Indian journals, and freely circulated, to the detriment of the Lieutenant-Colonel's character, but as the case was under investigation and was subsequently decided by the commander of the Bombay forces, Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley did not deem it correct to take notice of anonymous scribbles; but as he has been removed from the command of his regiment, we consider it to be but rendering simple justice to him to publish the following authenticated version of all the circumstances of the case.

The charges against Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley were:—1st. For using violent and abusive language, when on a brigade parade, on the 25th January, 1865, to Captain Bushe. 2ndly. For having, on a brigade parade, on the 11th January, 1865, attacked, cut, and stabbed with his sword, a private of the regiment under his command.

On hearing the nature of these charges, on the 1st February, 1865, Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley was informed for the first time that he had ever given Captain Bushe cause for offence, or that any man under his command had ever received an injury at his hands. Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley is most confident that he did not make use of any abusive expressions to Captain Bushe as asserted; but let it be supposed that his statements are not altogether correct on this point, the fact that Captain Bushe should have allowed five days to elapse without taking the slightest notice of the alleged insult offered, but, on the contrary, met the Lieutenant-Colonel on friendly terms during the four succeeding days at the mess and billiard table, is beyond all comprehension. The Court of Inquiry assembled about the 24th February, or one month after the alleged violent and abusive language had been used, during which time Captain Bushe had not once stated what the exact expressions were by which he felt himself aggrieved.

On the first day's sitting of the Court of Inquiry, Captain Bushe distinctly stated before the court that he made no complaints against Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley, and when told that he had made complaints he said he had no wish to make them, and that he would withdraw the allegation about the wounding of the sepoy, if the Lieutenant-Colonel would promise not to prefer charges afterwards against him for making a false statement, and that he might make use of his letter on a subsequent occasion if necessary, which contained the allegations. He was told that the withdrawal of his accusations must be unconditional. He then asked to be allowed until the following day before giving his answer, when, as a matter of course, he said he would proceed in the matter and endeavour to prove his statements. He was asked whether he was prepared to state the nature of the abusive language of which he complained, as a long time had elapsed, and he had as yet failed to do so, while Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley was in profound ignorance of having given expression to any language which could possibly be called abusive towards the captain. He declined to state what the language was, but requested to be allowed to call witnesses to prove it. Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley objected to this mode of procedure, which objection was, however, over-ruled by the Court, on the score that Captain Bushe was not called upon to criminate himself! The Articles of War set forth, under the head of "Redress of Wrongs," that "If any officer shall think himself wronged by his commanding officer, and shall, upon due application made to him, not receive the redress to which he may consider himself to be entitled, he may complain, &c., &c.," but Captain Bushe had never on any occasion appealed to Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley as having a grievance!

Officers at Poona and elsewhere were written to for their statements of the case. Another month passed away before their statements were received, when, out of five or six, only one officer affirmed that the Lieutenant-Colonel had expressed himself in an abusive manner to Captain Bushe on the parade of the 25th January. The Court of Inquiry re-assembled, the statements of the absentees were read out, and the proceedings were stated to be closed. The Lieutenant-Colonel went on leave for a few days, during which time the Court assembled again (about the 27th March), and Captain Bushe, with a full knowledge of the nature of the statements which had been received, was asked whether he could not then inform the Court in regard to the matter of the language which had formed the subject of complaint against the Lieutenant-Colonel. This proceeding took place, it will be observed, rather more than two months after the alleged occurrence. Captain Bushe then shaped his answer so as to coincide somewhat with the one statement which had been handed in by Lieut. Goad, of the 72nd Highlanders. Whatever answer Captain Bushe did give on that occasion, it was never made known to Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley. It seems to be altogether out of the question that Captain Bushe could possibly have been addressed by the Lieutenant-Colonel in the abusive terms set forth by Lieutenant Goad; indeed it was widely known in Mhow that Captain Bushe had not heard a word of abuse from the lips of his commanding officer as addressed to himself. We should be sorry to pay any officer so bad a compliment, or rather insult him by asserting that he could have been assailed in the language described ("Captain Bushe, d— your eyes, where the hell have you sent the Ilavildars to,") without taking notice of it on the very first opportunity after the parade. Had these words been uttered Capt. Bushe could not have failed to have heard them, as the Lieutenant-Colonel was not half a dozen yards from him at the time he is said to have uttered the expression we have quoted. The Adjutant, Lieutenant Thomson, of the 72nd Highlanders, was within a horse's length of Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley at this time, and when called upon for his statement said he did not hear the abuse, although much closer that Lieutenant Goad could possibly have been, but he said he thought he heard Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley say, "D— n your eyes" to some one, he could not say to whom. All that Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley did say to Captain Bushe on the occasion of dressing the line on the Brigade parade of the 25th January was, on receiving an answer touching the dressing, viz., "All right," "All right! nothing can be more wrong," and then he completed what ought to have been done by Captain Bushe some time before. Colonel Payn, it seems, had drawn Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley's attention to the fact that his regiment was spoiling the whole line, and asked who was the second in command, whose duty it was to dress the line. Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley admits that he spoke in a quick and hasty tone of voice in consequence of this blundering on the right, and any commanding officer who entertained the slightest feeling for the credit of his regiment would unquestionably have done the same under similar circumstances. One point is as clear as noonday, that Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley was never allowed an opportunity of making the amende, even supposing he had used the language of which he was accused. For four days after the occurrence as stated, (and we consider that this fact bears repetition) Captain Bushe met his commanding officer when off duty apparently on the best of terms, never once intimating by word or deed that his feelings had in any way been wounded by him.

With reference to the parade of the 11th January, 1865, on which occasion Lieut.-Col. Stanley was accused of wounding by his sword a sepoy in the ranks, it seems that the first hint the Lieut.-Col. received of this alleged affair was on the 30th January (or 19 days after the occurrence was rumoured to have taken place), from the Major of the regiment, who then gave information that Captain Bushe intended to prefer a charge founded on the gossip of camp only.

It would seem that when the 15th Regiment was advancing in line on the field day of the 11th January many of the left centre company became crowded, crushed, as it were, together. Lieut.-Colonel Stanley rode up to this disordered company, and with his sword hit the musket of a man who had not brought it to the shoulder on the word "halt." Something extraordinary must have occurred to have prompted the Lieut.-Colonel to act as rapidly as he did, for it cannot be credited by men of sound minds that any other motive prompted him than the desire to correct a serious blunder or to prevent mischief.

The nature of the evidence in this matter must not be overlooked. We will speak first of Lieutenant Berthon. When Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley assumed the command of the regiment, in 1864, a stranger to every one in the regiment, Lieutenant Berthon was holding the post of adjutant. His unfitness for the performance of the duties of that office soon became apparent, and he was ordered by the Commander-in-Chief to resign it. Ever after the ex-adjutant regarded the Lieutenant-Colonel as his bitter enemy. On the 12th of January, 1865, the day after the parade in question, Lieutenant Berthon presented himself, he stated, at the regimental hospital, for what reason it is not known; and while in conversation with Dr. Thorold, the regimental surgeon, a report was made by the native assistant to the effect that a sepoy had been admitted the evening before wounded by the bayonet of a comrade. The medical officer then, it appears, interrogated the man, when he again stated that he had been wounded by a bayonet. The said wound was so trifling that no medical treatment was deemed necessary; a piece of wet cloth was ordered to be applied to it; the sepoy was allowed to eat his usual daily food, and in the course of two or three days he returned to his work. Lieutenant Berthon, on hearing the report of the assistant, said to the medical officer that perhaps the man had been wounded by Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley's sword, for he saw the Lieutenant-Colonel on the preceding day when on parade "strike a man's musket with his sword." On the cross-examination of Lieutenant Berthon the above was elicited, and he admitted that he originated the story about the man having been wounded by Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley's sword. Thus the case was furnished, and a molehill gradually became a mountain. Not an officer in the regiment attempted to speak to the Lieutenant-Colonel on the subject of the report which was being circulated against him. It is but due to Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley to mention the relative positions which existed between Lieutenant Berthon and himself since he assumed the command of the 15th Regiment, as it furnishes matter for all who are in the habit of studying "cause and effect."

Doctor Thorold next appears as a witness. He at once corroborated Lieutenant Berthon's evidence about the sepoy having been admitted into hospital wounded by a bayonet; but on the following day he again appeared before the Court of Inquiry, and intimated his wish to make an alteration in regard to his previous day's evidence; the change was to the effect that he had had conversation with his hospital assistants, who were about to appear as witnesses, from whom he learned that they intended to say the sepoy had stated he had been wounded by a sword. The doctor at once adopted their views! His amended evidence was, that he perhaps mistook the nature of the hospital assistant's report on the morning of the 12th January, and that very likely they reported the man to have been admitted wounded by a sword, but he might have mistaken "sword" for "sungeen," the words being, he said, so similar in sound! The report, it must be known, was made in England by a man who speaks English well. Comment is unnecessary.

The statement of the sepoy himself before the Court of Inquiry is very difficult to be understood. As for the poor fellow having ever entertained any sense of wrong perpetrated towards him by the Lieutenant-Colonel, that idea is instantly disabused by the fact of his bringing his brother shortly after the alleged occurrence before the Lieutenant-Colonel for enlistment into the 15th Regiment. He never made any complaint to his company officer, nor did his company officer ever hint as much to the Lieutenant-Colonel, that any man had ever felt aggrieved by an act of his on any occasion. After a lapse of seven weeks (and when Captain Bushe discovered that his commission depended upon the nature of the evidence which he could adduce), this sepoy is called into court by him in support of the charges which he had preferred.

The sepoy, when called into court, stated that, in the first instance, he did say he had been wounded by a bayonet, but at that time he was confused, and knew not what he was saying; that he subsequently, when his senses returned, stated that he had been wounded by the sword of the commanding officer on parade. It seems impossible to attach credibility to this evidence, for after the man was wounded, as he stated, on parade, he must have remained there for about two hours, marching across country and doubling at the charge. It is simply a physical impossibility that any man could have done so, equipped in field service order, his great coat strapped on his back. Nevertheless, he sets forth that, after the regiment was dismissed on its private parade ground, he went to his lines, opened his clothes, and, on seeing much blood, fainted, saturating the ground with blood where he fell. On fainting he was taken to the hospital, without changing his clothes. The shirt and tunic, which he had worn throughout the day, were then taken off in the hospital; no mark of blood was seen on the tunic by any one, and only a very small spot on the shirt. Importance has been attached to these most improbable statements. Moreover, they were acted upon, but not one word of the evidence was taken on oath, consequently the whole of the proceedings of the Court of Inquiry are not worth a rush as judicial documents. Seven weeks elapsed before any evidence was taken in the matter. Captain Bushe, on gossip alone, made his attacks on Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley. Of his own knowledge he knew nothing, either as regards the abusive language, or the alleged assault on the sepoy. He trusted entirely to others to furnish proof in support of his allegations.

It will be observed that Lieut. Goad came forward nobly to support his friend Captain Bushe. As to the "language" matters were not minced in any way. On the brigade parade of the 11th January, although no one of the 15th Regt. saw him, he was, he stated, close to Lieut.-Colonel Stanley when a sepoy was attacked and "cut across the shoulder" by the Lieut.-Colonel's sword! Now the sepoy was not touched on the shoulder. Had such been the case it would have been susceptible of the clearest proof. He then went on to say that the conduct of the Lieut.-Colonel towards the sepoy was such as would occasion "grievous bodily harm;" also that he heard the Colonel say, "I wish my sword were sharp enough, and I would cut the — in two," or words to that effect. But Lieut. Iredell, the adjutant, and Lieut. Berthon, the quartermaster of the 15th Regiment, were close to Lieut.-Colonel Stanley on this occasion; the former affirmed that he did not hear the Lieut.-Colonel make use of any expression, and the latter before the Court of Inquiry said that he heard the words "D—n sword," no more. These two officers were respectively within two and six horses' lengths of the Colonel, when he rode up to the disordered company, as above described. Neither of them saw Lieutenant Goad on that occasion, which, there is little doubt, they must have done had he been, as he affirmed, close to Colonel Stanley. The Colonel must also have seen him. But wherever Lieutenant Goad happened to be he did not fail to see and hear a great deal more than those who were closer at hand. It is indeed difficult to accept such statements with any degree of gravity.—Delhi Gazette.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A SHIPMASTER'S GRIEVANCE.—The shipmasters in the harbour of Bombay are under the impression that they are very badly used by the powers that be who administer justice in the police-court here. They have held several meetings on board one of the ships in harbour to protest against what they imagine to be a tendency in the police decisions to destroy discipline in their vessels. Every one knows that sailors everywhere are a rough and unmanageable class of men, and that when in port they are frequently getting into trouble, either with their officers or through the over-liberal use of their proverbial beverage. It is quite as generally admitted that the master of a vessel can, and often does, intentionally or through infirmity of temper and character make the seaman's position very uncomfortable on board. However, the shipmasters in the harbour of Bombay do not seem to have very much to complain of in reference to the support they have received from the police-court in the maintenance of discipline in their ships. Out of 270 cases which came before the police-court during the last five months, 240 have been decided in their favour, and not much over two dozen have been dismissed. In several of the cases that were brought before the court, the masters were proved to have been guilty of gross cruelty to one or more of their men, and were punished accordingly. In two or three other cases, masters have given orders which the men refused to obey, and on their being brought before the magistrate charged with refusing to obey lawful commands, the magistrate held that the captain had exceeded his duty in issuing such commands, and dismissed the case. A number of shipmasters, taking alarm at this assertion of the magisterial authority to protect seamen from the hard usages of some of the members of their profession, accordingly held several meetings, and finally resolved to memorialise the Governor in Council and to put themselves in communication with the Board of Trade on the subject. It is unfortunate for them that a very considerable difference of opinion exists among masters of vessels themselves as to some of the very decisions put forward in support of their memorial.—Bombay Gazette.

CAPTAIN WEBBE, of the invalid establishment, was found dead in his bed, at Gorpore, on Sunday morning last. An inquest was held on his remains, presided over by Major Campbell, 22nd Regt. N.I., when a verdict was returned "found dead in his bungalow." His remains were interred the same evening in the Protestant cemetery, with the military honours due to his rank.—Poona Observer.

DEATH OF CONDUCTOR HODGSON.—We regret to announce the death on Saturday night or early on Sunday morning of Conductor Hodgson, of the Sappers and Miners. The deceased was under arrest, and was to have been tried by court-martial in a few days for some trivial military offence.—Poona Observer.

CHINA & JAPAN.

The Overland China Mail of Oct. 14 contains the following:—

"The political news of the past fortnight is not precisely nil, but almost entirely so, from the absence of any occurrence either in China or Japan likely seriously to affect the existing relations of these empires with Western nations, or indicative of any movement of importance in the internal life of the one or the other.

"Repeated acts of piracy along the coast, between this port and Shanghai, have given rise to a very strong feeling among the shipping and mercantile community in China that unless something very decided is at once effected by the combined action of the respective Governments they will be obliged in self-defence to arm every ship and lancha engaged in the coasting trade, and effect for themselves what the authorities will not do for them.

"Pekin, we are happy to be able to say, is not in the hands of the rebels. What a wonderful lot of speculations and suggestions we shall find in the columns of the English newspapers consequent on the receipt in London of that lying telegram! We have not heard, however, that it had any effect on the markets. From Manila we have a report of a destructive hurricane which prevailed there on the 26th and 27th ult. At Canton everything is quiet."

CEYLON.

THE FORTNIGHT.

The summary of the Colombo Observer of Oct. 30 contains the following:—

Since our last the rains of the North-East monsoon have fallen so heavily and so continuously that but little could possibly be done in the preparation and shipment of coffee. Legislation has progressed rapidly since our last. The Governor has given his formal assent to the following Bills:—Ordinance amending Land Registration Ordinance, Loan Board Ordinance, Ordinance relating to the Fraudulent Marking of Merchandise, Masters Attendants' Ordinance, Legal Age of Majority Ordinance, Ordinance amending Marriage Ordinance, Ordinance amending Stamp Ordinance, 1861, Ordinance relating to the Ceylon Railway.

The Labour Ordinance, after being fully discussed and considerably amended in committee, was read a third time, and passed. It will probably receive the Governor's assent at the next sitting, but there is a suspending clause, and it will not come into operation until her Majesty's assent is proclaimed. If the Secretary of State for India, to whom the Bill is to be submitted, offers no objection, the law will probably come into operation in March of next year. The labour laws of Ceylon, generally simple and fair towards employer and employed, will then be found in one short ordinance.

Political discussion has been carried on with much animation during the fortnight, and we regret to say that it has, between two of the combatants, passed from the domain of argument to that of brute violence. Mr. Cruwell, the assailant, is a German born; Mr. Lorenz, the other party to the row, is the son of a Prussian, who passed from the military service of the Dutch in Ceylon into the civil service of the English Government. [The origin of the quarrel was an article in the Ceylon Examiner. Mr. Cruwell horsewhipped Mr. Lorenz in his own office.]

Public meetings, more or less in connection with the League, or the objects it has in view, have been held at Jaffna and Caltura. A list of subscriptions annexed to the report of the Jaffna meeting in the Freeman amounts to £26.

The railway, the works of which must have been severely tried by the recent excessive rains, is quietly progressing. The section open has earned regularly about £26 a day, the total from the 2nd to the 25th of October being £630. This is at the rate of more than £800 a month, a very fair return, considering that the running commenced in the interval between the two coffee crops.

The Oriental Hotels Company's building operations are proceeding rapidly at Galle, under the supervision of the agents, Messrs. Vanderspar and Co., and the architect, Mr. J. F. Churchill. The great steam port will shortly have one pressing want supplied in a first-class hotel.

A meeting has been held in Colombo for the purpose of establishing a Sailors' Home. The project is meeting with general and liberal support, the subscriptions during the week which it has been before the public being close on £370.

BURMAH.

CATTLE DISEASE AT RANGOON.

[Extract from Diary of Captain Horace Browne, D.C.]

"RANGOON, July 24 to 27, 1865.

"The cattle murrain appears now to be abating at Syriam and in its neighbourhood; I have only been able to find one sick bullock and two sick buffaloes. The bullock was taken ill in the evening, the first symptoms being giddiness and trembling. I saw it the next morning: it was then lying on its side, apparently insensible, breathing heavily; a white watery discharge was flowing copiously from its nostrils; every few minutes a spasmodic action would affect all the muscles of the body. The legs were stretched rigidly out, and the animal was apparently in great pain. In the intervals between the spasms the animal ground its teeth. It remained in this state till the evening, when it died. The owner administered to it a decoction of mango leaves and salt, and a collyrium of the usual ingredients had been applied to its eyes. This type of disease is one which many bullocks have died of, but it seldom attacks buffaloes.

"One of the buffaloes at Bogyooop was suffering from the form of disease which has carried off so many of them this year. I saw the animal in the early morning; it had been attacked the night before, the attack commencing as usual with a hoarse cough. The animal then became stupid and downcast, and after that the diarrhoea commenced. When I saw it, it did not appear to be an unpractised eye to be suffering any great pain, but it must have been affected in some way, as it allowed me to go close up to it. The purging was still going on, but no blood had yet made its appearance, and there was therefore a hope that it might recover. The animal was standing up, it would not eat, but drank water freely. The owner had wisely separated it from the herd, and placed it under a tree in the enclosure of a Kyoung; he would not attempt any remedies, but left the animal to its fate.

"The other buffalo was suffering from another form of disease, for which the Burmans did not appear able to invent a name. The animal was standing still in its stable; every now and then a spasmodic action of the muscles of the head and forequarters would take place; this and total loss of appetite appeared to be the only symptoms of the disease. One of the bystanders having suggested a remedy, it was at once prepared and administered by the owner. He plucked a few handsfull of the urena lobata, placed it in a mortar, and ground the juice out of it. He mixed some salt with the juice, and then administered it as a drench to the buffalo. The murrain from which such numbers have died this year is a kind of dysentery, but a very small proportion of the animals which are attacked recover. When the discharge becomes mixed with the blood the animal is considered past hope. The medicines which have been applied are numerous, but none of them seem to have been successful. The proportion of recoveries among the animals which are not treated appear to be just the same as among those which are treated. Buffaloes which have been recently brought into the district either from Tenasserim or Upper Pegu appear to have been much more subject to be attacked by the murrain than those which have been bred in the country. I have been told of instances where men from this part of the country have bought half a dozen or more buffaloes at Kankareet or Moulmein, and have lost every one of them by disease before reaching their houses.

"Before the murrain visits a certain locality the buffaloes are said to have a presentiment of what is coming. During the night, without any apparent cause, all the buffaloes of the village will get into a state of great excitement, rush madly about their pens, and try to get loose. The next day the murrain will break out among them. This is singular, but it has been told to me by so many different people that there must be some truth in it."

THE REORGANISATION OF THE MADRAS ARMY.

No. 377.—Under the authority of the Govt. of India, H.E. the Gov. in Council directs that the system of organisation, now in force in Bengal and Bombay, be introduced into the native army of this Presy. from Nov. 1.

The future estab. of officers for regts. of native cav. and inf. will be as below specified, and the staff salaries to be drawn by the several officers serving with native regts. under the new organisation is shown opposite their respective positions:—

Cavalry Regiments—Staff Salary per Mensem.

Commandant	Rs. 700
Second in command also commanding a squadron	300
Senior squadron officer	210
Adjutant	250
Doing duty officer	150

NOTE.—The 2nd in comd. and squad. officers will each draw Rs. 40 per mensem, for payment of their respective squads. and for the repair of arms and accoutrements.

The adjt. will also draw Rs. 50, office allowance.

The doing duty officer, who will perform any duties that may be assigned to him, such as would devolve upon a qrmr., &c., will draw also Rs. 30 per mensem, for writer and stationery.

Comdts. are to maintain three chargers, all other officers two only.

Inf. Regiments—Staff Salary per Mensem.

Senior wing commandant	270
Junior do.	230
Adjutant	200
Quartermaster	150
Doing duty officer	100

NOTE.—The two wing comdts. will each draw also Rs. 80 per mensem, or Rs. 20 per company, for the payment and repair of arms and accoutrements of companies of their respective wings.

The adjt. will also draw Rs. 50, office allowance.

All inf. officers are to maintain one charger.

The staff salaries now authorised are to be drawn in addition to staff corps pay only.

Officers who, by the change of system, are deprived of the command allowance of troops and companies, without obtaining any staff salary, will be allowed compensation for the loss, at the rate of Rs. 30 per mensem, while in the actual performance of duty with regts.

The regulations respecting "Interpreters," published in G.O.G. No. 755, of Aug. 3, 1865 (G.O.G. No. 298, dated Aug. 18, 1865), will come into operation simultaneously with the introduction of the new organisation, viz., from Nov. 1, 1865.

Officers appt. to native corps under the organisation now ordered, will take rank regimentally, according to their standing in the army. But in all cases, the comdt. in virtue of his appt. will command the regt., and the 2nd in command will rank next in the corp, independently of army rank.

The Govt. of India in sanctioning the introduction of the new organisation, as respects the position and duties of both European and native officers in the cavalry and infantry of the Madras army, has intimated that it is considered advisable to defer for the present changing the Madras cavalry into Silladar horse. No change is therefore intended in respect to the pay of the men in the cavalry, or in the system under which they are armed and clothed, or as to the provision, feeding, &c., of horses or supply and repair of saddlery. The only change in this branch at present will be similar to that made in the infantry, viz., that native officers shall command the troops, and European officers take the duties of squadron officers, &c., under the new organisation. In view, however, to the early introduction of the Silladar system, the enlistment of recruits for the cavalry will at once cease.

The existing arrangements for the supply and repair of saddles will remain as at present until further orders. For the renewal and repair of all stable gear and for the shoeing of horses an allowance of two rupees per horse per mensem will be granted, from which two annas will be payable to the vet. surg. for supplying country medicines, &c.

H.E. the C. in C. will have the goodness to issue the necessary subsidiary orders for carrying out the new arrangements.

One month's priv. leave has been granted to Mr. W. F. Donaghue, supervisor, D.P.W., Shealli Taluq. Tanjore district, from the date he avails himself of it, under G.O., Feb. 3, 1867, No. 29.

The priv. leave granted to Mr. J. George, asst. engr., Coimbatore range, Coimbatore district, is extended for another month, under the financial resolution of the Govt. of India, dated July 31, 1863, No. 3,478.

THE MADRAS ARMY.

The Gov. in Council has already performed the mournful task of notifying to the army that the "regular system," under which the Madras Army was raised, disciplined, and won all its distinctions, will cease to exist in that army from Nov. 1 next. H.E. has exerted his utmost influence to avert such a calamity befalling the glorious Madras Army, whose deeds of valour at all times, and praiseworthy stanchness during the trying period of the mutiny, are known wherever the English have planted a flag; but it is with deep regret and humiliation that H.E. is forced to confess that his efforts were futile, and that this radical and mischievous change is to be introduced into the Madras army in direct opposition to the opinions of himself and his learned colleagues in Council.

H.E. in Council, while regretting the State necessity which has compelled the introduction of the "New Organisation," feels it due to the officers of the Madras army to state here, that the system to be introduced must not be considered as a reflection on their military administrative abilities or loyalty (as placing the command of companies in the hands of the native officers would make it appear), but as the natural result of the impecuniosity of the Government. Rice is dear, and the exchequer of the nation is low; and the Government, not being able to afford to keep up a regular army with a sufficient complement of European officers, have been obliged to resort to a cheap sham, and this will be called, the "New Organisation." The army will be good enough to understand that it is purely on the grounds of cheapness, and not on that of improved efficiency, that the so-called irregular system has been introduced into what once was, but which no more will be, the fine and glorious Madras Army.

Those officers who have faithfully served this Government for a long period of years, and who will now be thrown out of employment, have the deepest sympathy of H.E., and it grieves him much that it is completely out of his power to alleviate their condition. H.E. would advise all unpassed officers to work at Hindoostanee and pass, as Sir C. Wood has decided that a European officer is not fit to command native troops unless he has previously qualified himself by construing the silly nonsense of the Char dewesh. Instructions will be issued to the Presidency Examining Committee not to be too hard on old officers. H.E. desires as a fitting mark of respect that officers wear the usual military mourning for a month from the 1st November, and thus testify their sorrow for the Regular system, which now has ceased to exist in the Indian army.

ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.

The objects of this Company are the acquisition and working of Coffee Estates in Ceylon, and the selling of their produce.

The Directors have purchased three valuable Coffee Estates, situated in the Matella District, known as Beredewelle, Delagahoya, and Oodasgeria. The Contract may be seen at the Office of Messrs. Courtenay and Croome, the Company's Solicitor.

These Estates contain about 1,010 acres. 614 acres are planted—552 are in full bearing, and the remainder will be so next year. Fifty-five acres are in guinea grass, for cattle. 200 acres of very fine forest land are to be planted this year, which will leave about 140 acres to be brought into cultivation at a later period.

The crop for the year 1865-66, and which is now partly picked, is estimated at between 5,000 and 5,500 cwt., and as the vendor bears all expenses of up keep to the 30th June last, 5,000 cwt. should give a net profit available for dividend and reserve fund of more than £10,000.

When the whole acreage, exclusive of the 140 acres is in full bearing, the estimated profit available for dividend would, at present prices, amount to about £12,000, or at the rate of £20 per cent. per annum on the entire capital.

During the period of the Guarantee, the Directors will place to a reserve fund all profits beyond £12 per cent. per annum on the paid-up capital; at the expiration of that period this fund will be distributed pro rata amongst the then holders of shares to which the guarantee extends.

The Ceylon Coffee Estates Company's success shows what large profits are derivable from Coffee Cultivation. The Directors of that Company, which has a capital of £60,000, out of the profits on their first year's operations, paid a dividend of £10 per cent. and carried to the reserve fund £1,757. 5s., equal to about £8 per cent. more.

Prospectuses and Forms of Application for Shares may be obtained at the Offices of the Company, and of the Bankers, Brokers, and Solicitors, where the Contract for Purchase may be seen.

Copies of the Memorandum and Articles of Association can be had at the Offices of the Solicitors, or at the Temporary Offices of the Company. Copies will be forwarded by post without charge, on Application to the Secretary.

THE MATELLA COFFEE ESTATES COMPANY OF CEYLON (LIMITED).

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that the SHARE LIST of this Company will be CLOSED on WEDNESDAY NEXT, November 29th.—By order,

EXPANDING SADDLE.

GIBSON AND COMPANY

Respectfully invite the attention of MILITARY MEN, EQUESTRIANS, and OWNERS OF HORSES, to their Newly-Invented EXPANDING SADDLE, which admits of ready adjustment to the size of any horse, creating a secure and easy seat without the slightest inconvenience to either horse or rider. The principle of EXPANSION and CONTRACTION comprises a simple arrangement of mechanism within the saddle so perfect, that by merely turning a screw the pad is proportioned to the size and form of the animal, on which it firmly rests with a uniform pressure, and is securely retained in its position by means of an ordinary girth.

This invention has obtained the approval and distinguished patronage of HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF, and from the very favourable opinions expressed by competent judges, and all who have had an opportunity of testing its merits, there is no doubt it will come into general use; indeed, its success is already established.

THE NEW THEORY IN RIFLES.

Lieutenant James Forsyth, in his excellent work, "The Sporting Rifle, &c.," first promulgated the startling theory that Rifles could be so constructed as to lessen the elevation by increasing the charge of powder. This theory, which the Advertiser has proven to be correct, alters the whole position of Rifles in favour of the sportsman. Formerly, with a high trajectory, the bullet which would have hit a tiger in a vital part at 100 yards, would pass over his back at 25 or 50 yards. By the new system, as elaborated and perfected in DOUGALL'S LOCKFAST BRECHLOADERS, there is a point-blank range to 150 yards, combined with a velocity and smashing power hitherto unknown.—(See TIMES, 11th October, 1864.) No other Rifle possesses the same advantages.

Quintessence of Jamaica Ginger and Camomile.

GINGER has long been deservedly known as an excellent domestic medicine, and, combined with camomile, it is the most efficient stomachic tonic known, for while the ginger relieves the stomach from distension and flatulency, arising from impaired digestion, the camomile strengthens the coats of the stomach, and by that means gives it a healthy and invigorating tone. So highly concentrated is this preparation, it is unimpaired by age or climate, and well adapted for exportation. In Gout, Spasms, Dysentery, Cholera, or those complaints incidental to tropical climates, it is invaluable, as in numerous cases a dose or two has checked and frequently cured most alarming attacks. No family should be without it. Sold in half-pints, quarter-pints, and one-eighth pints.

Agreeable Sedilitz Powder, in one bottle, protected by a case, with measure and spoon included. The advantage of this preparation is the perfect combination of the solid ingredients of the Sedilitz Spring in one compound powder.

It is very cooling and refreshing, well adapted for exportation, or travellers by land or sea.

Aromatic Tincture of Quinine.—For the prevention of Fever, Intermittent or Remittent Ague, and other effects of Malaria.

No person exposed to the influence or predisposing cause of Fevers should be without it, for if taken in small doses daily the system will become so thoroughly impregnated with its principles as to be rendered proof against all attacks of Contagion or Malaria.—Sold in pints, half-pints, and quarter-pints.

MRS. JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTHING SYRUP, FOR CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH.

This infallible remedy has preserved hundreds of children when thought past recovery from convulsions arising from painful dentition. As soon as the Syrup is rubbed on the gums the child will be relieved, the gums cooled, and the inflammation reduced. It is as innocent as efficacious, tending to produce the teeth with ease; and so pleasant, that no child will refuse to let its gums be rubbed with it. When infants are at the age of four months, the Syrup should be rubbed on the gums, and parents should never be without the Syrup in the nursery where there are young children; for, if a child wakes in the night with pains in the gums, the Syrup immediately gives ease, thereby preventing convulsions, fevers, &c. The great success of this medicine during the last twenty-five years has induced unprincipled persons to imitate it, under the name of American Soothing Syrup, and copying parts of Mrs. Johnson's Bills, &c. Parents will, therefore, be very particular to ask for JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTHING SYRUP, and to notice that the names of BARCLAY and SONS, 95, Farringdon-street, London (to whom Mrs. Johnson has sold the recipe), are on the stamp affixed to each bottle.
Sold by all chemists and medicine vendors.

Earl RUSSELL sent to the College of Physicians a communication received by him from Manila (where Cholera had been raging fearfully), to the effect, that, of all remedies tried, Chlorodyne was the most effective.—See Brit. Med. J., Dec. 31, 1864.

CHLORODYNE (TOWLE'S). Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhea, Cramp, Ague, Consumption, Asthma, Cough, Colds, Bronchitis, Sea Sickness, &c., immediately relieved by a dose of TOWLE'S CHLORODYNE, which is admitted to be a most wonderful and valuable medicine, and preferred by the profession for its known composition and moderate price.

IMPORTANT TO SHIPPERS AND EMIGRANTS.

Liverpool, Feb. 22nd, 1864. Ship Gertrude.
Mr. TOWER.—Sir,—Having recently arrived from Bombay, and during our stay there myself and crew being violently attacked with dysentery, so general in India, Captain Clements, of the ship Marseilles, lying near us, seeing the condition we were in, kindly sent a bottle of your Chlorodyne from which myself and crew found immediate relief; and during the voyage home proved a most effective and valuable medicine. Having been instrumental in saving my own life and that of others, we feel it a duty and pleasure to send this statement of facts, to make what use of you think proper, believing that no vessel ought to leave port without a good supply in her medicine chest.

ANILINE DYES.—"I shall commence my observations on dyeing, by referring especially to the remarkable and beautiful colours derived from coal tar, the introduction of which into this art may be said to constitute the chief distinction, as far as dyeing is concerned, between the present and the former Exhibition, creating, in fact, a new era in the tinctorial art. Coal tar colours deserve attention for their power, as well as for the facility with which they may be applied, for one grain will deeply tint half a gallon of water, and little or no skill is required for their application."—Vide Report by Crace Calvert, Esq., F.R.S., Ph.D., Honorary Professor of Chemistry.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

WE have received our usual files of papers from Bombay to the 13th of November, and Calcutta, via Bombay, to the 7th of that month.

In Bengal the heat and drought which caused so much apprehension had only just terminated, and although actual famine was considered to have been averted, the season was expected to prove severe. The reports of peace with Bhootan, which the telegraph has since told us is concluded, were beginning to assume an authoritative form. It was known that the Durm and Deb Rajahs have frequently made proposals of peace, and it was considered not improbable that, seeing the magnitude of our preparations, they were making these overtures with more sincerity than formerly. Two prisoners (a sepoy and a dhoby) had already been given up, and the restoration of the Bengali captives, which we have been demanding for the last ten years, was also guaranteed. It appears that the Tongsoo Penlow was still the obstacle, and he was said to be holding his position with great confidence. It was added that considerable pressure was being brought to bear upon him by the Government of which he is such a resolute and troublesome member. Preparations were making for conducting the campaign upon two lines of operation, one toward Punnakha, and the other towards Tongsoo, in both of which places it was determined to enforce the signature of a treaty, and produce such an impression as to effectually prevent the recurrence of the insults of last year. Instructions had been issued by the Viceroy to protect the lives and property of the Bhootas, except where actual resistance was offered. Colonel Bruce was also to assure the Rajahs that the Government were not fighting for acquisition of territory,—an assurance which the experience of the past renders very necessary. The arrangements for the distribution of the force had been published, and in three weeks or a month active operations were expected to be commenced. In the event of peace, a larger allowance was to be granted to the Rajahs for the Doars, so that increased taxation, it was said, would be about the only result that the Indian Government would have to show for the loss of life and the expenditure of money already incurred.

The Viceroy left Simla on the 25th of October, paid a flying visit to Delhi, where no ceremonies were observed, and reached Calcutta on the 4th of November.

One of the chief topics of conversation in Calcutta was the formal disavowal, by Sir John Lawrence, of the mysterious Oude despatch. It is contained in a letter to Sir Charles Wood, which has been published in the official Gazette for general information. It is a great pity that Sir John did not take this course at an earlier period, instead of leaving speculation to exhaust itself upon the vague terms of Mr. Davies's denial. As it is, nobody will doubt the despatch being a forgery, and the only demand which remains to be made is the discovery of the forger, who appears, from all accounts, to hold some post in the Foreign Department.

Payment of the third and final instalment of the Delhi prize money, of twenty rupees per share, had been ordered by Government.

The native chief of Kattiawar had been detected in importing Enfield rifles into his territory. A large consignment had been placed under embargo, pending a reference to the Political Agent. The story of the English girl being sold to this chief is confirmed; it seems that her father has died since concluding the bargain.

In the North-West the paper's notice, with great regret, the death of the Right Reverend Dr. Benedik, Catholic Bishop of Leuca, and Vicar Apostolic of Hindoostan. The funeral service was performed at the Catholic Cathedral, Agra, on the 3rd November, the Right Reverend Athanasius Hartman, D.D., Bishop of Derbe, and Vicar Apostolic of Patna, officiating.

At Madras the re-organisation of the local army was still causing dissatisfaction; but the Governor, whatever his opinion on the subject, was not, it seems, the author of the notification accompanying the new postings, which we published in our last. That document appears to have been a hoax on the part of the Athenæum and Daily News, whence we extracted the orders, of which to all appearance it formed a part. As such official records do not necessarily undergo examination before being reprinted, the joke was taken seriously; and it only occurred to us, on a brief glance at the opening, that Sir William Denison was having a little turn at independence after the style of Sir Charles Trevelyan on another occasion. We may here remind the Athenæum that to carry a joke into its official columns is carrying it too far, and that it would be better to put facetiousness into a separate place, duly ticketed, so that readers may know when to laugh.

The trial of Cornet Watkins, before the High Court of the Presidency, has been conducted with all solemnity. The jury found him guilty, but recommended him to mercy; and the Chief Justice accordingly reduced the sentence of imprisonment, which he could not avoid passing, to the nominal period of four days, but laying on, en revanche, a heavy fine; nothing less, in fact, than twelve hundred rupees, which sum the prisoner at once paid, the alternative being six months' confinement. The punishment is, perhaps, sufficient for the offence, though the prisoner's attack upon Mr. Shallard was worthy of the epithets "brutal and cowardly," bestowed upon it by the magistrate. The fault, it is believed, lies more with his brother officers who urged him to the act, and who, it is added, laid him heavy bets that he would not perform it. If the latter statement be true, the prisoner may have paid the fine out of his winnings, in which case he has got off very cheaply indeed.

The cattle plague had broken out in the Madras Presidency.

In Bombay there was but little news, beyond a very alarming collision on the Great Indian Peninsular Railway, of which we publish an account elsewhere. At Kurrachee a little in the horsewhipping way had been done between Captain Bacon, H.M.'s 95th Regiment, and Captain Grant, the Judge of Shikarpore. The former officer was the aggressor. The quarrel arose out of a bet.

A Soldiers' Industrial Exhibition has been inaugurated at Poona by the Governor of Bombay.

Information from the Northern Frontier states that the tribes there are preparing for hostilities. The Lieutenant-governor and Brigadier-general Wylde have gone on a tour of inspection along the frontier.

At Calcutta there had been a slight relaxation in the money market, the anticipations of a large demand for Bombay and Madras not having been fully realised. The banks' rates remained unaltered, and those of the Bazaar were fully 1 per cent. lower. Owing to the trifling amount of produce procurable, the requirements of ordinary trade were below the average. For Government securities there had been considerable demand, at improved quotations. In the share market the most noticeable feature was a strong reaction in Salt Water Lake Company's, which had risen to 100 discount, and were still in great demand—an improvement to be attributed to the approach of the period when either the company must be wound up and the money returned, or the shares attain a premium, if, all arrangements being favourable, the company should commence its operations. There was also considerable demand for the shares of the Credit Mobilier, and an improvement in National Bank shares.

The next arrival from India will be the Calcutta Mail, due, in the ordinary course of things, on Tuesday next; but the Mooltan having been neaped in the Hoogley, and not leaving Calcutta until the 14th ult., five days delay is to be expected; so it is probable that letters will not be delivered until Monday week, the 18th inst.

We mentioned in our last number that some reductions in the strength of the British army in India were under consideration. We now learn that it is proposed to reduce each regiment of cavalry by fifty-six troopers, and each regiment of infantry by sixty rank and file.

We hear that a reduction of one regiment of British infantry has been made in the Madras Presidency. The 80th Regiment, now stationed in Bengal, is the first on the roster to return home, consequently a regiment from Madras will proceed to the former Presidency.

It is rumoured that some changes are about to take place in the Accountant-General's Department of the India-office, consequent upon the early retirement of Mr. G. Friend, the Accountant-General, after a service of fifty years.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

WEDNESDAY, December 6, 1865.

"LOOKING AT HOME."

THERE are certain liberal philosophers—largely represented in the press—who object to interference with other people's viciousness, on the ground that those who interfere are equally vicious themselves. Let any attempt be made to cure an evil out of doors, and these philosophers are sure to tell the promoters to "look at home," giving them no credit for charitable intentions, but probably casting against them some perversion of the Divine precept about "throwing the first stone." The result of "looking at home" usually is that we get no better ourselves, and let other people get as much worse as they please. Indeed, writers of the class in question seldom take the trouble to insist upon us setting our own houses in order. They are content, for the most part, to taunt us with our alleged failings, and, careful of nothing but consistency, come to the practical conclusion that things generally are very wrong, and it is nobody's business to set them right. Every reader knows the kind of writers to whom we allude. If a rich man attempts to improve the morality of the poor, they tell him his own order are the most immoral of the two, and that he had better hold his tongue. If the magistrates withdraw the licence from a disorderly public-house, they advise them to remember what goes on in their own clubs. If some benevolent men and women exert themselves to alleviate the "social evil," these friendly censors at once ridicule the idea, because some gentlemen do not lead pure lives and some ladies figure in the Divorce Court. And if a number of savage blacks rise and massacre a number of civilised whites, the first feeling of these philosophers is less of horror at the crime on the one side than of reproach at the provocation which they consider must have been given on the other. "Looking at home" may be a very consistent process in most of the above cases; but, without noticing the sophistry of this kind of reasoning, the practical fact is plain, that it is easier for the majority of men to reform others than to reform themselves ; and we have ample evidence that those who are the most fastidious on the subject are not the most earnest as to the general result.

The "look at home" people have had a capital opportunity during the past week, in the story, already reprinted in these columns, of the sale of an English girl to an Indian Nawab. In India the event excited a general sentiment of disgust ; for curious as it may seem to some persons, our countrymen in the East still manage to maintain a moral superiority in their relations with the natives, and are considered by persons who are not philosophers the more respectable class of the two. But in England questions between Europeans and Asiatics are regarded from a more elevated point of view, and the "look at home" writers have, of course, not failed to point the inevitable moral. We are asked, where is the difference between the sale of an English girl, for the wife of an Indian Nawab, and the sale of an English girl for the wife of a hoary-headed old profligate of Belgravia ? The analogy is not quite fair, because Belgravian bachelors are not uniformly hoary-headed, nor old, nor profligate, while the Indian Nawab is open to objections which are inevitable in his case. To be sure, as one of the "look at home" critics remarks, "there are the little incidents of the Koran and polygamy ;" but apart from these, he considers the one transaction as respectable as the other.

It seems to us that these "little incidents" of the Koran and polygamy make all the difference between the two cases. If mercenary marriages—which satirical writers call sales—are made in Belgravia or elsewhere, they have very little in common with the transfer, for a direct pecuniary consideration, by a mother and father, unfit through their generally dissolute character, to be their daughters' guardians, of a girl of fourteen to an Indian Nawab of seventy, having already a harem full of women ; and the circumstances of the girl being made one of his wives render the matter rather worse, since the ceremony must be preceded by the girl's admission to the Mahomedan faith. The evil to which such an example may lead has already been pointed out by the Standard, in the temptation given to the unfortunately growing class of destitute and abandoned English in India—conventionally known as "loafers"—to dispose of their offspring in this way. In England such parents continually sell their children to a life of profligate misery. In India they have a chance of selling them to a life of profligate opulence. Is it to be supposed that they will be able to resist the double temptation ? The natives of India have long since overcome the delusion that we were a nation of Sahibs ; but they have not yet arrived at the belief that infamy is our normal condition. And if English gentlemen have in former days acquired Indian girls for equally base purposes, there is still no reason why our laws should not be made to reach men and women who act the part of procurers and procuresses in respect to their own offspring. There is no analogy between these abandoned persons and "Belgravian mothers," who make mercenary matches for their daughters. In the latter case the daughters are at least not lost to their parents for ever ; they have legal rights which their parents can freely enforce ; their husbands, whatever may be gratuitously and unjustly assumed as to their general code of morals, do not at least keep hareems ; and the interesting victims, of whom Miss Ethel Newcome has been taken as a type, are at least not led to abandon the religion which may preserve them from falling into wilful degradation. Some of these considerations may appear unimportant to the "look-at-home" people ; but we can assure them that they will far better advance the principles they profess by allowing some kind of advantage to Christian influences and Western civilisation, when measured with Mussulman tenets and Eastern morals, than by classing what is the exception in Europe with what is the rule in Asia, and giving to the natives of the East caricatures of our failings, which will be accepted as daguerreotypes—all for the sake of a few sensation articles.

BENGAL.

THE VICEROY'S LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

To those who, like ourselves, have consistently advocated the introduction of a freer order of things in this country, the example of New South Wales has been always held up as a warning and an example. There, we are told, we see the natural result of unrestricted freedom. With a vote accorded to every man who can scrawl his signature the suffrage is in the hands of an uneducated majority, who return delegates to carry out their own private interests, as distinct from those of the colony. At the present moment the phenomenon is presented in Victoria of an assembly elected by universal suffrage having deliberately accepted the principle of protection to native industry by the imposition of a prohibitory duty on certain exports from England and from the neighbouring settlements in Australia. Is this the sort of Government we should care to see introduced into India ?

Whilst we lament some of the results which have followed the introduction of constitutional government into Victoria, we must at the same time decline to admit that the case of Australia presents any analogy to that of India. It has always been a portion of the policy of ultra-conservatives to disgust sensible and moderate men with liberalism by riding the liberal hobby to extreme lengths. The existing liberal constitution of Victoria was a present to the colony from the short-lived Derby Cabinet of 1852. It was drawn up at a time when the public at large had but little faith in the professed liberalism of the Tory administration. Under such circumstances it has always been a maxim of pseudo-conservative policy to divert attention from home matters by an advanced liberalism in colonial administration. Such a course was followed on this occasion. Without taking into consideration the wishes and interests of the colonists, the better class of whom did not want universal suffrage, Sir John Pakington manufactured for them a constitution, the framework of which was sufficiently elastic to be pushed to the furthest limits of democracy. The natural consequences followed. It is not possible to place power within the reach of the masses and to tell them, with any chance of being listened to, not to grasp at it. The masses of Victoria soon felt the value of their position. One by one the swathing bands of the constitution were removed ; the suffrage was degraded until it embraced every male of full age in the colony ; and the reputation of the Assembly has now reached such a point that a seat in it is regarded in Melbourne, as in America, as an honour to be avoided by those who care to respect themselves.

Surely such a state of things offers neither warning nor example to Calcutta. Here there is no fear of an undue extension of liberal views, or of the prevalence of the ultra-democratic doctrines which have been fostered in Australia. We, on the contrary, have in the last few years gone backwards. The debates in the old Legislative Council have been but feebly replaced by the conversational remarks which are heard in the chamber of its successor. When we recall the good that was effected by the outspokenness of the first, and contrast it with the evil that has been permitted by the insouciance of the second, we have still greater cause to regret the change. We can never forget that to the speaking Council of India we owe the overthrow of a scheme which would have resuscitated in its worst forms that system of taxation which was the main cause of the French Revolution,—a system by which the masses were to be taxed, and the oligarchy were to be excluded from taxation ; that to the same Council we are indebted for the large and vigorous reforms of Mr. Wilson, and for their business-like adaptation to the wants of the country by Mr. Laing; that it resisted the measure which would have placed European residents up country under the power of native magistrates; and that it dared to question the exercise of unconstitutional power by Sir Charles Wood. Had the Council existed now, it would have been impossible for our late Finance Minister to have read his budget speech to an impatient assembly; and even had he been permitted to do so, it is not difficult to believe that the scathing criticism of Sir Barnes Peacock would have induced the Council to reject those details, which subjected the Government to the unpleasant reprimand it received. That it passed those details without a single protest from its civilian members is one of the glories of the sitting Council. It is, in fact, a mere Council of registration—a Council to confirm and register the decrees of the Executive. It is true that Lord Canning endeavoured to impart some vitality to it by the appointment as its members of native gentlemen of high character and real ability. The presence in the Council of such men as Raja Deo Narain Singh and Dinkur Rao was a pledge at all events that native interests would receive due consideration. But the time has gone by when it is sought to fill up the places reserved for independent members either by the leaders of native thought or by the real representatives of the English community. An acquiescent assembly—a council that will give no trouble—appears to be regarded as the summum bonum of constitutional excellence, and the Governor-general may congratulate himself that, to the extent to which such an article is obtainable, he has obtained it—to what public or personal advantage the events of the past year fully testify.

One would think indeed that the escapade of last April would almost have satisfied the Governor-general that, in a Legislative Council, something more is required than a mere council of registration. It would surely be better that the measures of the Executive should be subjected to the critical acumen of a Sir Barnes Peacock, than that, after having been registered by the aid of civilian nutes, they should be rigorously disavowed by Sir Charles Wood. In the case of the last budget no one ever suspected that the export duties were the production of the mind of the Governor-general. We now know authoritatively that they were not so. If, then, his Excellency had had a Council which would have rejected that measure—as under similar circumstances the old Legislative Council rejected Mr. Harington's Bill,—he would have brought the Supreme Council into conformity with his views about the income-tax, and his own credit would have been saved. A mere council of registration is, in fact, not only contemptible from its organisation, but it is apt to become dangerous to the public liberties, inasmuch as it clothes with the sanction of its apparently independent authority measures which have been debated and agreed upon in a secret conclave of irresponsible councillors.

We know how difficult it is to teach worldly wisdom or worldly knowledge to men who have spent all their lives in this country. India has had bitter experience of the fact that an Indian civilian who has been hoisted up to the top of the ladder,—though he may be innocent of the elements of political economy, though the rudiments of constitutionalism may be unknown to him,—considers himself entirely beyond all teaching. Upon them, therefore, we will not waste our arguments. But there are three members of the Supreme Council who are not civilians, who, under the ordinary circumstances of a non-civilian Governor-general would constitute a majority of the Supreme Council. On these we rest our hope of reform. To these would we confidently appeal. We would ask them whether the present state of the Legislative Council is such as the necessities of this country demand; whether the conversational tone, the absence of real discussion, the non-admission to it of the ablest members of the community, and the admission to it of those whom the natives at least would not have selected to represent them, are calculated to ensure for it respect and consideration. They know well that a Council to be respected must be something more than a mere outline. They know well that the measures of the Supreme Council, if well considered, would derive an inconceivable additional value from undergoing the ordeal of a passage through a Legislature as independent at least as that established by Lord Dalhousie. They know equally well that the present Legislative Council is a mere council of registration. To them, therefore, we look for a remedy to this state of things. We would urge them to look into the case as it stands, to examine and compare the working of the old Legislative Council and of the present, and above all to shut their ears to the insinuation that there can ever be any analogy between the political situation of British India and that of Australia.—Friend of India.

REPORT ON THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE NORTH-WEST PROVINCES.

We have on our table "The Report of the Administration of the North-West Provinces for the Year 1864-65." Under the head of Judicial Administration, we observe that there has been a considerable increase in civil litigation—the number of regular suits instituted exceeding that for any year since 1857, except the exceptional year of 1861. The miscellaneous files exhibit a still larger increase; and the total number of cases instituted during the year was 243,033, as compared with 196,390 in 1863. This increase of litigation is attributed partly to the operation of the Limitation Acts, and partly to the commercial advancement of the country, and the contemplated introduction of the permanent settlement. The average duration of cases shows an improvement, but, in the Judges' courts, where it is three months and twenty-six days, it ought to be still capable of considerable reduction. The state of the files of the Sudder Court is, the report justly observes, highly satisfactory, the regular appeals pending having been reduced from 360 to 49, and the special appeals from 2,060 to 474, as compared with the previous year. On turning to the section on Criminal Justice we are again met by the same ugly features which now so generally disfigure these reports throughout the country. There is a heavy increase of crime and offences against property, and petty offences have increased in a higher ratio than other crimes. This increase is attributed, and perhaps, in some measure, justly, to the high prices of the necessities of life; though, among a population who are principally producers, this cause should have less effect than in other countries. There is also an increase in petty litigation, rightly attributed to the exemption from stamp of all petitions of complaint in criminal cases—a subject on which we have already commented at length. The Police Returns, as we are almost prepared to see from the above, show an increase in all offences against life and property, except robbery by administration of poison. On the other hand, an improvement is noticed in the detection and prosecution of offences by the police, and complaints of corruption, ill-treatment, and extortion, are said to be now rarely brought against them. We cannot, however, forget that it depends a good deal on the chance of obtaining justice whether such complaints are brought or not, and that an increase in the power of the police to oppress tends rather to diminish the chance of complaint than otherwise. We are inclined to think that, under the new system, the police are better protected by their superior officers than under the old, and the less, consequently, is the chance of the poor men successfully prosecuting charges against them.

Under the head of revenue, perhaps the most noticeable feature is the increase of cases under Acts X., of 1859, and XIV., of 1863, from 45,350 to 54,409. There is also an increase in transfers of land of all descriptions. The actual out-turn of cotton in the provinces is set down at 165,000 maunds; but it is remarked that, had the season been favourable, it would not have been much less than two millions of maunds. There is an improvement in the Customs collections of Rs. 7,28,089, including Rs. 2,63,460 from the Nagpore collectorship, which was only established in January last. Rs. 7,00,758 of this increase appears to be attributable to the salt duty alone. The amount of income-tax has decreased by about six lakhs of rupees; but only six per cent. of the tax-payers, we are informed, are assessed according to their own returns, while eighty-four per cent. have been surcharged, the amount of surcharge being nearly three hundred per cent. "It is to be feared," says the Report, "that the moral obligation to furnish trustworthy returns has been generally disregarded by the native community in these Provinces; but it is also to be feared that, in this indiscriminate surcharging, the innocent must, in a large number of cases, have been punished with the guilty. It is satisfactory, however, to contemplate the existence of even six per cent. of tax-payers in the North-West Provinces whose sense of moral obligation is so high as to lead them to furnish trustworthy returns. There is an increase of Rs. 1,08,974 in the receipts from Stamps, and of Rs. 3,44,851 in that from Excise. The remainder of this report we shall notice to-morrow.—Englishman, Nov. 1.

We resume our notice of the Report on the Administration of the North-West Provinces with the section on Education. The number of pupils on the rolls of the various public schools was 120,054, including 6,886 females; but the Report does not afford us the means of comparing this with the corresponding number for the previous year. The number of female schools has, however, we are informed, more than doubled, and that of the pupils attending them nearly trebled; and a number of private schools, receiving grants-in-aid from Government, have sprung up. The total number of private schools under Government inspection is 5,458, with 65,655 scholars. No less than three lakhs and seventy thousand volumes of books have, we are told, been printed for, or purchased by, the Department of Public Instruction during the year. Under the head of Public Works, we observe that the Presbyterian Church at Allahabad has been completed, at a cost of Rs. 53,000. The expenditure of the entire Department during the year was upwards of thirty lakhs of rupees. The income from the Ganges Canal was Rs. 9,86,410, against Rs. 7,73,390 of the previous year. There has been no change in the irrigation rates during the year, nor any perceptible increase in the supply of water kept up. The sum of Rs. 1,00,000, granted by the Government, was expended in preparations for the work of remodelling this great failure; and the estimated cost of the changes proposed is Rs. 52,68,063. The Roorkee workshops realised a profit equal to 6.19 per cent. on capital, and the monthly average of work turned out was Rs. 24,546, being much in excess of that of any previous year. The gross income of the Eastern Jumna Canal was Rs. 3,39,458, against Rs. 2,65,022 of last year. The average discharge per second was about one-tenth larger than last year; but there has been no increase of rates. The number of students at the Thomason Civil Engineering College was 128, against 82 during last year; and the total cost of educating each student showed a reduction from Rs. 592 to Rs. 440.

Under the head of Railways, we notice very little with which the public are not already familiar.

The result of the working of the Government forests during the year under the system of strict Budget principles, now for the first time applied to it, is said to afford "promise of considerable revenue to the State, while, at the same time, the main object—the due preservation of its forests—will have been secured." The yield of the Government Tea Plantations in Kumaon and the Dehra Dhoon was 54,527 pounds of tea, and 2,848 maunds of seed. 77,308 pounds of tea was sold, at an aggregate price of Rs. 52,430, and 66 tons and 5 cwt. of seed was distributed gratis to applicants. Upwards of 1,00,000 lbs. of the tea sold was bought, the report tells us, by Cabul and Cashmere merchants, partly for consumption in the Punjab, and partly for exportation to Afghanistan and Cashmere. The plantation and factory of Bheem Tal were sold by public auction for Rs. 34,500. The report also records the almost total failure of the experiment with Cinchona, planted in Gurhwal, owing to the site being too high. The few plants that were saved were removed to the Dehra Dhoon, and additional plants had been sent for from Darjeeling, with a view to continuing the experiment.

Under the head of Hospitals and Dispensaries we see that the cost of a new hospital at Benares, for the treatment of destitute Europeans and Eurasians, has been most munificently defrayed by Baboo Gooroo Doss Mittra.

The only matters of importance recorded in the political section are connected with literature and the public press. There are eighteen vernacular newspapers, with the insignificant circulation of 5,366 copies; but one of these, the Meerut Gazette, started during the year, circulates 2,236 copies. As a rule, it is remarked, little ability is displayed in the newspaper articles. Of three hundred and forty-nine books known to have been published during the year only four were original, the remainder being either reprints or translations. Of these, seventy-eight were Hindoo, and thirty-six Mahomedan, works of religious nature. This, however, does not include the vernacular literature published under the superintendence of the Director of Public Instruction. Of such works, thirty-three editions were printed during the year, the total issue of volumes being no less than 268,500. The Government Press, we see, continued to work profitably during the year, the balance to credit being Rs. 64,139, notwithstanding large reductions in charges.

The general financial result of the year's administration was favourable, as compared with the Budget estimate—the actual net income being Rs. 3,65,61,354, instead of Rs. 3,51,99,698, as estimated.—Ibid, Nov. 2.

BHOOTAN.

We hear from the Bhootan frontier that the Bhootas in the hills are now badly off for food. The reason is, that last year Tongsoo Penlow seized many of them; and those who escaped from him hid themselves, and did not cultivate. There is great distress amongst them; they have no rice to eat, they are obliged to use unaccustomed food, and most of them are suffering from dysentery.—Englishman, Oct. 23.

As it is very desirable that the officers employed on the Bhootan frontier should speedily acquire a knowledge of the Bhoota language, the Government, we are informed, have made it generally known among the officers of the force on the frontier, and the civil officers, including those at Darjeeling, that Bhoota is one of the Hill languages, a competent knowledge of which is rewarded by Government with a donation of Rs. 1,000.—Ibid, Oct. 24.

A correspondent from the Bhootan frontier writes to say that the Viceroy has sent the following instructions to Colonel Bruce, to be acted upon when the British force advances upon Bhootan:—

1st. He should let it be known in Bhootan that villages and hamlets will not be molested, unless they are defended against the advance of the troops. 2nd. He should invite the inhabitants, by all means in his power, not to desert their dwellings. 3rd. He should adopt measures to ensure that all articles of food be paid for most rigidly by troops and followers; and he should request the General to take the most stringent measures in this respect, as well as to protect all houses and crops. 4th. He will invite the people to assist in the road-making, and see that they are paid daily wages for the same. 5th. It should be given out that we do not want Bhootan, but that, as the Government and the chiefs have not acceded to our terms, we are compelled to advance into the country to show that we cannot pardon the insults offered last year, without the settlement of a treaty which will prove satisfactory to us. The Deb and Dhurm Rajahs should be assured that neither Punakha nor Tassissudon will be injured, if they are not defended. If the Rajahs choose to remain in their residences they will not be made prisoners, provided they do not act in hostility towards our troops. In like manner, the Soubahs, Zoompoons, and all people should be warned that their houses will not be injured, nor themselves or their property molested, if resistance is not offered to the advance of the British troops, but that any place or house which is used for the purpose of defence will be destroyed. If the Deb or Dhurm Rajahs flee from their residences it is probable that they will depute some important persons to confer with the Governor-general's agent. For this reason neither Punakha nor Tassissudon should be injured because of the flight of the Government, unless they are defended.

In short, the Colonel has been instructed that he will cause the people to understand that our object is not conquest, and that it depends on themselves whether our advance into Bhootan is accompanied by loss of life and other ruin.—Ibid, Oct. 31.

The Bhootan durbar, alarmed by the evident earnestness of our preparations, has renewed its endeavours to pacify us, sending in some prisoners, with other equally valuable indications of its sincerity. It is believed by those who are judges that we shall grant terms, and that there will be no march to Poonakha. The dooars will be retained by us, and, as the Bhootas are to be well paid for them, they will enjoy their revenue without the trouble of collecting it—an office we shall undertake, after paying heavily for the privilege, in a country which is, during a great part of the year, absolutely untenable for Europeans or for natives of the plains, on account of the deadliness of its malaria. The Penlow of Tongso is, however, still holding out; so we shall probably be at the expense of fighting him, while, through our treaty with the durbar, we shall be precluded from the possibility of taking any advantage of victory, or obtaining any sort of satisfaction beyond the extinction of a refractory subject of a foreign potentate. We could hardly imagine anything more inglorious, more absurd, and more destructive of our prestige in India than this war.—Englishman.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BODY GUARDS OF NATIVE CHIEFS.—We are informed that orders have been issued by the Punjab Government that no native chiefs should be allowed to take a body guard of above fifty armed men through any walled city of the Punjab.

THE MYSTERIOUS OUDE DESPATCH.—Sir John Lawrence has at last put forth a statement upon this subject in an official letter to Sir Charles Wood, which is published in Calcutta for general information:—"From his Excellency the Right Hon. the Governor General of India in Council, to the Right Hon. Sir Charles Wood, Bart. G.C.B., her Majesty's Secretary of State for India.—Simla, the 20th September 1865:—We have the honour to forward for your information the copy of a circular order issued by the officiating chief commissioner of Oude in reference to an article which appeared in the Press newspaper, and which has been copied into the Indian prints. 2. The article professes to contain the extract, paras. three, four, and five, of a despatch addressed by the Government of India to the Financial Commissioner, communicating instructions for Mr. Davies's guidance. It is said to have been dated 15th September, 1864. 3. As shown by the chief commissioner, no such despatch was ever received by Mr. Davies, whose only instructions were communicated to him through Mr. Wingfield, the chief commissioner. 4. It is needless for us to add that no letter of the number and date quoted, nor any letter whatever of the purport quoted, was issued by the Government of India. No instructions were at any time given to Mr. Davies, but through the chief commissioner, Mr. Wingfield. The wishes of the Government in respect to the conduct of his duties by Mr. Davies are contained in the despatch of the Foreign Secretary, Colonel H. M. Durand, C.B., to the chief commissioner, No. 284, dated 30th September, 1864, as printed in the Blue-book upon Oude."

THE SIMLA UNITED SERVICE CLUB.—There is an advertisement in our columns announcing that the members of the Simla United Service Club have partially yielded to a very generally expressed opinion concerning the exclusive rule whereby they wished to keep their club so highly aristocratic, that none but the "heaven-born" could enter therein. A modification has been made of Rule VI., which confined membership to Members of the Supreme Council, the Civil Service, and Officers of H.M.'s Army and Navy, and excluded all such low people as barristers, merchants, and private gentlemen. The modification is, however, hardly a compliment to the excluded ones. Two new rules have been made, which state that:—"VIII. With the concurrence of the committee of management, any gentleman not eligible under Rule VI. may be proposed as a member of the Club, and be balloted for, and, if elected, will be an 'extra' member. IX.—No 'extra' members shall have a vote on any matter affecting the management or conduct of the Club." What is an "extra" member? We have heard of ordinary members and honorary members of clubs, but never of an "extra." Perhaps extraneous is the true meaning of this contraction. So terribly afraid are the promoters of this Club of admitting any one within the pale of their society who does not belong to the "suvvices," that, in bending to public opinion on the subject, they have resolved on branding the extraneous individual who ventures to intrude within the magic circle with a mark—a large E. Nothing can be in worse taste than the first proposition, except the method taken to modify it by the second.—Englishman.

THE WAHABEE CONSPIRACY.—The Viceroy, we observe, having perused the report on the Wahabee conspiracy, lately discovered at Patna, has directed the premises at Sadikpore, where the conspiracy was carried on, to be made over to the municipality, with a view to their being razed to the ground, and an open market built on the site; a portion of the sale proceeds of the escheated property of the traitors to be devoted to municipal purposes.

FORT WILLIAM.—Great changes have been ordered in the arrangement of quarters in Fort William, the principal object of which is to enable the Government to give up the Chowmalla, and thus effect a saving of Rs. 700 per month. All the public offices are to be removed from that building, and located in Fort William. At the quarters of the Plassey-gate will be the offices of the Quarter-master General of the Army, the Assistant Quarter-master-General of the Division, the Garrison Quarter-master, the Embarkation Officer, and the Barrack-master; at the Treasury-gate, the office of the Commander-in-Chief, the Adjutant-general of the Army, the Assistant Adjutant-general of the Division, and, temporarily, the Judge Advocate; at the St. George's-gate the Fort Adjutant, and the Judge Advocate, when the Officers' Hospital is removed, it being in contemplation to turn the Old Sudder Court-house into a General Military Hospital. The Brigadier-General commanding will retain the quarters at the Chowringhee-gate. The Garrison Engineer, those at the Calcutta-gate, and the Commissaries of Ordnance those at the Water-gate. The Major-general commanding the Division will not reside in Fort William.

GOSSIP FROM DELHI.—A letter from Delhi in the Englishman contains the following, dated October 29th:—In days gone by, before civilization had kinkured the roads ready for its vast strides, before the mark of intellect had overcome the acknowledged necessity for a slight display of Oriental pomp and vanity upon all state occasions in this land of our exile,—the arrival of a Governor-General of India at a station like this of the "Imperial city" was an event to look forward to. The authorities, civil and military, were all "agog," and kept on the qui vive for some days, and even weeks, previous to the arrival of the great man. Those were glorious days, and the natives looked upon the coming of the Lat Sahib, Moolkee, or Jungee, as the case might be, with a sort of satisfaction, and a feeling of admiration for the Ungraiz, and, as a nation, thought them not quite so devoid of love for tamasha as they appeared to be, and respected them accordingly. What a different scene presented itself last night, at 11 o'clock, at which hour the Viceroy and Governor-General of India came into Delhi, "by moonlight alone," from the hills. It is true that the roads were watered, as they generally are in the evening, and the appearance of a "naick and four" at the Hamilton Hotel this morning, with a sprinkling of scarlet liveried servants, led people to suppose that somebody above the common run of travellers had arrived. But there was no attempt at welcome, and, by order, no salute was fired. The court-martial on Captain Ingram duly assembled, and arranged for the trial of that officer; witnesses from all quarters had been summoned, and were in attendance—when lo! it was confided to the President that the prisoner had saved them the trouble of trying him, by making a hasty retreat—in what direction is best known to himself! As the accused had some three days' start, apparently before the court had assembled, it is not likely that he will be caught, and I do not think there is a very general wish that he should be. The inquiry would have been tedious, awkward, and unsatisfactory, and, as the missing coin has been refunded, the affair has perhaps ruled as profitably to Government as it would had the accused been tried, convicted, and punished with more than the loss of his commission and character. His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief is not coming to Delhi on his way down, but proceeds direct from Gazeabad to Agra. Why this change nobody seems to know, but it is to be regretted for many reasons.

THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF will visit Gwalior on his tour, and will reach Allahabad, it is expected, about 15th November.

APPREHENDED FAMINE IN BENGAL.—The period that has elapsed since our last despatch has been one of grave apprehensions. The close of what should have been our rainy season, and the commencement of what should be our winter, have been marked by similar weather to that which seems to have characterised the English autumn of this year. The heat and drought we have already referred to in our last two despatches has only just terminated; indeed, in some parts rain has not yet fallen, and the consequence has been great scarcity and very high prices throughout the whole of Behar and Orissa and the western half of Bengal. In one or two districts coarse rice has been selling as high as six and seven rupees per maund, and the greatest distress has prevailed, perhaps, in Nuddea and Cuttack. It was feared that we were on the eve of a very severe famine, but extreme apprehensions have now passed away, for it is known that the crop in Eastern Bengal is a heavy one, and will soon be pouring into the markets of the less favoured districts. We may, however, anticipate high prices throughout the season.—Englishman.

THE CATTLE PLAGUE IN BENGAL.—Whilst the public have been watching with interest the accounts of the rinderpest, or cattle plague, in Europe, Bengal has not been free from the same terrible visitation. As we said in a former issue, it appeared soon after the dispersion of the herds of cattle gathered together at Alipore in 1864. Since then it has raged in various parts of the Lieutenant-Governorship, especially in Backergunge. Here, however, the attention of the authorities has been drawn to its ravages, and measures have been taken by the Commissioner of Dacca to counteract its effects and prevent its spreading. Dr. Bensley has drawn up a set of instructions for the treatment of the disease, and it is contemplated to have these translated into Bengali, for circulation amongst the Zemindars of the district. Meanwhile, we would suggest that the Government should lose no time in publishing in the Gazette all the information in its hands on this subject.—Bengal Hurkaru.

CLOSING OF THE BAREE DOAB CANAL.—The heavy rain on the 15th Oct., which appears to have been very general, brought down a flood of unusual magnitude in the Ravee, and with it an astonishing quantity of timber. Logs were passing the head works of the canal in question for several hours, at the rate of about fifty per minute. Detailed reports of the damage have not yet been received, but it is known that the head was well nigh blocked up altogether with a deposit of shingle and boulders, and the piers injured very materially, by the timber settling against them for so many hours; some of them have almost disappeared. It was necessary to close the head at once, to repair injuries and clear out some of the silt; but the stoppage was only temporary.—Englishman.

MILITARY CHANGES.—The permanent appointment of Lieutenant-Colonel Hire as Assistant Adjutant-General of the Peshawur Division, and that of Captain Waring, 88th Foot, as Brigade Major, must lead to one of the following Officiating Majors of Brigade losing his post:—Captain Pearson, Delhi; Captain Morgan, Umballah; Lieutenant Bates, Gowhatty; Captain Fortescue, Mooltan; Captain Cowell, Dinapore. Col. Hire will continue to hold his present officiating appointment at Army Head-quarters until the return from England of Major Holmes, or until further orders. Major Holmes is on his way out, but rumour has it that he is likely to obtain a regimental command on arrival.—Englishman.

CHOLERA IN BENGAL.—We are sorry to learn that cholera has again made its appearance in the districts of Tumlook, Hidgelee, and part of Midnapore. A few cases have proved fatal.

MILITARY ITEMS.—The 10th Fusiliers at Jhansi had so many men in hospital that the regiment has gone into camp; they are to march some distance up the Cawnpore-road, and return by a different route. It is to be hoped the change will do the men good.—The right wing of H. M.'s 58th now stationed at Benares has been ordered to proceed to the Eastern frontier. The 17th Bengal Cavalry leaves Segowlie for Bhootan. Major-General C. Troup, C.B., commanding the division, is now absent from the station, but he will be back very shortly.—The troops at Gowhatty were suffering from cholera.—The 23rd Royal Welch Fusiliers are under orders for Jubbulpore. The right wing and head quarters of the Regiment, four Companies, under command of Colonel Wells, C.B., leave Agra by train on Wednesday evening, and are followed on Saturday by the remaining five companies under Major Elgee.—Four companies of the 88th Connaught Rangers from Cawnpore have arrived at Agra, to take the place temporarily at Agra of the 23rd until the arrival of the 91st or 41st. It seems yet uncertain which corps is to be posted to the Agra garrison.

ANOTHER BENGAL JUDICIAL OFFICER IN TROUBLE.—In September last an article appeared in the Hindoo Patriot in which Lord Ulick Brown, the officiating magistrate of Nuddea, is represented as having acted with great harshness towards a man who was in the last stage of illness, and who eventually died. The attention of the Viceroy has been drawn to the article in question, and has asked information from the Government of Bengal as to what extent the Lieutenant-Governor considers that Lord Ulick Brown was to blame, and what orders his Honour has thought it necessary to pass in the case.—Englishman.

A REMARKABLE CASE OF CHEATING is now pending before the magistrate of Benares. The ex-Minister of Dholepore, Deo Buns, now a prisoner in Benares, was induced to believe that if he paid down a heavy sum of money as a bribe he would be recalled from banishment. He, accordingly, through his relations in Dholepore, collected the sum of fifty thousand rupees, which was entrusted to one Kurram Singh, and is alleged to have been paid to Sirdar Mungul Singh, a cousin of the Maharajah of Puttiala, whose receipt, however, is not forthcoming to show that it was so paid.

QUIN PRO QUO.—We hear that the Mahomedan native chiefs have objected to fire salutes on the arrival of the British officers of rank in their territories on Fridays, but to do so on the following day, as the British Government have arranged for Sundays. The matter is now pending the consideration of the Viceroy.

MR. A. T. T. PETERSON, it is rumoured, is returning to India as the Chief Justice of the High Court of the North-West Provinces, to be established finally at Allahabad, but in the meantime at Agra, until the courts now erecting in the former station are completed.

CAPTAIN INGRAM.—This officer, whose disappearance from Delhi, to avoid the proceedings of a court-martial, is mentioned in a letter from that city, is said to have been since apprehended.

FIRE.—At a fire on Oct. 23 at Calcutta 500 thatched bungalows, several tiled huts, and some horses, the property of the ex-King of Oude, were destroyed.

THE VICEROY AND STAFF arrived in Calcutta on the 4th of November, and we are beginning to look forward to an active legislative season.

LIEUTENANT H. SHOWERS has been appointed (as a temporary measure) A.D.C. to Major-general Wachman, C.B., commanding the division.

CRIMINAL SESSIONS, MADRAS.—

Nov. 4.

(Before SIR COLLEY HARMEN SCOTLAND.)

CORNET WATKINS'S CASE.

James Watkins was indicted for house trespass, after preparations made for causing hurt, and criminal force.

The prisoner first pleaded guilty, but re-collecting himself, pleaded not guilty.

Mr. R. Branson, instructed by Mr. Gordon on the part of the prosecution, appeared with Crown Prosecutor for the prosecution; and Mr. Miller, instructed by Mr. McCance, appeared for the prisoner.

In opening the case Mr. O'Sullivan remarked that the prisoner was a cornet in the 18th Hussars, and the prosecutor the editor of the Bangalore Herald. A paragraph appeared in that paper which was the cause of all this force. On the day succeeding that on which the paragraph appeared, the prisoner went into the room of the editor, and asked him to give up the name of the writer of the paragraph. Mr. Shallard said he was the writer of it, whereupon he was called a "damned liar," by the prisoner, and then ensued the terrible onslaught with which the prisoner now stood charged. Even if the paragraph were much severer than it really was, it could afford no legal extenuation of the prisoner's conduct.

The evidence having been gone through, and Mr. Miller heard for the defence, the Chief Justice summed up, after which the jury retired to deliberate, and in thirty-five minutes returned with a verdict of guilty on all three counts, at the same time recommending the prisoner to the merciful consideration of the Court.

His Lordship, addressing Mr. Watkins, said that he had been found guilty of the three offences charged against him, and had subjected himself to very severe punishment. His lordship could not avoid passing a sentence of imprisonment upon him, but he would do it in such a way as to render it unnecessary that he should go to gaol. He would also inflict a fine, which, under the circumstances of the case, must be large; for though he had abstained when addressing the jury from giving any opinion of the assault, he now could not help saying that it was a very violent assault, more especially when the physical condition of both parties was considered. His lordship was satisfied that even Mr. Watkins himself now in his calmer moments deeply regretted what had taken place. He not only knocked down the prosecutor, but also did what was most unbecoming in him as an officer and a gentleman—struck him while he was on the ground. The editor of the Bangalore Herald had most improperly and irregularly made the observation he did, and his lordship would warn him that if he persevered in pursuing a similar course he would undoubtedly come to grief. Still these observations, which were of such a thoroughly contemptible description, did not justify Mr. Watkins' conduct—he would have acted more becoming his position as an officer and gentleman if he had treated them with the unmitigated contempt they deserved. Taking into consideration that the imprisonment would produce the most serious results on Mr. Watkins—consequences and results far greater than his conduct merited—and believing that in acting as he had done he was influenced by bad advice, and had not relied on his own unbiased opinion, his lordship would sentence him to four days' simple imprisonment, commencing from the first day of the sessions, and to pay a fine of 1,200 rupees—in default of payment to six months' imprisonment. The result would be that if the fine was paid at once Mr. Watkins was free—otherwise, he would be imprisoned for six months. The fine was at once paid, and Mr. Watkins was accordingly discharged.—Madras Athenæum, Nov. 6.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DEATH OF LIEUT.-COL. DALE.—We regret to learn that Lieutenant-Colonel Dale, commanding the 28th Regiment M.N.I. at Kurnool, died on the evening of the 11th October. He had been suffering from liver complaint for some time, and was going away on sick leave, but the immediate cause of his death appears to have been simple exhaustion. He had been kept up entirely by stimulants for some days, which for some twelve hours before his death he was unable to swallow. He was to be buried with military honours at 6 p.m. on the 12th instant. Major Lateward, the next senior officer, takes command of the regiment.—Madras Times.

THE RAJAH OF MYSORE.—The Bangalore Herald says:—We mentioned some time since that the commissioner had gone on a visit to his Highness the Rajah of Mysore, and we then anticipated that it was in connection with the recent adoption. We have now reason to believe that the real object of the commissioner's visit was to inform his Highness that the Secretary of State definitely and positively refused to entertain his requests in favour of the young gentleman whom he had honoured by adopting. We trust that the Rajah will now see the folly of spending more money upon his European agents, who, some two or three weeks after he had received Sir Charles Wood's reply, seriously informed him that they were doing all in their power to prevent an unfavourable reply being sent to out to this country! Anything more scandalous it appears to us impossible to conceive. Some fifteen lakhs, it is said, have already been spent upon this unprofitable mission. His Highness will do well to consider whether he might not better save his money for the benefit of his adopted son than in spending it in champagne parties to young M.P.s at home.

THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF MADRAS ON ASSAULTS UPON NATIVES.—No little flutter and excitement was created the other day when it became known that the general commanding the division had ordered all the officers in garrison to assemble at the Hussar Mess House. There was no difficulty in surmising the cause of this assemblage. The only anxiety or doubt was as to how the Commander-in-Chief would comport himself under the circumstances. In fact Sir Gaspard le Marchant was being put upon his trial, and his metal tested. True, however, was the ring of the metal. The trumpet blew forth no uncertain sound in certain utterances, which from obvious motives of fair play and consideration we at present refrain from noticing or commenting upon. The same objection does not apply to a certain portion of the Commander-in-Chief's strictures referring to assaults by officers upon natives, and his resolution to put a stop to the practice by stern and uncompromising measures.—Bangalore Herald, Oct. 28.

BOMBAY.

MISCELLANEOUS.

COLLISION ON THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULAR RAILWAY.—A collision between two goods trains on the Great Indian Peninsular Railway, resulting in loss of life to two persons and in injuries to some of the survivors, took place about two o'clock on Thursday morning, near Tannah, a station twenty-five miles north-east of Bombay. Both trains were running in the same direction for Bombay, the one having started five hours before the other. The first train had suffered several unavoidable detentions on the way, and on nearing Callian the engine of the foremost train only succeeded, after a second trial, in taking the train over the incline, which is one in 150. In this attempt a coupling of the engine was broken, and on reaching the Tannah incline, the engine was unable to take the train over it, although the gradient there was only one in 100. The driver then detached the engine from the train and went on to Tannah to telegraph for another engine, having instructed the guard to protect his train with detonating signals and by exhibiting his red lamp from the other goods train, which could not be far behind. The sapient guard, instead of doing anything so very simple and rational, took it into his wise head to leave his train unprotected and follow the engine that had gone to Tannah, that he might telegraph to the last station they had passed (Callian) not to allow any trains to proceed beyond it. The returning engine met him on his way and picked him up, and the driver went back once more to Tannah to let the guard telegraph his message. While they were thus engaged the second train came up and dashed into the trucks of the first one, which had commenced by their own weight to run down the incline. The engine and front brake of the advancing train were completely smashed, and the rear brake of the first train suffered the same fate. A Hindoo sheep driver was killed apparently instantaneously, and the second guard of the hindmost train—a Mussulman—was literally roasted slowly to death. For three hours he remained in a state of insensibility among the debris, and beyond all possible aid at the time, till he was at last slowly consumed by the burning fragments among which he was imbedded. Several other parties have been injured, one of them it is feared fatally. The guard was taken into custody by the second assistant manager, who was telegraphed for to Bombay, and an official investigation has been commenced before the magistrate of the district. The guard's statement is that the train had begun to run back before he knew what was wrong, and when he was on his way to the engine-driver to ascertain why it had stopped. He ran after it, but the train rushed on at an accelerated speed, and he could not overtake it. This scarcely tallies with the driver's statement; but the official investigation has not yet been concluded.

THE SALE OF THE ENGLISH GIRL.—The following letter upon this subject has been addressed to the editor of the Bombay Gazette:—“Sir,—In your issue of the 27th instant is extracted a paragraph from the Delhi Gazette of the 21st, regarding the sale, by European parents of the lower order, of their daughter, to a native chief in this province. The editor of the Delhi Gazette hesitates apparently to accept as true the narrative furnished by his correspondent, and, consequently, refrains to comment in unqualified terms on the conduct of the parties concerned in this vile and unheard-of outrage on the feelings of the European community generally, and of the community of Kattyawar in particular. Being fully conversant with the details of this horrible business, I can only say, that what has been communicated to the Delhi Gazette is in great part true; but I would draw a veil over this miserable affair, since the principal actor in it, the father of the unhappy girl, has since been summoned to answer for his deeds before a higher tribunal than any on earth. What I think may, however, be done, and to advantage, would be to remove the unfortunate child, Anna Maria Croucher, who was brought up in the Christian faith, from the harem of her licentious possessor, Kumalooddeen Khan Babee, and send her to an asylum where she may receive moral and religious training, and thus undo the mischief which her wicked parents had compelled her to do. The sum of 300 rupees a month from the revenues of her so-called husband, secured to her during her lifetime, in case she wished to separate, will, if judiciously applied, suffice to keep the girl in comfort, and help to defray all expenses that may be required for a decent education, and, as the girl, from the style she is treated, is said to be really unhappy, it would be a relief to her, I think, if the political agent were to adopt means to remove her from her bondage, and arrange for her removal to a Christian asylum.—J. Z. H., Rajcote, Oct. 30.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS AND THE MUNICIPALITY.

—The first act in our new municipal drama (says the Bombay Gazette) terminated in an unexpected manner. The Bench of Justices is empowered to revise the budget prepared by the Municipal Commissioner and alter it at pleasure, but instead of setting to the work of revision themselves, they simply indicated their unwillingness to incur any expenditure beyond the amount of the present annual revenue, and sent back the budget to the Commissioner that he might prepare a new one on that basis. The budget proposed the raising of two small loans for the extension of the water supply and the improvement of the markets,—both being indispensably necessary works. The Justices did not, either in express terms or by allusion, disapprove of the proposed loans, and notwithstanding their resolution to limit the expenditure of the municipality to the present amount of its income, they may be disposed to take up these specially. The resolution of the Justices will hamper considerably the progress of municipal improvement—and improvement is imperatively called for. Their position, moreover, does not indicate a liberal and patriotic spirit, as while the municipality has suffered long and grievous neglect, and the condition of the town is a byword among the inhabitants, they decline to put in force some of the powers of taxation conferred upon them by the new Act, that they may save the pockets of a class already enriched by the rise in the value of property, and the extraordinary increase in rents which has of late years been general over Bombay. With such a fact staring the Legislature in the face, any attempt they may make to induce the Government to impose a general system of octroi duties in the town is an insult to the Government that vested them but a few months ago with the still unused powers of taxation—and in short a deliberate farce.

COURT MARTIAL ON LIEUT. HUDDLESTON.

—The General Court Martial on Lieutenant Huddleston, late 18th M.N.I., assembled at Kamptee on Tuesday last, the 24th ult., and closed its proceedings early next day. The members were Colonel the Hon. C. D. Plunkett, Royal Regiment, President; Members—Colonels Halliday, 12th M.N.I., and Radcliffe, 3rd Cavalry; Majors Hope, Staff Corps, Pearse, Artillery; Captain Horne and Martin, Artillery; Ford and Watts, Royal Regiment, Parratt, 12th M.N.I., Lieutenants Shanley and Rooke, Royal Regiment, Spicer and Mears, 36th M.N.I.; Major Stanley, Staff Corps, prosecutor.

ANONYMOUS LETTERS TO MR. JUSTICE ANSTCY.

—In granting a protection order to one Antmaram Hybutrow at a recent sitting of the Insolvent Court, Mr. Justice Anstey remarked that he had received an anonymous letter against the insolvent, that he was sorry he had not got it with him at the time, and that he would gladly make it over to the insolvent or his attorney, for the purpose of prosecuting the writer and getting him punished. His lordship characterised it as a base and cowardly proceeding, and observed that he had received several anonymous letters, reflecting upon himself, and containing menaces against his person. He had treated them with the contempt they deserved; but when an anonymous scribbler sought to bias his mind as a judge against an insolvent who was to appear before him, his lordship thought it necessary to break silence. The Asiatics who resorted to such base and cowardly expedients should, his lordship thought, make themselves acquainted with the ineffable contempt with which Europeans looked upon such proceedings.

SCANDAL AT KURRACHEE.—A letter from Kurrachee, dated the 23rd October, says:—The unfortunate military scandal which has just happened at Kurrachee will, it is feared, deprive a gallant young officer of his commission. The squabble took place regarding a bet between Captain Bacon, of H.M.'s 95th Regiment and Captain Grant, the Judge of Shikapore, who was assaulted with a whip, and abused a la Billingsgate by Captain Bacon. Both officers were sent home under arrest, and a Court of Inquiry has been held. Captain Grant has been released from arrest, but Captain Bacon has not been so fortunate, and it is feared that circumstances are against him, and that his commission is in jeopardy. We hope his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief will make a little allowance for hasty moments; the entire matter is now in his hands.

THE OVERLAND TELEGRAPH.—A letter has been addressed by the director of the Mekran Coast and Submarine Telegraph to the Bombay Government in reference to the unsatisfactory manner in which the telegraph service between India and England is being conducted. It states that the average length of time in the transmission of a message from England to India is twelve or thirteen days; but sometimes messages reach him in fifty hours, others in from three to five days, and these very correctly. It is time that some reform is wrought in the service, as some of the telegrams we receive anticipate the mail by a very few days only. The slowness in the transit, and the inaccuracies in the messages generally when received, go a great way to render nugatory the boon which telegraphic communication can confer. But India has grown tired of the reiteration of the unheeded telegraphic grievance.—Bombay Gazette.

ENFIELD RIFLES FOR A NATIVE CHIEF.—A correspondent of the Times of India says:—Permit me to call the attention of Major R. H. Keatinge, Political Agent, Kattywar, to the import of Enfield rifles into this province for the use of native chieftains and others. I hear on good authority that a military gentleman recently supplied some of these deadly weapons to the Nawab of Joonaghur. Government, it appears, refused to supply the Guicowar of Baroda with Enfields for the use of his army, on the ground that the British native regiments are not armed with such approved munitions. The influx of these arms at a time when the Wagheers and outlaws are troubling the province is most objectionable.

OPENING OF THE BOMBAY HOTEL.—Bombay appears to have at last woken up to the fact that it needs something more in the way of hotel accommodation than it has hitherto possessed, and has resolutely set itself to work to supply the deficiency. The Western India Hotel, when finished, will no doubt prove an immense boon; but unfortunately it will probably be a couple of years before the building is completed. In the meantime our wants are being partly met by enterprising individuals. It was only the other day the Elphinstone, a very superior hotel, indeed, was opened at the Mount, Mazagon; and on the 1st November the Bombay Hotel was inaugurated by an opening dinner. This building, an immense one by the way, situated at the junction of the Belassis and Clare Roads, is particularly easy of access from all parts of the island. Some idea of the size of the house may be formed from the fact that the dining-hall is sufficiently large to seat with comfort over 1,000 persons. Nearly 100 gentlemen were present at the inaugural dinner on Wednesday night.

THE MAHARAJAH OF INDORE.—Consequent on the contemplated exchange of territory with the Maharajah Holkar, the negotiation for the capitalisation of his contributions to the Mehidpore contingent and the Malwa Bheel Corps have been satisfactorily completed, by which his present annual payment of £12,000 will be commuted for a payment of £238,152.

ACCIDENT TO LEUT. LINDSAY.—The Oudh Gazette says:—We are sorry to learn that Lieutenant A. F. Lindsay, 2nd squadron officer, of the 8th Bengal Cavalry, en route to Bhootan, has met with a very severe accident, which, judging from all we hear, places his life in great peril. The officer in question, it appears, was out pig-sticking, and had a fall from his horse by which his collar-bone was fractured, but he still retained hold of the bridle; he was then attacked by his horse in so determined a manner that the brute had to be speared to death ere he released his helpless victim.

THE NEW JUSTICES.—Very sincere and just sympathy is expressed for one or two gentlemen whose names are included amongst those omitted from the new list of Justices. Their omission is inexplicable to the public, for it cannot be owing to their difficulties or that of their firms, at least two Europeans and nearly a dozen natives being retained on the list who have either at some time failed or compounded with their creditors. It is obviously the blundering of some secretariat clerk. To add to the mystery of the new Commission, two foreigners are gazetted who cannot possibly take the oath of allegiance to Queen Victoria.—Saturday Review, Nov. 11.

MESSRS. FORBES AND CO.—The changes which have been advertised within the last two days, in connection with the house of Messrs. Forbes and Co., have taken many by surprise. The London firm of Forbes, Forbes, and Co. have transferred their business here to the new firm of Sir Charles Forbes and Co., the present partners of the Bombay firm of Forbes and Co. establishing themselves under the same designation in London.

ARRIVALS OF TROOPS.—The troopships Cospatrik and Tyburnia, with a large number of officers and men of various corps, have arrived at Bombay. The Malabar has arrived at Kurrachee with details of troops from England. Three births and two deaths occurred during the passage. Captain Murray, H.M.'s 94th Regiment, came in command, the following officers accompanying the draft:—Captain Wood, Captain Jedlie, Lieutenant Ogden, Ensign Douglas, Ensign Jamieson, Ensign McKechnie, Lieutenant Paul, Lieutenant Collum, Staff Assistant-surgeon Smith in medical charge. The Malabar made a quick passage, having left the Thames on the 24th of July.

Mr. ANGUS, the respected manager of the Commercial Bank, shortly returns to his post as general manager at the head office in London, his successor here being Mr. Beattie, who arrived by last mail. By their choice of a manager to succeed Mr. Angus, when that gentleman went home a few months ago, the bank lost much of the confidence formerly reposed in it; the present appointment, however, will no doubt speedily restore this confidence, and be the means of bringing increased support to the bank.

DR. POPE.—We are sure the stations of Kirkee and Poona will learn, with regret, that the climate of Guzerat has proved so unfavourable to the health of Dr. Pope as to compel him to seek a change of climate for recovery. Dr. Pope will leave with the best wishes of all who knew him, and we can only hope that a rapid recovery will hasten his return to India.—Deccan Herald, Nov. 6.

THE PRINCE OF WALES'S BIRTHDAY.—A dinner party on the occasion of the Prince of Wales's Birthday was given by the members of the "Western India Club" on Thursday, the 9th inst., at the Club House in the Civil Lines. The dinner passed off with great éclat; the cuisine and wines were excellent, and every thing did the greatest credit to all those who have been working so hard and well in starting the Club.—Poona Observer, Nov. 11.

STRANDING OF THE SHIP "PRINCE OF WALES."—A Marine Court of Inquiry assembled on the 6th inst., at the Fort Police-court, to investigate the circumstances attending the loss of the ship Prince of Wales, at Gogo. The inquiry was adjourned. The ship has since been got off, and has arrived at Bombay.

The C. in C. has much pleasure in announcing to the army that the Right Hon. the Gov. gen. in Council has been pleased to sanction an annual workshop exhibition to be held in alternate years, at Allahabad and Meerut, the first to take place at the former station Feb. 28, 1866.

III. The whole outlay on the part of Government for the above objects, viz., both prizes and conveyance charges, is not to exceed Rs. 6,000.

4. The general arrangements for the ensuing exhibition will be conducted on the same principles as for that lately held at Meerut, the successful result of which his Excellency has already notified to the army.

7. In all corps intending to contribute a regimental committee will be assembled.

10. His Excellency requests that subscription lists may be circulated in all stations which are permitted to contribute to the Exhibition; and Sir William Mansfield hopes that the sums thus collected, together with the liberal aid afforded by Government, will amply suffice to ensure the success of an undertaking so calculated to promote the prosperity and afford a lucrative and healthy occupation for the leisure hours of the British soldier in India.

Minute on the Distribution of Madras Officers.

In continuation of G.O.C.C. No. 132, of this date, the Commander-in-Chief publishes, for the information of the Madras army, the following minute, explanatory of the principle upon which the rolls for the distribution of officers in the new organisation were framed:—

1. In carrying into effect the instructions of the Government, and in preparing the accompanying "nominal distribution list of officers" for the "revised regiments" in this Presidency, I have treated the question of the reorganisation of the Madras army as "one comprehensive measure of reform"—that is to say, as a general change, involving the "simultaneous" creation of a "staff corps," together with the introduction of a "new regimental system;" and I have not recognised any justification for encroachment upon interests which had been guaranteed, from the circumstance of the one having been formed, for convenience, in anticipation of the other.

2. A principle which I conceive it essential to preserve, notwithstanding its operation may have been delayed.

3. I have therefore framed the first "distribution roll" from the army generally, as it stood on its old organisation, according to substantive regimental seniority, assigning from that list, on the one hand, the officers for the "staff corps," and providing from it, on the other, for the appointments in the "revised regiments."

4. Thus avoiding any supersession on first transition by junior officers over senior in regimental commands, yet without withholding those advantages in pay and position, both contingent and prospective, originally held out to the officers electing to join the "staff corps."

Although, at the same time, not conceding to them that additional supersession over the general body of officers which they have subsequently aspired to, from the accidental circumstance of the "staff corps" having been formed "first," in place of "simultaneously" with the "revised regimental system," and their new rank having been conferred before the entire reorganisation of the army, as a whole, could be effected and brought into operation.

5. An excess of supersession, indeed, to which, in my opinion, the staff corps officers (knowing the guarantee given to the general body of officers, that their position was not to be infringed) could not in fairness have maintained any solid claim; and to have recognised which would have carried with it an immense injury to the interests of the other officers of the army.

6. In dealing with the commands, I have taken the general roll of "field officers" according to their former substantive seniority, but in the case of "junior officers" according to regimental seniority in "corps" and "cadres,"—a course corresponding to that which would have regulated their promotion to the rank of "field officers" on the previous system;—and I have distributed as little as possible the regimental officers now serving with corps.

7. In the case of "staff corps officers" available for regimental service I have disposed of them so as to avoid their new rank conflicting with the interests of their former regimental seniors.

And I propose (which will be easy) so to regulate the subsequent regimental distribution of these officers, until the old officers have been absorbed, and the whole service has been merged into one staff corps, that their new rank shall not come into irritating collision with former precedence.

8. Acting upon these principles, I trust that the "minimum" of supersession has been secured, that the interests of the "general body of officers" have been protected as impartially as so comprehensive a reform will permit, while the interests of the staff corps officers will have been fairly but not unduly promoted; and that I shall have been enabled to carry out the spirit of those views impressed upon me by Sir Charles Wood, "to use no hurry," but above all things to be careful to compromise as little as possible the individual interests of the officers of the Madras army.

9. A course for action, which has guided and supported the views which I now submit for effecting the new organisation, and which I sincerely trust may have enabled me to suggest such measures as will avoid occasioning to the officers of this army those feelings of mistrust, heart-burnings, and sense of injury which, too, unfortunately for the maintenance of discipline and the morale of the service, have in some instances been engendered.

10. It will be observed, that the appointments of "doing duty officers" generally have not yet been made; subalterns who have passed in Hindustanee will shortly be nominated to those situations, at the same time that the few vacancies in the regimental staff will also be filled up.

11. I have only to add, that having given the subject the most careful deliberation, and arrived at a conclusion in my judgment as equitable as compatible with the programme for my guidance, so I am quite prepared to assume the fullest responsibility for all the measures I have now the honour to submit.

J. GASPARD LEMARCHANT,

Commander-in-Chief, Madras Army.

MUTINY.

The following paper has been forwarded to us by a valued contributor, who proposes to make some remarks upon the subject, which he has already treated with great ability in these columns. The author is Shaik Hedayut Ali, subadar and sirdar bahadoor, Bengal Sikh Police Battalion, commanded by Captain T. Rattray, who translated the production from the original Oordoo:—

"I deem it my duty, as far as it lies in my power, to explain what has led to the disaffection lately so universally evinced both by the native army and many of the sirdars or chieftains throughout Hindostan.

"It is well known to the British Government, and to all the world, that the country of Hindostan in former times was almost solely inhabited by people of Hindoo persuasion, and that many years afterwards the Mahomedans conquered the country; and it is also well known that the Hindoos are proverbially foolish on the score of religion, and deem no religion equal to their own.

"To the best of my belief and understanding, the first symptoms of disaffection to the British Government on the part of the Sepoys was shown in 1833, when an army from Hindostan was ordered to Cabul. When this army crossed the Indus to Attock the Sepoys became discontented, grumbling, and angry. They heard that when Rajah Maun Sing, Wuzer of one of the former Emperors of Delhi, crossed the Indus to wage war with the Affghans, he caused all the Brahmins to take off their janeo, or sacred thread worn by Brahmins and emblematic of their caste, and told all his men that the Hindoo religion extended no further than the Indus. Maun Sing built a temple on the other side the Indus, and in this temple the Brahmins were directed to suspend their janeo. This fact is well known to all Hindoos, whether literate or the reverse.

"One of the customs of the Hindoos is never to eat or cook their food until they have bathed and gone through other forms of their religion. When, in 1838-39, the army reached Affghanistan, the Hindoos left off bathing and the performance of other acts which their form of religion, demanded on account of the extreme cold, to which they were unaccustomed.

"Whatever they purchased in the bazaar for their daily food they were compelled to take from the hands of Mahomedans, because in the Cabul country all the Buncahs, with few exceptions, are of the Mahomedan faith. The Hindoos being obliged, as above stated, to abstain from certain acts of their religion (bathing, which to a Hindoo is almost as necessary as his daily food), and to receive their bread from the hands of Mahomedans, fancied they had lost their caste, and had been forced to become Mahomedans; they therefore became much dissatisfied and disgusted.

"When the winter set in at Cabul the Hindostaneo Sepoys suffered much from the snow and cold. The commanding officers, pitying their condition, gave to each man a posteen or jacket, made of sheepskin, the wool worn inwards. The Sepoys at the time pretended much to be pleased with the posteens, but really in their hearts were much displeased, because no Hindoo, except of the lowest caste, likes to touch the skin of a dead animal. Fearing to object, they consented to wear them. They thought and talked openly among themselves, 'We must not show our anger and discontent in this country, because if we do we shall never be able to return to Hindostan, and we cannot live in this country;' so they kept quiet, only to show their anger and discontent on a more opportune occasion. They, moreover, thought that even if they did mutiny in that country, and killed all the English, they would be no better off, because the Affghans would compel them to become Mahomedans. Many Sepoys of the 27th and 51st Native Infantry, who were wounded and taken prisoners, were converted to Mahomedanism. Don't let any English gentleman think that the above is not true, because they were not acquainted with it at the time. A native of Hindostan seldom opens his mind to his officer—he only says what he thinks would please his officer. The Sepoys reserve their real opinion until they return to their lines and to their comrades.

"When the English returned to Ferozepore in 1842 I was there with the light company of my regiment (the 8th Native Infantry), in which my father was a subadar. Eight light companies were formed into one regiment, and were under orders for Affghanistan, but were never sent. I was then a private. I visited nearly all the regiments that had returned from Cabul, having many friends and acquaintances in them. The Sepoys of all the regiments were displeased at having been sent to Cabul, and said of themselves that by going to Cabul they had become outcasts to their religion, by having been compelled to clothe themselves with the skins of animals, to abstain from bathing, and other acts demanded by their religion, in consequence of the country being so unfitted for Hindoos on account of the great cold, and the whole country being Mahomedans.

"The Mahomedans of the regiment were displeased because they said the British Government had forced them to fight against people of their own creed, which was forbidden in the Koran. For saying this a subadar of the 27th Native Infantry was shot to death by musketry. The Mahomedans always boasted among themselves how they had evaded the English order, by never taking aim when they fired.

"None of the Hindoos in Hindostan would eat with their comrades when sent to Afghanistan, nor would they even allow them to touch their cooking utensils; they looked upon them all as outcasts, and treated them accordingly. It was said that the Sepoys of the 27th Native Infantry who were shut up in Ghuznee were all compelled to become Mahomedans.

"At Ferozepore Zalim Sing, a subadar in the 71st Native Infantry, told the men of the 25th Light Infantry that they had lost their caste and become Mahomedans, and that consequently none of their comrades could eat or smoke with them. For this offence he was tried by general court martial and dismissed the service. When the Sepoys of other regiments heard how the Sepoys who went to Afghanistan were treated by their own comrades, and heard what hardships they had undergone in Afghanistan, they became exceedingly dissatisfied and displeased with the Government for having ordered them there, and determined on the first favourable opportunity to show their feelings.

"The first symptoms of mutiny broke out in the 64th Native Infantry, who were ordered to Scinde on their arrival at Sukhar, and I believe previous to their arrival there they mutinied about their pay. The 7th Light Cavalry and several other regiments showed a most mutinous spirit, but beyond hanging a few men in the 64th, and transporting and dismissing others, the Government took but little notice of the bad feeling evinced.

"Some years after this the British went to war with the Sikhs, and annexed the Punjab to their dominions. On the annexation the native army occupied the country, and the Sepoys received double batta as long as they remained in the Punjab, but the British Government never openly proclaimed how long batta would be granted. From avarice and love of money the Sepoys liked serving in the Punjab. When the regiments in the Punjab had served a certain time they were relieved by other regiments from Hindostan. The relieving regiments were not allowed double batta, but drew what they would have drawn in their own provinces.

"This was looked upon as a great grievance. For this reason the 66th at Umritsar mutinied and were disbanded, and in my humble opinion was very properly treated; for if an army is faithless to its salt, and can decide as to the proper amount of pay it is to receive, of what good is it? It is right for every one to receive according to his deserts. The 32nd and 22nd Native Infantry also showed symptoms of mutiny, but they were hushed up. The Government must be well aware that when a soldier has once or twice shown a disposition to mutiny he is useless as a soldier; one mutinous Sepoy infects his whole company, and gradually one man after another, either from fear or sympathy, joins the mutineers.

"It is very necessary, when any Sepoy or Sepoys mutiny, that the commanding officer of the regiment should report fully the whole circumstance to the Government: how otherwise can Government become aware of the fact, and make proper arrangements to prevent the mutinous feeling from spreading?

"Many commanding officers to my knowledge reported their regiments all right when they knew that there were discontent and bad feeling in the ranks, and, to my belief, for the sake of the name of their respective regiments, concealed the real state of their regiments until at length the Sepoys took to murdering their officers.

"I feel perfectly convinced that up to the present time the real cause of the mutiny, and the feeling of the country generally against the British rule, is not well known to the State. It is for this reason that I am now taking the liberty of expressing my views on the subject.

"I will now attempt to explain why the sirdars and higher classes of Hindostan became disaffected to the British Government.

"In 1849 or 1850 the authorities at Saharanpore caused a large hospital to be built for the sick of all creeds and persuasions. The principal authorities (I purposely abstain from giving names, although I could do so) issued a proclamation saying that all sick men or women, high or low, 'purdah nishheen' (those who never go out in public), or others, must resort to this hospital for treatment, and all native practitioners were forbidden to prescribe or attend sick people. When the meaning of this proclamation was explained to the chief people they collected many men together for the purpose of making a disturbance, for these people imagined in their ignorance that it was the intention of the British to take away the dignity and honour of all; on this account they became angry and excited, and determined to offer opposition, but for want of arms they could do nothing. When the authorities saw the bad feeling the proclamation had produced they withdrew it, and the excitement for a time subsided.

"A year or two after this my regiment, the 8th Native Infantry, was cantoned at Shahjehanpore. I was in the habit of visiting the chief people of the city. In course of conversation these people said to me, 'If any of our brothers commit any offence against the State, according to the nature of the offence and by the laws of the land they get punished; this is all very right and proper, and we have nothing to say against it, but the law must be bad which by its infliction ruins our religion; for instance, when any one is sentenced to imprisonment immediately on his reaching the prison his beard and moustache are cut; this to us is a great insult. In gaol it is ordered that the prisoners should eat in messes, the Mahomedans by themselves, and the the Hindoos by themselves; this is no outrage to a Mahomedan, but it is a great one to the feelings and religion of a Hindoo. One Hindoo won't eat from the hand of another unless they happen to be brothers or cousins. The Government is also well aware that there are many kinds of Brahmins; for instance, there are Tewarees, Dhobies, Choubies, Paundes, Missers, Opadiahs, Sookhuls, Baghpais, Agunitries, &c.; none of these, though all Brahmins, will eat from each other's hands—that is, won't eat what the other cooks. I ask, what is the use of such men in any army? To give an instance, among the 50 Sikhs of the regiment lately besieged at Arrah there was a Hindostanee Brahmin; this man, for five or six days, neither ate nor drank anything; at the end of this time he was so reduced that he could scarcely stand. He was of no use in the garrison, even had he been trusted; the other men, European or Sikhs, came out as well as they went in. On account of these prison arrangements it was the general opinion that the Government wished to do away with all caste. When any Hindoo is released from prison he is always tabooed by his family, and looked upon as having lost caste. On this account both the prisoner and his relatives become disaffected towards the Government. The above strictness was carried out in many gaols, in consequence of which disturbances broke out in the Gyah, Arrah, Benares, and many other gaols.

"After these events the missionaries requested all the moulavies and pundits (Mahomedan and Hindoo priests) to assemble, and when assembled asked them why they shut up their women; that they ought to let them out like women of other countries; told them that they ought not to circumcise their children, or give them the janeo, or marry them until they were eighteen years of age; and that none of the above forms should be carried out without the permission of the magistrate of the district. These questions and remarks caused great fear in the minds of both the Mahomedans and the Hindoos. They said among themselves, 'If the Government insists upon our acting up to these orders, what next shall we not be compelled to do against our customs and religion?' To talk over this matter many persons of both religions assembled in Calcutta. The missionaries of the Mofussil also spoke to the same effect to the villagers, so that all, more or less, became alarmed for their religion and displeased with the Government, for they thought the missionaries dared not give such orders without the consent of the Government.

"The Government is well aware that the generality of the inhabitants of Hindostan are uneducated and extremely bigoted, and the more educated they are the more bigoted; they have no books or literature, and think what their fathers did before them must be the best; for instance, they wear the same clothes, of the same pattern as their ancestors did before them, and imagine that if they put on a coat or trousers of an English cut it indicates a Christian; they think anything new or anything they don't understand must be meant, in some way or other, to affect their religion.

"From this foolishness on their part all the late anarchy and ruin have come to pass."

[To be concluded in our next.]

ARRIVAL OF THE HEAVY CALCUTTA AND CHINA MAILS.—(SOUTHAMPTON, Dec. 2.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Nyanza, Captain Weeks, with the heavy portion of the above mails, arrived here this morning. She brings 64 passengers, specie, £792, and a general cargo, including 1,300 bales raw silk, value £95,000 sterling.

MISCELLANEOUS.

WEDDING IN THE TEMPLE CHURCH.—Yesterday (Tuesday) morning, for the first time for nearly a hundred years, a marriage was solemnised at the Temple Church, Fleet-street, which was not originally licensed for the celebration of marriages. Mr. Arthur Hornby, late of the Bombay Civil Service, son of Mr. John Hornby, of The Hook, Hampshire, and brother of the Countess of Egmont, was married by special licence to Esther Dornfield, daughter of the Rev. Thomas Robinson, D.D., Master of the Temple, and Canon of Rochester, late Lord Almoner's Reader at Cambridge, and Archdeacon of Madras. From the Master's house in the Temple to the gates the path was covered with a canopy, and surrounded with beautiful evergreens and festoons of flowers and leaves along the garden. The bride was attended by Miss M. Robinson, Miss Duffy, and the Misses Hoare as bridesmaids, and arrived at the church shortly before twelve. She was given away by her venerable father, the service being performed by the Rev. C. E. R. Robinson (her brother), the incumbent of Holy Trinity, Gravesend, and honorary canon of Rochester, the Rev. J. G. Lonsdale, canon of Lichfield and Reader at the Temple, and the Rev. Mr. Buller. A breakfast was given afterwards at the Master's house—among the guests being the Countess of Egmont, Captain and Mrs. and Miss Hoare, Captain and Mrs. Bedford, the Rev. Canon Lonsdale, Captain and Mrs. Buller, Mr. and Mrs. O. Hornby, &c.

STRANGE IF TRUE.—Several London journals have noticed with considerable severity a case of which we take the following account from the Pall Mall Gazette:—"The last advices from Simla announce that on the 16th day of September, 1865, Gunner John Rochford, No. 251, of the 19th Brigade Royal Artillery, has been sentenced by a general court-martial, 'E. Kaye, Colonel, president,' to five years' penal servitude, 'for having, when a prisoner under the sentence of a district court-martial, disobeyed the lawful command of his superior officer, Provost-Sergeant T. O'Keefe, to scrub the boards of his cell.' To this sentence the court appended the further recommendation that, should the culprit survive the term of his servitude, he 'shall be discharged from her Majesty's service with ignominy.' Sir William Mansfield, Commander-in-Chief in India, has confirmed and approved this apparently excessive punishment for an act of 'insubordination' unaccompanied by violence. Possibly the condition in which Sir William has found the British army in India renders such severity necessary, and we are not inclined, in the complete ignorance in which we are as to the facts of the case, to call in question the justice and humanity of so distinguished and enlightened an officer. But if a private artilleryman is thus condemned to what, in a tropical climate, amounts to penal servitude for life, we await with anxiety, not unmixed with trepidation, the punishment which will be awarded to the three field officers of the 6th Dragoons who have been reported to his Excellency by Sir C. Van Straubenzee for writing insubordinate letters from Mhow to their superior officers. We shudder, also, for the probable fate of General Green, the officer in command of the Mhow division, who has been guilty of the peculiarly military crime of writing to the Times to accuse his superior officer—i.e. less a personage than Sir W. Mansfield himself—of deliberate falsehood."

BANDA AND KIRWA PRIZE-MONEY.—At the Admiralty Court, on the 28th ult., before Dr. Lushington, Dr. Deane, Q.C., applied on the part of Sir Hugh Rose that the evidence might be closed by the 8th December, and the case proceed, without any further delay, to the hearing on the 8th of January. The Queen's Advocate had no objection to the motion, but only as to the copies of the evidence to be delivered. Mr. V. Lushington, Mr. C. Pollock, and other learned counsel for their respective claimants concurred in the proposal. Mr. Bayford, for General Wheeler, could not agree to the motion, as search was being made for a later, and additional evidence might be filed. He thought a supplemental bill, as in Chancery, might be filed if permitted by the court. His lordship approved of the suggestion of the learned counsel, Mr. Bayford, but after some discussion the evidence was directed to be closed by December 8th, and the case finally heard on the 8th of January.

PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL COMPANY.—The twenty-fifth annual report of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company, presented at their annual meeting yesterday (Tuesday), shows that the company stood possessed on the 30th September last of £3,706,013. 14s. 5d. in ships, docks, and other property at home and abroad. The capital account of £3,248,336. 11s. 4d. presents a surplus of £458,651. 3s. 1d. The gross revenue was £2,136,076. 8s. 9d., leaving a net profit of £159,077. 7s. 3d. Out of this a dividend of 3½ per cent. was paid at the half-yearly meeting ending in March, and the same is recommended in the present report, carrying over a balance of £6,827. 7s. 3d. The directors deplore the loss of the Corca, a vessel of the value of £26,000, which is supposed to have foundered in a typhoon in the Chinese seas on the night of the 29th June. They have also to report damage by the cyclone at Calcutta to the extent of £17,075. 9s. 11d. Mr. A. Anderson, the chairman, on moving the adoption of the report, remarked with regret upon the more than ordinary mortality amongst the employees of the company, and took occasion to say that the distress of the survivors had been alleviated by the benefits accruing from insurance. On the subject of the Australian postage the chairman combated the complaints that had been publicly made, and he maintained that the delays were not longer than were rendered inevitable by the ordinary exigencies of the wind and weather. In the course of discussion it was recommended that the company should carry second-class passengers. Ultimately the report was adopted. There are 10,000 men afloat in the service of the company; the navigation in one year is about 1,500,000 miles.

CALCUTTA AND SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY.—The half-yearly meeting of the shareholders was held on the 30th ult., at 211, Gresham-house. Mr. Borradaile was in the chair, and in moving the adoption of the report, an abstract of which has already appeared in these columns, said that the principal matter of interest was still the operations of the Canning Company, who were making good progress in their arrangements for the wharfage for the shipping during the cold season. He had reason to believe that some of the coasting steamers that had left Calcutta would be ordered, on their return voyage in the present month, to proceed to the Muttah and take up their quarters there, and it depended on the facilities afforded by the company whether the latter would have a continuous line of steamers to the port. The report was then adopted. Mr. Marsham, in answer to a question from a shareholder, said that the question of the bridge across the Hooghly would no doubt, but for the accident to Sir C. Wood, have been settled by this time. The proposal was that such a bridge should be constructed for the purpose of connecting the East Indian line with that of the Calcutta and South-Eastern Company. It was not exactly determined in what manner that connection should be made, as it was rather a question of the purchase of land in Calcutta; but he thought it was the purpose of the East Indian Railway Company and the Government that there should be a junction at some one point. It was expected that as soon as the bridge was completed the cargoes of vessels coming to Muttah would be sent direct, without any breakage, up the country through the East Indian Railway, which would be a matter of the greatest importance to both of the railway companies. The expenditure for the construction of the bridge would be large. He believed the expense would be borne by the East Indian Railway Company, and there was no doubt the work would be completed within four or five years.

SCINDE RAILWAY.—The acting agent writes, under date of 21th October:—"The traffic continues steadily to improve, and I am very confident that this current half-year will show very well indeed. The expenses will show a marked difference, but this will be still more apparent in the next half-year. Much praise has been bestowed by the military authorities on the officers of the Scinde Railway for the efficient manner in which they conveyed several regiments along the line. Great interest continues to be felt, both in Scinde and the Punjab in the extension of the Scinde Railway to Mooltan."

PUNJAB RAILWAY.—The acting agent reports on the 18th of October:—"I am glad to be able to say that the present month has brought additional traffic, and I am sanguine that this, the first cold season since the entire line was open, will show very hopeful results."

INDIAN TRAMWAY COMPANY (LIMITED).—The fourth ordinary meeting of the shareholders of this company was held on the 29th ult. at 62, Moorgate-street: Sir Macdonald Stephenson, chairman, in the chair. On the motion of the chairman the report, the substance of which has already appeared, was adopted unanimously. On the motion of Mr. Alderman Rose, seconded by Mr. Lowndes, J. F. Leith, Esq., Sir M. Stephenson, and G. Norton, Esq., directors, who retired by rotation, were re-elected. Mr. J. A. Franklin and Mr. G. Smith were re-elected auditors for the current year. Captain James Cundy moved—"That the directors be paid the usual remuneration for their services since the establishment of the company, and that they be requested to accept it in paid-up shares out of those remaining unallotted." Mr. H. Pratt seconded the resolution, which was carried. This terminated the business of the ordinary general meeting, which was then made special, when, on the motion of Mr. Hodgson Pratt, seconded by Mr. Alderman Rose, the following resolution was adopted—"That the directors be and are hereby authorised to arrange with the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for India in Council for the extension of the line from Conjeeveram to Pondicherry, upon such terms as the board may approve, subject to confirmation by the shareholders at a meeting to be convened for the purpose."

CHINA STEAM SHIP AND LABUAN COAL COMPANY.—The directors have issued a short report in which they state that, referring to their circular of the 7th July last, they take the occasion of the return of Mr. Price, the secretary of the company, from China and India, to lay before the shareholders some particulars of the affairs of the company, as also extracts from the correspondence of Mr. Pitman, the marine superintendent in the East. The steamers of the company are being actively employed, and the directors have now before them valuable suggestions for augmenting their fleet and securing additional openings for profitable employment of the vessels. Mr. Price was enabled to dispose of the steam ship Elgin in Japan upon favourable terms, and the board are in negotiation for replacing her at once with a vessel of larger carrying powers, more suitable for their present requirements. The only difficulty with which the company has now to contend, is that of shipping in regular and sufficient quantities. It is the aim of the board to introduce a steady and permanent supply of labour as soon as possible. With this view they are in correspondence with the Secretary for the Colonies for a grant of land to enable the company to make free grants to married Chinese, by which means they become actual settlers in the colony.

THE MADRAS IRRIGATION AND CANAL COMPANY.—The thirteenth ordinary general meeting of the shareholders of this company was held on the 29th ult., at Great Queen-street-place, Southwark-bridge: James Thomson, Esq., in the chair. The Chairman, in moving that the report (the substance of which has already appeared) be received and adopted, entered minutely into every detail connected with the various works in progress, and stated that a sum of £6,000 had been sanctioned for the coating of the ancient, and the effect of the granite coating would be to raise it by one foot, without any damage likely to arise from the increased facilities of improving the main canal. Telegraphic communication was about being laid on between Sovakasala and Cuddapah, at a charge of £34 per mile, the distance being 170 miles. In looking at the financial position of the company, they had had many difficulties to contend against both from within and without, and there had been a want of sympathy on the part of the Government, seeing that the effect of the enterprise must be beneficial to the ryots. He had heard it stated that their works had proved a failure, but there had never been anything like a failure. The canal had cost more than was originally contemplated, but when completed it would confer the greatest benefits on the country. The hon. gentleman stated that in order to complete the first section of their work it would be necessary to appeal to the public for additional capital. The motion having been seconded by the Hon. P. P. Bouverie was carried unanimously after a desultory conversation. The retiring directors were re-elected, and a vote of thanks to the chairman and other officers was carried with acclamation.

EAST INDIA IRRIGATION AND CANAL COMPANY.—The ninth ordinary general meeting of the shareholders in the above company was held on the 30th ult., at Queen-street-place, Southwark-bridge; the chair was occupied by Mr. James Thomson, chairman of the company. The Chairman moved the adoption of the report, which he presumed would be taken as read, and was very sorry that the recent news had not quite borne out the anticipations expressed at the last meeting; but of course no human precautions could have guarded against the inundations which had so much retarded the works. They had had to pass through the whole period of the rainy season, but by the latest accounts active operations had been resumed. They had followed the plan of confining their operations to such portions of their undertaking as they thought would give a remunerative dividend on their existing capital, and their calculations under that head had been pretty fairly borne out. Having detailed the state of advancement which each portion of the works had attained, and which was highly satisfactory, he stated that for these canals the company anticipated a traffic of 100,000 tons annually, which of itself would yield a satisfactory return for the money expended. With respect to the irrigation project, he saw no reason for doubting that when completed it would yield a return of 22 per cent.—(hear, hear). The report was agreed to, as were also resolutions re-appointing the outgoing directors and auditors.

DESPATCH OF THE CALCUTTA AND CHINA MAILS.—SOUTHAMPTON, Dec. 4.—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Pera, Captain Jamieson, sailed hence this afternoon with the mails for Gibraltar, the Mediterranean, Egypt, Aden, Ceylon, India and China. She took out one hundred and ten first and forty-five second-class passengers, and on freight specie value £34,890. 2s., for the following ports, viz.:—Galle, jewellery, £50; Madras, gold coin, £4,750. 10s.; silver coin, gold thread, &c., £798. 12s.; Calcutta, bar silver, £1,350; Singapore, dollars, £10,000, jewellery, &c., £648; Hong Kong, dollars, £15,110, watches, jewellery, &c., £2,033; and for Foochow, watches, £150.

ARRIVAL OF THE HEAVY BOMBAY MAILS.—(SOUTHAMPTON, Nov. 28.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Delta, Captain Kellock, with the Bombay and Mediterranean mails, arrived here to-day. She brings forty-two passengers, including Major Seaman, from Bombay, and General Castilla, from Gibraltar. The Delta brings on freight 19 packages specie, value £4,788; and pearls value 27,000 rupees.

MALTA AND ALEXANDRIA TELEGRAPH.—Intelligence has been received that the "fault" by which the traffic over the Malta and Alexandria telegraph line was suspended for eight days has been repaired. The short time that was occupied in completing the repairs and renewing telegraphic communication is ascribable to the circumstance of a vessel being stationed at Malta, provided with a stock of spare cable and an experienced staff.

EXPORT OF SPECIE.—The Pera, which left Southampton on the 4th instant, took out £31,211, of which £4,751 is in gold, and the rest in silver.

BY DAVID THOMAS ANSTED, M.A., F.R.S., &c.

AND

ROBERT GORDON LATHAM, M.A., M.D., F.R.S., &c.

The Illustrations drawn on Wood expressly for the Work, by PAUL J. NAFEL, Member of the London Society of Painters in Water Colours.

"The 'Channel Islands' is an excellent book of its class—well conceived, well written, well illustrated, well printed. It is the possession of many hands, and every hand a good one. Nearly every thing which a man can desire to know about Jersey, Guernsey, Alderney, and Sark—about their history, geography, and natural history—Professor Ansted and Dr. Latham have contrived to tell. Altogether the contents of the volume are as varied and interesting as a well-sustained drama; and to this drama no more graceful and picturesque scenery could have been furnished than we find in the illustrations so profusely given by artists worthy of the subject and equal to their worth—Paul Nafel and M. Percey Le Lièvre. The result is not a merely handsome volume of the old 'Keppake' style, made to sell on the book-lot, but a book of rare merit and value, made for instruction and delight, to be read with pleasure and to be referred to with profit."—Athenaeum, Nov. 15, 1862.

TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES,
14, CATHERINE STREET, STRAND, LONDON.

The great superiority of the Billiard Tables manufactured by this Firm is fully attested by the fact of their Tables having been patronized by Royalty since the reign of George III., during which period they have been honoured also by the patronage of the principal Nobility and Gentry of England, nearly 50 of Her Majesty's and the Native Regiments at home and abroad, and more than one hundred of the principal London, Provincial, and Foreign Clubs.

EXPANDING SADDLE.

GIBSON AND COMPANY

Respectfully invite the attention of MILITARY MEN, EQUESTRIANS, and OWNERS OF HORSES, to their Newly-Invented EXPANDING SADDLE, which admits of ready adjustment to the size of any horse, creating a secure and easy seat without the slightest inconvenience to either horse or rider. The principle of EXPANSION and CONTRACTION comprises a simple arrangement of mechanism within the saddle so perfect, that by merely turning a screw the pad is proportioned to the size and form of the animal, on which it firmly rests with a uniform pressure, and is securely retained in its position by means of an ordinary girth.

This invention has obtained the approval and distinguished patronage of HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF, and from the very favourable opinions expressed by competent judges, and all who have had an opportunity of testing its merits, there is no doubt it will come into general use; indeed, its success is already established.

THE NEW THEORY IN RIFLES.

Lieutenant James Forsyth, in his excellent work, "The Sporting Rifle, &c.," first promulgated the startling theory that Rifles could be so constructed as to lessen the elevation by increasing the charge of powder. This theory, which the Advertiser has proven to be correct, alters the whole position of Rifles in favour of the sportsman. Formerly, with a high trajectory, the bullet which would have hit a tiger in a vital part at 100 yards, would pass over his back at 25 or 50 yards. By the new system, as elaborated and perfected in DOUGALL'S LOCKFAST BREECHLOADERS, there is a point-blank range to 150 yards, combined with a velocity and smashing power hitherto unknown. (See TIMES, 11th October, 1864.) No other Rifle possesses the same advantages.

street, Piccadilly, London.

much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had,

MRS. JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTH-ING SYRUP, FOR CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR

TEETH.—This inimitable remedy has preserved hundreds of children when thought past recovery from convulsions arising from painful dentition. As soon as the Syrup is rubbed on the gums the child will be relieved, the gums cooled, and the inflammation reduced. It is as innocent as efficacious, tending to produce the teeth with ease; and so pleasant, that no child will refuse to let its gums be rubbed with it. When infants are at the age of four months, the Syrup should be rubbed on the gums, and parents should never be without the Syrup in the nursery where there are young children; for, if a child wakes in the night with pains in the gums, the Syrup immediately gives ease, thereby preventing convulsions, fevers, &c. The great success of this medicine during the last twenty-five years has induced unprincipled persons to imitate it, under the name of American Soothing Syrup, and copying parts of Mrs. Johnson's Bills, &c. Parents will, therefore, be very particular to ask for JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTHING SYRUP, and to notice that the names of BARCLAY and SONS, 95, Farringdon-street, London (to whom Mrs. Johnson has sold the recipe), are on the stamp affixed to each bottle.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT.

—A frequent cause of gout and rheumatism is the inflammatory state of the blood, attended with bad digestion and general debility. A few doses of these Pills taken in time are an effectual preventive against gout and rheumatism, but any one who has an attack of either should use Holloway's Ointment also, the powerful properties of which, combined with the effect of the Pills, must infallibly effect a cure. These Pills act directly on the blood, which they purify and improve. They also regulate the secretions and give tone to the stomach, and thus the whole system is invigorated and put into a condition which enables it to stop the approach of the disease or throw it off.

ANILINE DYES.—"I shall commence my observations on dyeing, by referring especially to the remarkable and beautiful colours derived from coal tar, the introduction of which into this art may be said to constitute the chief distinction, as far as dyeing is concerned, between the present and the former Exhibition, creating, in fact, a new era in the tinctorial art. Coal tar colours deserve attention for their power, as well as for the facility with which they may be applied, for one grain will deeply tint half a gallon of water, and little or no skill is required for their application."—Vide Report by Grace Calvert, Esq., F.R.S., Ph.D., Honorary Professor of Chemistry.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

WE have received our usual files of papers, from Calcutta to the 11th of November, Madras to the 16th, and Ceylon to the 18th of that month. The regular date from Calcutta would be the 8th, but the detention of the Mooltan enabled the papers to issue later supplements to the Overland Summaries already despatched.

An account of the state of things in the Hooghly, which led to the detention of the mails, will be found elsewhere.

The Viceroy arrived at Calcutta on the 4th, as announced in our last; but it was not expected that the Legislative Council would proceed to business until some time this month. The bracing air of the Hills is said to have had the happiest effect upon his Excellency, who looked unusually healthy and robust.

The affairs of Bhootan still furnished the most important topic of conversation at the Presidency. Peace had not been announced, though it could not have been very far off, for the telegram received in London on the 15th of November was dated the 14th of that month, and was supposed to have been despatched even earlier, for it seemed difficult to suppose—judging by ordinary rates of speed—that the communication could have been made in one day. It may be, however, that the authorities in India cause extra exertions to be made when they have anything pleasant to tell. Not, however, that the anticipations of a pacific settlement were very favourably received. The general feeling on the subject seems to be expressed in the following remarks, which we find in the Hurkaru:—"It is as well that we have the Viceroy in Calcutta again, as strange rumours come floating down from Bhootan, which he will be better able to deal with than if he were at Simla. The Deb Rajah is apparently alive now to the folly and madness of his late conduct, for he is very urgent in his solicitations for peace. He has despatched 'envoys' to the frontier officials, for the purpose of arranging the terms, and he has avowed his desire to surrender all Bengalee captives who may be in his country, restore the document which the Honourable Mr. Eden was compelled to sign, take back the dooars which we have annexed, paying to the Government the annual revenue at which they are assessed, and so forth. Fears are entertained that his entreaties will be complied with, and that the troops now on the Frontier will, like those of the King of France, have to walk down again. We say 'fears,' as there are very few in India who are blind to the true character of these overtures. The experience of many years has taught us the melancholy lesson that Asiatic savages have no superior in the world in duplicity and fraud. When dangers threaten and the storm cloud lours, there is no people on earth who will fling themselves with such finished obsequiousness before their superiors, and consent to any and every condition with all conceivable promptitude; but the instant that the pressure is taken off, all the promises and stipulations which were conceded with such apparent readiness are whistled down the wind, and they only wait for a favourable moment to turn round and sting the hand that spared them." It appears that the Tounsoo Penlow having broken with the Bhootan Government, the latter had no hopes of making resistance, and their only chance was to cajole the British Government into making terms. According to a telegram dated Dewangiri, October 31st, Dewangiri had been re-occupied, but no Bhootas were to be seen, and the place was in ruins.

The absence of rain in Bengal was telling sadly against the prospects of the cold weather crops, which had been sown in anticipation of the usual showers. All over the country, we are told, the same despairing cry arises, and the approach of the long rainless season is apprehended with dread. In this emergency, however, the action of the committee of the Agricultural Exhibitions for the Burdwan and Nuddea divisions pointed to a relief agency ready to hand, and measures were being taken to carry it into effect. The question of stopping the exportation of rice, it was thought, would also have to be considered, and the Government were being urged to take the initiative in precautionary measures.

The "Mildew Committee" had made a report, of which we give the most essential part in another column.

The Government of Oude had followed suit to the Viceroy in reference to the repudiated despatch. A notification repeating Mr. Davies's denial of the reception of the document had been addressed to "all commissioners" in the province, but was principally intended for the information of the Talookdars. We reprint the document elsewhere.

The news from Madras has been for the most part anticipated by the last Bombay mail. The papers were still discussing the re-organisation of the local army and the Bangalore assault case. A friend of Mr. Watkins's, by the way, who was present at the horsewhipping, but not at the trial, assures the cornet in a private letter that he did not hit the editor after he was down. Why did he not speak before?

Money in Calcutta was easy and abundant. No change had been made in the rates of interest and discount by the Bank directors. In Madras the position of the market had much improved. The Bank had reduced the rate of interest and discount 2 per cent. all round.

The next arrival from India will be the Bombay Mail, which may be expected in London on Friday or Saturday next.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

THE MYSTERIOUS DESPATCH.

THE Government of India has at last pronounced upon the alleged secret despatch, in which Sir John Lawrence was made to declare official war against the talookdars of Oude, and decide upon the necessity for a revision of their sumuds. The official letter from the Governor-general in Council to the Secretary of State for India, published in our last number, declares as follows:—"As shown by the Chief Commissioner no such despatch was received by Mr. Davies, whose only instructions were communicated to him through Mr. Wingfield, the Chief Commissioner. It is needless for us to add that no letter of the number and date quoted, nor any letter whatever of the purport quoted, was issued by the Government of India. No instructions were at any time given to Mr. Davies but through the Chief Commissioner, Mr. Wingfield. The wishes of the Government in respect to the conduct of his duties by Mr. Davies are contained in the despatch of the Foreign Secretary, Colonel H. M. Durand, C.B., to the Chief Commissioner, No. 284, dated 30th September, 1864, as printed in the Blue-book upon Oude."

Sir John Lawrence is thus plainly absolved from official responsibility in the matter. Even were the despatch drafted in the Foreign Department—whence it is alleged to have been obtained—it was clearly never issued, and can therefore have no official existence. Its publication was therefore quite unwarrantable, and could have been effected only by surreptitious means. While supposing it to be the "forgery" which it is alleged to be—not by the Government, but by certain Government champions in the press—the offence clearly becomes one of far greater magnitude. It is not to be supposed, however, that, in the latter case, the delinquent would remain undetected, and the means taken for his discovery must determine the real origin of the document. In reference, too, to the avowed policy of Sir John Lawrence, so notably crippled by Sir Charles Wood's despatch of the 10th of February last, the Delhi Gazette makes a suggestion which is worthy of notice. Our contemporary, while awaiting a solution of the mystery from London, thus refers to the alleged correspondence with Mr. Davies as Financial Commissioner in Oude:—

"The subject being uppermost in our mind, we turn to Act XVI. of 1865, and endeavour to fathom its depth. It is styled 'An Act to Remove Doubts as to the Jurisdiction of the Revenue Courts in the Province of Oude in Suits relating to Land, and to Enlarge the Period of Limitation in such Suits.' It appears to us this law was intended to enable the local authorities to carry out the policy and objects laid down in the letter to Mr. Davies. The Act received the assent of the Governor-General on the 7th of April, 1865, and the doubtful letter is dated the 15th of September, 1864. Admitting that the latter was never written, or, having been written, was subsequently recalled, the former, it appears to us, was intended either to supply its place or to supplement it, as the case may be. The influence of considerations of policy rather than of justice is apparent in certain provisions of it. It takes from the cognisance of the ordinary courts (S. 4), and transfers to the Revenue Court, all suits, of whatever description, respecting the title, succession to, or possession of land (S. 2). It constitutes the Financial Commissioner the Court of Appeal (S. 2). It abrogates, as regards suits relating to any under-tenure, the law of limitation, and under-tenure holders may sue in any cause of action which has arisen since February 13th, 1844. It is true these special provisions as respects the exclusive jurisdiction of the Revenue courts are confined to districts in which the settlement of the revenue is in progress, but, at the same time, that may be every district. Still it is a special and exclusive jurisdiction for the time; and after that time the ordinary courts are to resume their jurisdiction (S. 7).

"It appears to us the object and the policy cannot be mistaken. But for the intervention of an influence which cannot be disposed, the obnoxious measure would have been, in spite of all ideas of right and wrong, forced upon the land-owners of the province of Oude. In awakening attention to Act XVI. and in the studiously brief remarks we have to offer on it, we are actuated by but one motive,—to trace the policy to its fountain-head, and to prove, so far as we can, that our views were not erroneous, that our conclusions were just and well founded, and that we are more than justified in the course we have pursued in this important controversy."

We repeat that Sir John Lawrence, by his denial of the issue of the despatch, removes any doubts which may have been suggested by Mr. Davies' simple disavowal of its reception. It is plain that the document has never made the official communication, and that the correspondent upon whose information we have relied has been deceived in the main matter. It is plain that the despatch should not have been published, and put to the use which has been made of it, even if it were originally the production of authority—a point which unfortunately still remains doubtful. But in any case—supposing the Government of India to have been so far wronged as to have incurred the censures of the press—both in India and at home—for nothing more than a forgery, there is still this to be said for those who may have fallen into the error. The case against the Government seemed as clear as could be, and the Government allowed months to pass without making an explanation.

BUSHE v. STANLEY.

THE removal of Lieut.-col. Stanley from the command of the 15th Regiment Bombay Native Infantry is being actively discussed by the Indian journals, and the real nature of the case is for the first time coming to light. It appears from the statement made on behalf of the Lieut.-colonel, that the evidence against that officer is by no means so conclusive as was alleged, and that it is by no means free from personal bias.

On the part of Lieut.-colonel Stanley it is declared that he was unaware either of having used abusive language to any officer, or ill-treated any man under his command, until many days after the alleged commission of the respective offences; and that in each case the charges were dictated entirely by personal animosity. Captain Bushe, it is maintained, could not have heard the language attributed to the Colonel, owing to his position on the parade ground, and that he relied upon the private reports of others, which private reports were not corroborated in the evidence given before the Court of Enquiry. Only one officer, Lieut. Goad, deposed to the language having been used, while another officer, Lieut. Armstrong, who was nearer to the Lieut.-colonel than Lieut. Goad was at the time, heard nothing more than one of the objectionable expletives alleged—applied to “somebody,” he could not say whom. Moreover, Capt. Bushe took no immediate notice of having received an insult, but associated on friendly terms with his commanding officer for five days afterwards, both at the mess and at the billiard-table. Thus Lieut.-colonel Stanley had no opportunity afforded him of making the amende, even had he been aware of having given offence. Another awkward point—according to the same authority—for Capt. Bushe, is that he offered at one time to withdraw the charge if Lieut.-colonel Stanley would promise not to bring a subsequent charge against him for making false statements; and so little, it is added, did he know the language of which he complained, that he declined to describe it before the Court, but chose to elicit it himself from the evidence.

With regard to the charge of wounding the sepoy, Lieut.-colonel Stanley complains of this also not being made at the time, but being in fact “trumped up” afterwards through personal animosity. And the circumstances, as alleged, look at least suspicious. The date of the alleged attack upon the sepoy was prior to that assigned to the abusive language, though the latter was made the subject of the first charge, and according to the Lieut.-colonel's friends the circumstances were these:—Upon the evening of the parade in question, a sepoy presented himself at the hospital to be treated for a wound which he said had been accidentally inflicted by the bayonet of a comrade. Upon the report being brought to the regimental surgeon, Dr. Thorold, Lieutenant Berthon, who for some reason was at the hospital, suggested that perhaps the man had been wounded by the Lieut.-colonel's sword, as he had seen that officer strike one of the sepoy's muskets with that weapon. The doctor adopted the idea, and before the Court of Enquiry said that he had probably misunderstood his assistant, who, in reporting the case must have said sword instead of “sungeen”—though, if he used the English word “sword,” one would think that he would use the English word “bayonet,” the man understanding English and reporting in that language. The sepoy himself, though he had twice repeated his first account of the affair, also adopted the surgeon's view at the Court of Enquiry, though, it is said, in so confused and prevaricating a manner as to be unworthy of credit. And, as a proof that he bore no ill-will to the commanding officer, he brought a brother of his next day for enlistment in the regiment. Lieutenant Goad, according to the same authority, was the witness against the accused on this charge also. The fact is admitted that the Lieutenant-colonel, seeing one of the companies getting crowded, and going all wrong, rode up angrily, and with his sword struck the musket of one of the men who had neglected to bring it to his shoulder at the halt. But Mr. Goad, and Mr. Goad alone, deposed that he had seen him at the same time cut the man across the shoulder—where the man was not touched at all! Moreover, certain words alleged by Mr. Goad to have accompanied the cut were not heard by others who had far better opportunity of hearing—as in the former case. It is added as a significant fact, that Mr. Berthon, who admitted on cross-examination having originated the idea of the wound being inflicted by the colonel's sword, bore the commanding officer a grudge in consequence of having been displaced by him from the adjutancy of the regiment.

The statement from which we draw these assertions may be of a partisan character; but unless the direct allegations which it contains are deliberate falsehoods, they leave the conduct of the accused in such a light as to justify the decision of the court and the local Commander-in-Chief. It is to be supposed that the Governor-general knows more of the matter than is made apparent to the public, for he has seen fit to over-rule the military authority, and remove Lieut.-colonel Stanley from the command of the regiment. That Sir John Lawrence has good reason for taking this course, in fact, we are bound to presume. But there ought to be some actual assurance of the fact. Here we have the friends of the parties on either side pelting each other in the papers, each dealing probably in exaggerated representations, and there is no authorised report of the proceedings upon which reliance can be placed. In all important cases, involving an officer's position in the service, such reports should be published. We should then be certain—let us hope—of the justice of a decision instead of having to take it for granted.

BENGAL.

THE REPUDIATED DESPATCH.

We published the Governor-General's notification upon this subject in our last. The following has since been issued by the Government of Oude:—

[Copy.]

Circular No. 67-2889.

From the Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of Oude to all Commissioners in Oude.—Dated Lucknow, Sept. 9, 1865.

Sir,—The Oude Gazette of this instant (9th September) contains an article extracted from the Press—a newspaper published in London—from which the following passage is taken:—

“Colonel H. M. Durand, Secretary to the Government of India in the Foreign Department, addressed a despatch (No. 917, dated Simla, the 15th September, 1864) to Mr. R. H. Davies, informing that gentleman that the Governor-General in Council had appointed him Financial Commissioner for the province of Oude, and conveying to him instructions for his guidance in his new office. The third, fourth, and fifth paragraphs of that despatch are as follows:—

“3. His Excellency views with much displeasure the system which has sprung up in Oude since the mutinies of conferring upon talookdars the sole proprietary right in lands, to the exclusion of all tenants' rights, thus placing the sole power in the hands of an aristocracy who, until very recently, were our open and avowed enemies.

“4. This system, I am directed to remark, has been based upon a mistaken policy. While his Excellency is willing to concede to the aristocracy of Oude all the privileges to which they are by hereditary right entitled, he cannot consent to place in their hands irresponsible power, thereby subjecting the tenants to an evil nowhere else existing in India.

“5. A total revision of the sunnuds becomes necessary.”

2. I am directed by the officiating chief commissioner to request that you will take immediate measures to inform the principal talookdars of your division that the pretended despatch above referred to was never received by Mr. Davies. The only instructions relative to the sunnuds received by the financial commissioner were forwarded to him by the chief commissioner, and are contained in the following extract from Colonel Durand's letter, No. 284, dated 30th September, 1864:—“You will carefully impress upon the talookdars that, whilst his Excellency in Council has no desire or intention of infringing the terms of the sunnuds granted them so long as they abide by the conditions binding on themselves,” &c., &c.

3. I am to request that there may be no delay in executing the orders contained in this report, and that you will furnish an early report of the manner in which they have been carried out.—I have, &c., J. REID, Secretary.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE OF THE BENGAL CHAMBER OF COMMERCE APPOINTED TO CONSIDER THE QUESTION OF MILDEW DAMAGE IN PIECE GOODS AND YARN.

In submitting an abstract statement of the extent of mildew damage, compiled from returns furnished by commercial firms, the committee remark as follows:—In accordance with the resolution passed at the general meeting held on the 5th ult., they have endeavoured to ascertain the extent of the evil, the losses incurred by goods so damaged, and the many serious injuries with which its prevalence has been accompanied; but they have not in any way alluded to the cause or origin of mildew in English cotton fabrics, nor have they suggested a remedy.

2. Several large importers (who are well known to have experienced extensive damage of this nature) having declined to contribute their returns, it is to be regretted that fuller and consequently more valuable statistics cannot be furnished; the committee are however of opinion that the returns now published sufficiently serve to show the alarming extent to which this important branch of our trade has been affected.

3. Apart from the consideration of the pecuniary losses incurred by allowances and re-sales, your committee desire to draw particular attention to the additional and perhaps more serious evils arising from the prevalence of mildew; they allude to the forfeiture of that confidence which native dealers formerly had in English-made cloth of known marks and numbers, the endless disputes which have proceeded from the settlement of allowances, and the many instances of litigation which have resulted from the buyers refusing to take delivery of or pay in full for damaged goods.

4. There are strong grounds for concluding that the prevalence of this evil has seriously interfered with the consumption of English manufactures in this country; their durability has undoubtedly deteriorated, and there has been an increased demand for country made fabrics; this aversion to purchase English cloth has been very general of late, and up-country dealers complain bitterly of the losses they have sustained by the purchase of goods, which, on arrival, have opened out damaged by mildew, or rotten and worthless; their agents here are inundated with claims and complaints, but no allowances are usually given by European houses when the bales have once left their godowns. In order more fully to illustrate the subject matter of these complaints, your committee think that the publication of extracts from native letters may prove of some weight; they have accordingly inserted copies of several placed at their disposal by a member of the Chamber.

5. An analysis of the returns show the following percentage of goods and yarn which have turned out damaged by mildew:—

White Mule Yarn	...	12	per cent.
Coloured ditto	...	63	"
Grey Shirtings and Long Cloths	21	"
Grey Jaconets and Mulls	21	"
Grey Madapollams and T. Cloths	17	"
Coloured Goods	...	3	"
Bleached Goods	...	3	"

The damage is chiefly confined to grey cloth, the percentage on bleached and coloured being only 2½ per cent., while on grey it is as much as 21½ per cent. Your committee trust that the publication of these figures amongst those interested in the trade of this country, particularly manufacturers and shippers of fabrics suited for this market, will have a beneficial effect, and that this evil, which threatens to materially diminish the consumption of English made cloth, will speedily disappear.

NATIVE TITLES.

The question of native titles, their value and significance, is one which ever and anon comes to the surface in a manner which suggests the necessity for settling it once for all, in order to avoid future squabbles and small instances of unpleasantness. The other day only the Viceroy conferred upon Ooron, "the elect of the people" of Murriaow, in the Cossyah Hills, the title of rajah for life. Yet it would seem that this is not proper, and that it gives Ooron false notions of his consequence to receive a dignity which was a strange thing to his fathers. The Commissioner of Assam recommends that "rajah" be disused, and "seem" substituted in its place; so that we are threatened with an addition to the thousand and one appellations by which rank and chieftainship are acknowledged in India. Without going into detail, it may be said that the time has come to give the Empire a substantial proof of our supremacy and stability, by a revision of the grades of aristocracy throughout its length, and by the promulgation of degrees of rank depending upon the empire, and emanating through the Viceroy from the Sovereign. When the sons of the Nawab Nazim of Bengal went to England the Viceroy, as a matter of favour, allowed them to be addressed as "Mirza," but remarked that the favour was not to be extended to the other sons. This was felt at Moorshedabad to be a somewhat harsh ruling, and it accordingly led to a correspondence. The decision of the Viceroy, moreover, induced a small complication. Neither of the young men who went to England was the son of the principal or Shadee wife of the Nawab, and was not, therefore, the heir. But, if the rule was regarded as final, these three young men would enjoy a designation which, apart from anything else, was a sign of rank and nobility, but which the heir to the Nawab Nazim would not enjoy. The Nawab having explained his views, the Bengal Government has submitted the correspondence to the Governor-General. The Lieutenant-Governor is evidently puzzled, and wishes to know whether the affix "Mirza" is to be acknowledged as part of the name of each of the Nawab's sons, and also whether the further designation of "Bahadur" is to be officially recognised. Mr. Beadon thus states the matter:—"It was probably not the intention of his Excellency in Council to oblige the Nawab Nazim to use the honorific title of Mirza before the names of his three sons who have gone to England, if he objects to it. But this is not the question. The question is whether with, or without the prefix "Mirza" or "Syud" the sons of the Nawab Nazim may be permitted to adopt the appellation of "Mirza" (as a cognomen or rather agnomen), together with the ordinary accompanying title of "Bahadur," which, in construction with Khan, has been held, in the case of public officers, to be equivalent of the English "Esquire." The question involved is, however, more than this. It is simply what are to be the titles of the sons and eldest sons of natives of rank, whether this be hereditary or for life only? Take the case of the sons of the Nawab Nazim, they have other titles than Mirza, just as the sons of the King of Oude have. At the time of the Alipore Exhibition they were invited to attend the levee at Belvedere by these titles, as well as "Mirza." The eldest son of the Nawab is named Hossun Ali, his full address is "Aalla Qudr Syud Hossun Ali Mirza, Khan Bahadur." To speak of him as Mirza Hossun Ali would be to deprive the title of all its significance, and to reduce the Mirza to a tribal designation as "Syud," with this exception, that "Syud" denotes the descendants of Ali, whilst "Mirza" is affected by the Moguls. Under any circumstances the word "Syud" would be retained, whilst "Mirza" used as an affix, would, at the present day, denote the claim of the father to princely rank. But whilst this question is on the tapis, why not settle it thoroughly, and decide it on some general principle which should dispose of "Qudr" as well, and be applicable to the whole body of nobles of British India?—Hurkaru.

EDUCATION IN THE PUNJAB.

The Report of the Director of Public Instruction in the Punjab is a very satisfactory one. Progress is apparent in every page of it; colleges, zillah schools, female schools, normal schools, girls' schools, and last, though by no means the least, the mission schools are all advancing steadily, yet not too swiftly. This state of things has roused the anxiety of Captain Fuller on the subject of finances, the present amount allowed by the State being in his opinion inadequate to the strain which is being brought to bear upon it. In 1863-64 four lacs were allotted for education, science, and art in the Punjab, of which, however, only a little more than three lacs found their way into the hands of the director, the balance having strayed away to the Botanical Gardens, Lahore Medical School, &c. To make the matter worse, Captain Fuller was prevented by want of sanction to details of expenditure from expending a little more than a couple of lacs of that balance. In the ensuing year the budget allotment was raised to five lacs; but, judging from the formidable rate of progress which is apparent on all sides, that officer is compelled to state his opinion that the sum allowed is not enough.

In reply to this, the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab points to the fact of the increased allowance as evidence of the willingness of the Government to contribute liberally to the cause of education, consents to share with the director the blame which arises from the unsatisfactory way in which fragments of last year's Budget were allowed to drop off, and concludes by administering a wiggling to the director for introducing comments on the actions and opinions of Government, and of discussions upon questions already decided, into the pages of an annual report, intended to be a record of progress. It will be more pleasant, however, to turn from the squabble, and chronicle briefly what has been done by the Government of the Punjab for the education of the people within its jurisdiction. The number of schools has increased by no less than two hundred, attended by an average number of upwards of seventy-six thousand pupils. The 684 female schools are attended by 15,266 girls; and in one district, that of Jullundur, the number of girls' schools is greater than those for boys. The great majority of the pupils attending these latter institutions are Mahomedans, 151, some of whom are learning English, and the rest Urdu, Persian, and Hindi, in the Nagri character. In consequence of the constant encouragement given by the Hon. the Lieutenant-governor, the movement in favour of female education is said to have greatly extended in popularity and influence among all classes of the native community. Captain Fuller tells us that one of the last acts of Sir Robert Montgomery was to confer rewards and certificates, with copies of Sir Charles Wood's despatch, commending the initiation of the movement on a large body of native gentlemen in almost every district, who had been foremost in the furtherance of female education. What a melancholy contrast does this picture of successful energy present to that which the Bengal Reports hold up of female education in this unfortunate province. In the former province there are 684 schools, with an average daily attendance of 15,266 girls, in the latter we have less than a hundred schools. As to the unfortunate Bethune school, we can scarcely be blamed if we say that it has proved to be, on the whole, a lamentable failure. The school has been nearly a score of years in existence, and we question much whether matters have much improved since Mr. Woodrow penned his gloomy report of its results in 1863-4:—"Only 24 girls out of the 64 in attendance were accustomed to attach any meaning to what they read. . . . The bhodroluk (the respectable), not the dhonilok (the rich), send their children to the Bethune school." There is a great deal more of unfavourable comment on the school, of which, at one time, such great hopes were formed, and in which all but the native portion of the community took so deep an interest. Passing, however, from this, we shall proceed to notice the further evidence of an increased appreciation by the Punjab of the value of education, which is afforded in the increased amount collected of school fees, which rose in Zillah schools from seven thousand to ten thousand rupees, whilst the contributions from private and local sources for educational objects in aided institutions ran up from fifty thousand to seventy thousand rupees. Here, again, the Punjab contrasts favourably with Bengal, in which place the natives expect the Government to do everything for them, and to do it at all times. As the Queen's Proclamation is supposed to sanction this, of course there is nothing more to be said. The cost of instruction, however, in the Government Colleges at Lahore and Delhi is certainly inordinately high, being not less than Rs. 1,445 per head per annum. But the Lieutenant-governor very properly points out that, unless the Government intends to check the impetus lately given to education in the Punjab, it is absolutely necessary that this rate of expenditure be tolerated. "Our educational and administrative systems have hitherto tended to excite a strong desire for the study of English, and having excited this desire, it behoves us to provide the means of satisfying it in the best manner, however unequal the people may be to contribute adequately to the cost of it." There spoke out the Punjab Government; no higgling like a huckster, none of the miserable twaddle to which we are so accustomed in this province, which thwarts the noblest designs, by an absurd determination to bear only half the cost. The rule, per se, is invaluable, and when adhered to among such an avaricious, greedy and selfish race as the Bengalees, is often productive of good results, but the folly of applying it to every case, without any reference whatever to the importance of the ends to be achieved, is so obvious as to require no comment of ours. But, before closing this article, we desire to call attention to the educational durbars which are held from time to time in various parts of the Punjab, and to point to their exceeding value in imparting an impetus to education. One of these gatherings took place at Delhi, in March, at which the Lieutenant-governor and the Lord Bishop of Calcutta were present. Three thousand students were called in from the Delhi, Rhotuck, and Goorgaon districts; they were assembled on the esplanade, and were thence marched, with numerous flags and banners, with a band playing in front, to the durbar ground, where khilluts and sunnuds were distributed to those native gentlemen who had exerted themselves in the cause of education, and rewards were bestowed on teachers and pupils of zillah, mission, town, and village schools, the proceedings closing with a grand display of fireworks and an illumination. Another durbar of the same kind was held at Umballa, when the Loodianah, Umballa, and Kurnaul districts sent up their deserving scholars. On this occasion the commissioner, Colonel Taylor, delivered a most eloquent address in the vernacular, pointing out the great advantages resulting from a sound education. As Captain Fuller well observes, "such meetings have a most beneficial effect, and many people, who would never otherwise have done so, are thus induced to exert themselves in promoting the cause of education." Indeed, the importance of these gatherings can scarcely be over-estimated, and it is a great pity that the Government of Bengal does not break through its hum-drum system of doing things, and sanction the convention of such durbars both officially and personally. In conclusion, we may say that this report on Popular Education in the Punjab reflects the highest credit both on the Government of that province and on the Director of Public Instruction, with his able and energetic staff of inspectors and teachers.—Hurkaru.

DETENTION OF THE "MOOLTAN."—STATE OF THE RIVER.

A supplement to the Overland Hurkaru, dated Nov. 11, says:—

The detention of the mail, whilst it gives us an opportunity of adding to our summary of Wednesday last, is at the same time almost the only topic of news we can add to what we have already noticed. On Wednesday morning there was a rumour that something was wrong, either with the steamer or the river, and following hard upon the rumour came the intelligence that the inner Rangafullah Channel had silted up three feet in the course of one day. The rise of the tide at this particular spot is only fourteen feet, so that the news that the depth of water at low water had decreased to six feet instead of nine, the ordinary average depth of the channel, was a matter for the most serious alarm, as, if true, it entirely stopped the navigation of the river, for a time, at least, to all ships of first-class tonnage, the mail steamers amongst them. The report stopped the Golden Fleece on her way to Port Blair with convicts, at Diamond Harbour, and led to the detention of the Mooltan, until it was known whether the channel was safe for so large a ship, or whether, according to a well-known law of the river, the channel known as the outer Rangafullah Channel had deepened. There were two causes put forward to explain this most unusual occurrence; for, although the Rangafullah Channels are seldom free from change for a month together, these changes are not of any very important character, until the middle of the dry season. The first cause assigned was the grounding of the ship Continental, which sailed from the Liverpool with salt on the 15th July last. She was obliged to fling overboard the greater portion of her cargo, and floated yesterday. It was thought that by taking the ground she had given occasion for the formation of a bar, which, with the usual suddenness of such things in the Hooghly, had shoaled the water to three feet in one day. The other cause was based upon a well-known peculiarity of the channel. The Rangafullah channels are narrow, and are divided from each other by a long spit of sand, dry at low water, and by a long spit of sand, dry at low water, and give admittance to Mud Point channel by two bars, on which the latest chart, dated September 16th last, gives a depth of 8-6 feet and 9 feet respectively. It occasionally happens that the head of the spot between the channels is sliced off by the action of the tide, and when this occurs a "lump" is formed in the channel, which travels its whole length, and is finally dispersed near the bars. Finding the Continental theory insufficient to entirely account for this blocking up of the channel, it was urged that one of these travelling masses of sand had lodged on the bar, that the inner channel was consequently closed, and that, judging from all experience, the outer channel would assuredly open. Meantime the Marine authorities despatched the river surveyor to the assistance of the deputy-surveyor on the spot, and all Calcutta waited in alarm and dread, mixed largely with doubt, for his report. The formation of a bar so early in the season, and of such a character, was altogether unprecedented. Banksall ransacked its archives in vain to find a precedent, whilst outsiders, knowing that the freshets were scarcely out of the river, looked forward to the dry season, when the volume of water is much less than at present, with a curious kind of speculative wonder as to the probable frequency of such a misfortune during the next six months. Singular, however, to relate, a ship drawing 19 feet of water passed over the very spot on Wednesday; and on Thursday the Golden Fleece plucked up heart, dared the passage, and got to sea without an accident. As the Golden Fleece steamed out of the river, she passed the Simla with the mails of 10th October, inward bound, and the presence of this vessel a few hours afterwards at Diamond Harbour began to make the fact of the formation of the bar assume a very problematical appearance. This doubt was confirmed yesterday morning by the circulation of the following memo. :—

CIRCULAR.

I am happy to say that there is not less than 8 feet 6 inches water in the Silver Tree Channel, and my belief is, that there has never been less; but through some mistake a report was made of there being only 6 feet. An inquiry is now being held.

JOHN G. REDDIE, Master Attendant.

Master Attendant's-office, Nov. 10, 1865.

Calcutta has thus been made the victim of one of the most culpable mistakes which ever inflicted loss and inconvenience on a community, for it has been hoaxed in a fashion of which it is hard to speak in sufficiently strong terms. The Marine authorities have instituted an inquiry, which we sincerely trust will clear up whatever mystery hangs about this affair. The only other piece of news is that Dewangiri has been again occupied. It was found deserted, and although search was made, not the faintest trace of Bhootas could be discovered. Tounsoo Penlow will, no doubt, wait until the force be well within the hills before he tries the experiment which led to his defeat last cold season.

The Viceroy had fixed the 30th inst. for a levee and drawing-room; but it happened that the 30th is a great and high evening in Calcutta—an evening on which pious Scotchmen celebrate the mysteries of St. Andrew, and generally manage to get together the gathering of the year. This was pointed out to his Excellency, and so the Scotchmen were gratified by seeing in the next morning's papers a notification to the effect that the levee and drawing-room had been put off to the 1st of December.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ALLOWANCES TO UNCOVENANTED OFFICERS.—A question has lately arisen as to whether the period of suspension of an uncovenanted officer is to be counted towards pension. As the case which gave rise to the above-mentioned question occurred in a public office, under the immediate control of the Board of Revenue, the Government of Bengal requested the opinion of the Board on the subject. The Board decided that when an officer is acquitted of the charge for which he has been suspended from office he is entitled to his full pay and allowances, and the period of his suspension will be reckoned as service, and the salary of the officer appointed to officiate for him shall be paid by the State, but in case he is found guilty by a departmental inquiry, he must forfeit his pay and allowances, and the period of his suspension will not be counted towards pension if he is retained in service. The Government of India has approved of this decision, and made it applicable to all uncovenanted officers.

RETIRING ALLOWANCES.—We understand that on an appeal from Lieutenant P. Shuttleworth, of H.M.'s 46th Regiment of Foot, who has been permitted to resign the service from April last, the Government of India has sanctioned Indian pay and allowances to that officer up to the date of the acceptance of his resignation of his commission by her Majesty's Government. These allowances were objected to by the pay department on the ground that Indian pay and allowances are granted to retiring officers up to the date of the publication of the General Order in India. The Government of India has, however, ruled that officers retiring from, or resigning the service, are entitled to Indian allowances up to the date on which their resignation is accepted by the Home Government, and to that of the publication of the General Order from the Horse Guards in the London Gazette.—Bengal Hurkaru.

DEATH OF CAPT. BROWNLOW.—We regret to announce the death of Capt. H. R. Brownlow, R.A., Commissary of Ordnance at Allahabad. This officer, who for some time was in charge of the Arsenal of Agra, was obliged to proceed to England in 1862 on account of serious ill-health. The change, however, appears to have afforded him little relief, and he died at his post at Allahabad, much regretted by his friends and brother officers. This year has been remarkably fatal to the officers of the army.—Delhi Gazette, Nov. 7.

A LEGACY.—We hear from Almora, under date October 14, that Major T. E. B. Lees, of the Staff Corps, who lately died of cholera at Nynsee Tal, has bequeathed to a niece upwards of four lacs of rupees, which he had amassed from his tea plantations.—Central India Times.

CAPTAIN H. O. PRINSEP.—We understand that Captain H. O. Prinsep, late 3rd European Regiment, is likely to be appointed to act as Assistant Resident, Nepal.

WATERING THE PORTER!—A correspondent, writing from Secunderabad on canteens, relates the following:—"You would hardly believe me were I to tell you the disgusting practices resorted to by some sergeants in charge of canteens. I will mention one instance which occurred at this station. The men were kept out late at drill (the canteen sergeant along with the rest), and all came running in a fury to reach the canteen to quench their thirst; the sergeant outran them, and rushing in to his wife said, 'Norry, hasn't that bheestie come yet? here are all the men, and they are as thirsty as a steam-engine. I'll have to give them the porter as it is.' 'No, no,' says Norry, 'you can take this'—handing him the bath-tub containing the water from which she had just dragged the last of three children after their bath; in went the water, soap and all, into the porter, and the men of the regiment that evening, as on many others, verified the truth of the proverb, 'What the eye does not see, the heart does not grieve for.' This is not the worst case I know, and such things happen often in regimental canteens."

THE REMARRIAGE OF NATIVE CONVERTS.—The English in India are not the only persons who are waiting for the opening of the Legislative Council of the Governor-general with some anxiety. The natives are quite as much on the qui vive. They know that the Bill to legalise the remarriage of native converts will be one among the first to engage the attention of members; and it is not difficult to understand the grounds of their uneasiness. If the native press has been comparatively quiet on the subject, we are not disposed to attribute the fact to anything like indifference on the point. We rather believe that they are watching the controversy which has been raging among the clergy ever since the appearance of the Bill, and that they see sufficient grounds therein for hoping that if an enactment for the relief of native converts is passed at all it will not contain those provisions which disfigure the present Bill, and which have roused the hostility of the clergy of the Church of England. Mr. Maine's proposition finds favour only with the missionaries connected with Dissenting fraternities. These have seldom hesitated to sanction re-marriages of native converts, whose heathen wives are still living; but as this free-and-easy system has been arrested by the Marriage Act, the Legislative Council has been moved, by what we cannot help regarding as one-sided representations, to the present action. The views of those gentlemen are advocated by the Calcutta Christian Observer—a periodical which at one time commanded the respect of even those who did not subscribe to its strange theological views. The other party have a sober friend in the Calcutta Christian Intelligence, a publication which at one time appeared likely to suffer the fate which has overtaken the Observer, but from which it has been rescued by the able pens of the Bishop of Calcutta and the Rev. Dr. Kay, Principal of Bishop's College. These two papers have been engaged for the last year in a very warm discussion (conducted, we must say, with much Christian moderation and temper), in which the subject has been ripped up and dissected with considerable skill and patience; but, as usual, in all such cases, we don't believe that either party has been convinced by the logic of the other. Agreeing upon one point only, they differ on all the rest. The Bill, as it now stands, is not regarded with favour by either, yet each objects to the manner or extent to which the other would modify it. Both parties are prepared to assail Mr. Maine with memorials—that of the clergy of the Church of England bearing eighty-five, and that of the Dissenters one hundred and sixty-one signatures. The relative strength of the two parties is not, however, to be estimated by the number of signatures, because it is in evidence that many missionaries who do not belong to the Church of England would have signed the petition put forth by those who do, were they not prevented from doing so by its title, which represents the document as emanating distinctly from the clergy of that church.

OPIMUM SALE.—The following are results of the opium sale, held yesterday for the Government by Messrs. Mackenzie, Lyall, and Co.:—

	Chests.	Highest.	Lowest.	Proceeds.
Behar...	2,920	1,120	1,095	32,59,725
Benares...	2,455	1,100	1,080	26,38,300

Yesterday the sale of Benares opium was the same as at previous sales. The usual quantity of the Behar drug was also sold. At the October sale, it will be remembered, there was a falling off of 300 chests. The following table will show the prices realised since August:—

BENAR.
	Highest.	Lowest.	Average.	Total.
August	1,070	1,025	1,047-3-74	30,57,960
September	1,195	1,150	1,160-15-54	33,99,075
October	1,135	1,055	1,091-13-94	28,60,675
November	1,120	1,095	1,109-7-11	32-39,725
BENARES.
August	1,015	1,025	1,034-11-24	25,19,475
September	1,175	1,140	1,157-13-4	28,19,225
October	1,045	1,025	1,035-14-94	25,22,475
November	1,100	1,080	1,083-7-10	26,38,300

Where we see that the average at the sale yesterday was only exceeded by the average for the September sales. Comparing the sales in October and November we have the following results:—

	Rs.	15	less on the highest price.
Behar	55		more on the highest price.
Benares	40		more on the lowest price.
Behar	17 10 12		average price.
Benares	47 8 04		"
Behar	3,78,700		"
Benares	1,15,915		total realised.

The excess on the total for Behar is mainly attributable to the excess of 300 chests sold yesterday.—Hurkaru, Nov. 8.

THE HILLS.—During his visit to Mussoorie his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief closely examined both the site of the proposed sanitarium at Budraj and the depot at Landour. He has proposed that Landour be abandoned, as too small, that Budraj be immediately prepared as a first-class sanitarium, and that accommodation for a complete regiment be erected at Pokree.—Delhi Gazette.

THE RAILWAY TELEGRAPH line will be completed from Mirzapore to Jubbulpore by the end of the cold weather, and the construction of the railway terminus at Jubbulpore will commence as soon as sanction has been received to the plans.

RAILWAY PROGRESS IN INDIA.—The Hurkaru says:—"If we are to judge of the way in which railways are capable of being developed in India, we must turn to the extraordinary progress made by the Eastern Bengal Railway, rather than to the traffic returns of the immense length of line opened up by the East Indian Railway Company. The Eastern Bengal Railway has really tapped the traffic which formerly found its way to Calcutta through the intricate channels of the Soonderbuns, and its traffic, therefore, represents what may be done by a railway running through a poor district, but which intercepts the great stream of river-borne trade, at a point where it can enter into effective competition with the country-boats. Turning to a statement of the goods traffic of this railway for the quarters ending 30th April, 1864, and 30th April, 1865 respectively, we have the following results:—

	Weight.	Amount.
	Maunder, S.	Rs. As. P.
1864-65	0,46,586-38	2,15,441 10 64
1863-64	4,03,813-124	72,615 10 94
Increase	6,42,704-254	1,42,795 15 9
Less decrease on 2nd and 3rd class goods	41,029-394	9,867 7 74
Net increase	6,01,734-264	1,32,828 8 14

An increase of nearly cent. per cent. on the traffic of 1864. The year 1864 opened with a weekly traffic of 28,312 maunder 29 seers, producing Rs. 4,566-1-9. It fell, however, in Feb. to maunder 13,729-9. The highest weekly traffic was towards the end of April, 1864, when the traffic registered was maunder 30,170-34, and the receipts Rs. 5,333-1-84. The year 1865, however, opened with a goods traffic of maunder 44,145-204, yielding a revenue of Rs. 7,764-3-44, which a fortnight later fell to the lowest total for the whole quarter, maunder 36,386-36, with receipts amounting to Rs. 6,280-4-6. The greatest weekly traffic occurred about the middle of March, when we find recorded maunder 92,520-14, and Rs. 24,353-14-34. Taking these two quarters again into comparison, we find that the lowest weekly traffic of the first three months of 1865 considerably exceeded the largest weekly return for the corresponding period of 1864. Thus:—

	Mds. Srs.	Rs. As. P.
Lowest weekly traffic first three months 1865	36,386 36	6,280 4 6
Highest weekly traffic first three months 1864	30,170 34	5,333 1 84

Increase in 1865 ... 6,216 2 ... 917 2 94

RULE AS TO PAY AND ALLOWANCES.—We understand that on an appeal from Lieutenant P. Shuttleworth, of H.M.'s 46th Regiment of Foot, who has been permitted to resign the service from April last, the Government of India has sanctioned Indian pay and allowances to that officer up to the date of the acceptance of his resignation of his commission by her Majesty's Government. These allowances were objected to by the pay department, on the ground that Indian pay and allowances are granted to retiring officers up to the date of the publication of the general order in India. The Government of India has, however, ruled that officers retiring from, or resigning the service, are entitled to Indian allowances up to the date on which their resignation is accepted by the Home Government, and to that of the publication of the general order from the Horse Guards in the London Gazette.

COLLISION AT THE SAND HEADS.—On the morning of the 31st October, shortly before daylight, a collision occurred in the Eastern Channel, at the Sand Heads, between the Atalanta and Ghazepore. Both these vessels were inward bound; the former was beating up, whilst the latter was in tow of the steam tug Alligator. By some means the Ghazepore crossed the bows of the Atalanta, and a collision ensued. The damage done was principally to the masts and rigging of both vessels. An inquiry has been ordered to take place at Bankshall.—Hurkaru.

SIR WILLIAM MANSFIELD.—The Commander-in-Chief left Agra on the night of the 4th inst. for Gwalior, where he arrived on the following day. His Excellency's stay at Morar will not be prolonged beyond three or four days. It is expected he will return to Agra on the 9th, and will leave the same night for Muttra, whence he will again return to Agra on or about the 11th. From Agra Sir William Mansfield will take the rail to Cawnpore, after inspecting which station he will proceed on to Calcutta, inspecting the stations and regiments lying along the line of rail. His principal visit will be to Cawnpore, Allahabad, and Dinapore, his attention being especially directed to the selection of sites for barracks, their conservancy, &c. An official programme of his Excellency's further movements, we understand, will be published when he gets to Cawnpore.—Pioneer, Nov. 8.

CIVIL SERVICE CHANGES.—We (Hurkaru) are informed that Mr. R. N. Shore, the Commissioner of Cuttack, at present officiating as Commissioner of Nuddea, has applied to his Excellency the Viceroy for permission to retire from the Civil Service on the annuity of his rank. The following promotions are most likely to take place on Mr. Shaw's retirement:—Mr. J. W. Dalrymple, Civil and Sessions Judge of Bhaugulpore, at present officiating as Commissioner of Patna, in the room of Mr. G. F. Cockburn, to be Commissioner of Cuttack, vice Shore retired. Mr. T. L. Ravenshaw, Magistrate and Collector of the 1st grade at Beerbhoom, at present officiating as Commissioner of Cuttack, to be Civil and Sessions Judge of Bhaugulpore, vice Dalrymple promoted.

LUCKNOW, Oct. 18.—"All the public offices are closed on account of the Dewallee vacation. There is nothing of any importance stirring. This is, I believe, the last day for the examinations. I regret to mention that Colonel Barrow, our amiable Commissioner, met with a slight accident a few days ago. He is, I am glad to say, much better now. Lieutenant R. Stainforth, Assistant District Superintendent of Police, Durrabad, has obtained three months' leave of absence. It is not likely he will rejoin his appointment again in the Oude commission. He has unfortunately fallen a victim to paralysis, which has entirely incapacitated him from active work.

MEDICAL CHANGES.—The following changes in the Commissioned grades of the Bengal Medical Service, we are told, may shortly be expected to take place.—Surgeon Alexander Christison, M.D., Principal Assistant to the Opium Agent of Benares, to proceed to Europe on leave of absence, on medical certificate, for twenty months.—Assistant Surgeon C. I. Jackson, of the Civil Station of Saran, an extension of leave on account of ill-health for the period of six months.—Assistant Surgeon J. A. P. Colles, M.D., Officiating Professor of Anatomy and Zoology at the Calcutta Medical College, has been appointed House Surgeon of the Medical College Hospital, in addition to his own duties.

THE 23RD ROYAL WELCH FUSILIERS.—The right wing and head-quarters of the regiment, four companies, under command of Colonel Wells, C.B., leave this station (Agra) by train on Wednesday evening for Jubbulpore, and are followed on Saturday by the remaining five companies, under Major Elgee. Four companies of the 88th Connaught Rangers from Cawnpore have arrived here to take the place temporarily at Agra of the 23rd until the arrival of the 91st or 41st. It seems yet uncertain which corps is to be posted to the Agra garrison.—Dalhi Gazette.

THE PORT.—The local Government has forwarded to Sir Charles Wood, through the usual channels, a special narrative on the subject of the moorings, &c., of the port, and has requested the Home Government not to send out any more buoys with the next indent for screw pile moorings.

RAILWAY MISHAP.—Our letters and papers did not arrive yesterday (Nov. 7) until three or four hours after they were due. We attributed it at once to a break down of the engine on the railway, and we have since learnt that our surmise was the correct one. There was a break down, but it occurred to the engine of the special train which conveyed his Excellency the Viceroy from Delhi to Allahabad. The accident occurred at Jaleysur between Allyghur and the Toondla junction. The up-passenger train was stopped, the engine taken and put to the special train, and his Excellency went on to Allahabad. The up and down passenger trains were in consequence detained some hours after their usual time.—Hurkaru.

THE REV. W. G. COWIE, formerly domestic chaplain to the Bishop of Calcutta, has, we hear, been appointed to one of the chaplaincies of St. Paul's Cathedral, with the spiritual charge of the General Hospital, in succession to the Rev. J. Cave-Brown. The sum of Rs. 50 per mensem, to be met from the allowance awarded to the ordinary of the Calcutta Great Jail, on the departure of the Rev. Horatio Moule, will be drawn by Mr. Cowie for his duties at the hospital.—Hurkaru.

MR. A. C. FOSTER.—On dit states that Mr. A. C. Foster, one of the probationers sent out by the Secretary of State for the Financial Department, and who rendered very material assistance to Messrs. Foster and Whiffen, is to be appointed an assistant controller-general on a salary of Rs. 9,600 per annum, rising by an increase of Rs. 50 per month, after every year's approved service, until it reaches a maximum of Rs. 12,000 yearly.

OFFICER OF CONTROLLER OF ACCOUNTS.—On the transfer of the loan and interest branches of the office of the Controller-general of Accounts, Bengal, Mr. R. A. Fink, the Second Assistant Accountant-general to the Government of India, is to be appointed Deputy Accountant-general, Bengal, Mr. Mackenzie's services being retained by the Bank in the capacity of superintendent of the united departments.

THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.—We believe that there is no immediate prospect of the opening of the Legislative Council of the Governor-general. The first sittings will probably take place about the beginning of next month.—Hurkaru.

CERTAIN BRITISH SUBJECTS have been detained and fined by the Jeypore Durbar. The matter has attracted the attention of Government, and the Rajah has been called upon to explain the cause.

MR. H. P. A. B. RIDDELL, the director-general of the postal department for all India, has it in contemplation to retire shortly from her Majesty's Civil Service on annuity.

THE REV. G. LOVELY having returned from privilege leave of absence, the Rev. S. D. C. Walters has obtained the Lord Bishop's consent to proceed on leave on the same account.

LORD H. ULICK BROWNE has been appointed Superintendent of Stamps and Stationery. He will, however, continue to officiate as magistrate and collector of Nuddea.

NEW DOCK AT KIDDERPORE.—A proposal has been made to Government for the construction of a new dock at Kidderpore Dockyard, at an estimated cost of Rs. 2,06,720.

A CHIEF, named Oron, having been elected Ruler of Murriow on the Cossyah Hills, the Viceroy has conferred upon him the title of Rajah.

A NEW INDIAN PHARMACOPEIA.—Materials are being collected for the preparation in England of a new Indian Pharmacopeia under instructions from the Indian Council.

MR. ARTHUR A. ROBERTS, C.B., the Judicial Commissioner of the Punjab, is said to be one of the candidates for an annuity of this season.

MR. J. H. BATHEN, the Commissioner of Agra, is one of the candidates for an annuity of this season.

MR. F. L. BEAUFORT, the civil and sessions judge of the 24-Pergunnahs, is said to have applied for permission to retire from the service on the annuity of his rank.

H.M.'s 54TH REGIMENT, now doing garrison duty at the fort, will probably leave India by the end of this month or the commencement of the next.

MADRAS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF is expected to arrive at the Presidency on the 23rd instant, from which date army head quarters will be established in Madras.

OFFICIAL CHANGES.—Mr. George Banbury has been appointed to act as sub-secretary to the Board of Revenue, vice Mr. C. G. Master, proceeded on privilege leave to Ootacamund, and took his seat accordingly in the board's office yesterday.

A NEW RAILWAY TERMINUS.—We are informed that a committee, composed of Mr. T. Clarke, Mr. W. Huddleston, Major Shaw Steward, the agent and manager, chief engineer, and traffic manager of the Madras Railway, has been appointed by Government, under the orders of the Secretary of State, to consider and report upon the question of removing the present terminus of the Madras Railway from Royapooram to a more central situation. The Chamber of Commerce has also been requested to nominate three members of the commercial community as members of the committee.—Athenaeum and Daily News.

RAILWAY TO THE NEILGHERRIES.—A scheme for the construction of a line of railway from Mysore to the Neilgherries has been proposed by the Tramway Company, and is now before Government. They do not ask for a guarantee on the capital to be expended, but only for grants of land and other assistance. The commissioner is understood to be highly favourable to it, as will be doubtless his Highness the Rajah.

SCARCITY IN GANJAM.—The Trade Association and Chamber of Commerce have received from the local government the following copy of a telegram from the collector of Ganjam:—"No supplies of rice by sea yet. I have telegraphed to Calcutta, and through Chamber of Commerce to Rangoon and Arracan. If none arrives in meantime I would beg Government to send a month's supply for sale to all public establishments by mid-monthly steamer; regiment, police, jail, and civil, about 2,000 bags required. Particulars hereafter. Prices at Berhampore five Madras seers per rupee. If possible a large supply of cheaper grains should be sent for the general market, as the poorer classes are almost starving."

OBITUARY NOTICE.—We regret to announce the death of Lieut. A. C. Easton, of the late 44th Regiment N.I., at the Presidency, on Monday last. Lieut. Easton was sent down by train from Vellore on Sunday evening to the General Hospital, where he died on the following morning. His remains were interred in St. Mary's burial ground with military honours on Tuesday morning.

THE WEATHER.—We are sorry to say that we cannot report favourably of the weather, as the monsoon still holds off as regards this neighbourhood and most districts, but there has been a superabundance of rain on the Neilgherries, and a fair supply in some other directions. Public health here is in a satisfactory state.

BOMBAY.

MISCELLANEOUS.

TOWN TRAFFIC AND THE RAILWAY.—The much-discussed question of relieving the traffic of the native town, which is impeded by the Great Indian Peninsula Railway crossing the streets on a level, has assumed a new phase, and advanced a stage. The resolution of the justices disapproving of a level crossing was very dexterously framed, and avoided those difficulties (the one being the best plan to be adopted, and the other being the money aid to be given by the municipality towards the execution of the necessary works) which would have led to a difference of opinion among the justices. Government accordingly addressed to the justices the communication which appeared in our last Overland Summary, stating that "it would cost millions" to remove the line from its present site to another part of the island, and that Government could not contribute, and could not permit the railway company to contribute, to such removal. It further stated that the question of whether the proposed passenger terminus at Moody Bay was or was not the best, could not be reopened for further discussion, and that the raising of the line to a high level had been considered and set aside on account of its expense. The question was also pretty plainly put, what money aid the municipality was prepared to give to get rid of the present obstruction to the traffic. Another communication on the same subject has since been forwarded to the justices by the engineer of the Elphinstone Land and Press Reclamation Company, estimating that the railway could be raised upon arches for a sum of £170,000. The Bench, taking both documents into consideration, has requested that the subject be referred anew to the former committee with the addition of several new names, and the provision that, while they think the municipality should be called on to contribute last of all, they are willing to contribute a sum not exceeding £50,000. If the work can be constructed at anything like the estimated sum, and the Government, the Railway Company, and the Elphinstone Land and Press Reclamation Company are willing to contribute the balance of £120,000 between them, there is an end of a vexed question; but what these parties may be inclined to do remains yet to be seen.—Bombay Gazette.

MYSTERIOUS.—In our news-letter from Poona on Monday last reference was made to an attack led by a gallant cavalry officer on a small party in a travellers' bungalow. Rampore was misprinted for Maundpore, where the engagement really took place, but the fact stated was correct enough, and we could long since have given full details of the fight. That it was a fair fight can scarcely be said, seeing that the brunt of the attack, which the gallant colonel supported by two other officers had ridden over from Mhow to deliver, had to be sustained by a lady. When we state that the brave officer's object was to badger the lady and her husband, his subordinate, into informing him of the names of visitors to their private house, it will not be wondered at that the colonel should be worsted. We may remark that the lady's victory was not less complete because the fight on her part was conducted with as much courtesy as tact. If needful, we may refer more at length to matters at Mhow, before the arrival of Sir R. Napier.—Times of India.

RUMOURS.—You should try to ascertain the ins and the outs of the extraordinary rumours which come from Mhow. It is said that the gallant Crawley, tired of worrying such small game as paymasters and lieutenants of dragoons, has taken our worthy Commander of the Forces, Sir C. Straubenzee, in hand, and, in forwarding angry round-robins to him from some of the officers of the famous regiment under his command, had administered a good wig to the officer who thought he commanded the Bombay Army! Sir Charles, however, with great want of sympathy for the gallant and truculent officer has forwarded the "wig" on to the Commander-in-Chief in India—who will, doubtless, be delighted to recognise his friend Colonel Crawley's fine Roman hand in a Mhow mess again. A ludicrous story is also prevalent of the gallant colonel's signal repulse in a sudden attack by him on a small but resolute force entrenched in the travellers' bungalow at Rampore. The story is funny, but I can't rely on the details, so won't repeat them at present.—Times of India.

CEYLON.

The Colombo Observer of the 18th Nov. contains the following:—

The weather during most part of the fortnight has been very unfavourable for preparation and shipment of produce.

The work of legislation has progressed rapidly, and the two long and important Bills for establishing municipalities and re-organising the police have passed through all but the final stages. The Police Bill was passed to-day, and the Municipalities Bill referred to the law officers of the Crown.

The Colonial Secretary moved the first reading of the Supply Bill for 1866. The estimated revenue of the current year was £848,260, and this amount has since been increased to £893,960, which will probably not be very largely exceeded. The actual revenue of 1864 was £867,728, and the revenue of the first eight months of the current year does not amount to more than £630,784, while including certain items of revenue, in respect of which the receipts in the remaining four months of the year will probably exhibit little or no increase. Under the head of Land Sales the actual receipts are below the estimate and the customs must realise in the last quarter £6,000 over the average monthly receipts of the first nine months to yield the estimated amount of £300,000. The estimated revenue of 1866 may, however, I think, be safely taken at £910,000. It is proposed to apply of this amount a sum of £537,717 to the contingent service of the year, to which a further sum of £10,000 will probably be added before the Bill has passed through the Council. The amount of the Supply Bill for 1865 is £570,718, but this includes a sum of £80,000 for railway liabilities, which does not appear in the present Bill, being already provided for by ordinance 7 of 1864. On the 1st of July, 1865, there was a balance in favour of the Ceylon Government of £316,372, liable to a charge of £31,314 for works and services, and to a further deduction of £38,777, being an amount of revenue debt outstanding which is considered irrecoverable.

Royal Artillery.

The following information has been promulgated in a general regimental order of the Royal Artillery, dated Horse Guards, 14th inst.:—

"Inconvenience to the service having been found to arise from the rule laid down in general regimental order of the 27th July, 1864, respecting the mode in which exchanges between officers of the old and new brigades might be carried out, his Royal Highness the Field Marshal Commanding-in-Chief has, with the concurrence of the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India in Council, directed that the general regimental order referred to be cancelled, and that the following rule be substituted to guide all future exchanges, viz.:—When an officer of the late Indian Artillery, of whatever rank, is permitted to exchange with an officer of corresponding rank in the old Royal Artillery, it is to be distinctly understood that, on the promotion of either of such officers to a higher regimental grade, the exchange will be at an end, and the officer who remains in the rank in which he exchanged will at once revert to the battery and brigade to which he belonged at the time the exchange was sanctioned."

"By command of Field Marshal his Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge, K.G., Colonel of the Royal Artillery.

THE CAUSES OF THE INDIAN MUTINY.

[Concluded from our last.]

"In 1856 the British Government annexed the kingdom of Oude. At the time of annexation it was the talk of the whole of Hindostan that the British Government had promised the ruler of Oude (I believe there was a treaty to the same effect) that the kingdom of Oude should never be taken by the English, because in former times the Kings of Oude had rendered valuable assistance to the British Government.

"When the Government of India issued the proclamation of the annexation throughout Oude, the King of Oude also issued a proclamation that on no account should any of his subjects resist the British authorities, and that when the British troops entered his territory all assistance in the shape of provisions should be afforded. The sirdars of Oude and the army of the King obeyed his order. The people of Hindostan likewise said, 'The country of Oude belongs to the King, and, whether he has done well or ill as regards his own Government, he has not injured or broken faith with the English in any way: if the British Government dethrones a king who has ever been so faithful to them, what independent Nawab or Rajah is safe?' For the above-mentioned reasons every sirdar who had anything to lose began to fear and suspect the British Government; but they felt that they were helpless, having no army with which to resist, and so they remained quiet, waiting for a favourable opportunity to rise.

"The feeling of the people of Oude became known to me in the following manner:—I was proceeding to join the Sikh regiment Captain Rattray was raising in the Punjab, and arrived at Cawnpore on the 14th March, 1856. On that day the Nawab of Oude also reached Cawnpore on the way to Calcutta. I remained at Cawnpore six days, and had frequent interviews with the King's vakeels, courtiers, and servants. No one but his own people ever saw the King. The principal people of Cawnpore, and many of the native officers and Sepoys from the regiment stationed at Cawnpore, had interviews with the vakeels and servants of the King. They were all of opinion that the Government had acted unjustly in annexing the country of Oude, and they all sympathised with the King and his sirdars.

"The vakeel, or minister, of the Bithoor chief (the Nana Sahib, who is so well known for his perty and cruelty) was present, and said how displeased and angry his master was with the British for annexing Oude.

"The serai in which I had taken up my temporary abode became so full with the King's people and their visitors that I was compelled to leave it. I went and lived with Shaik Raheem, a subadar in the 2nd company of the 1st Native Infantry. I learnt from this officer that the Sepoys of his regiment were all indignant at the King of Oude being dispossessed of his kingdom, and talked openly among themselves as to the little faith that could be placed in the English after their treatment of the King, who, himself and his progenitors, had been so faithful to them. A few days after this I proceeded and joined my new corps at Lahore, and returned with it to Bengal.

"On the march down I heard that the Native Infantry Regiments at Barrackpore were beginning to show symptoms of mutiny, so from time to time I learnt all I could of their proceedings, which I duly reported to the commanding officer of my regiment.

"I have no hesitation in asserting that the rebellion first commenced in Calcutta, when the King of Oude was either a prisoner or under surveillance.

"The reason for the mutiny breaking out at Cawnpore is this, as stated above. The King of Oude reached Cawnpore in December, 1856, and stayed there twelve or fifteen days, and the inhabitants of Cawnpore and the Sepoys had many opportunities of planning mutiny and rebellion. The annexation of Oude, in addition to their other imaginary grievances, caused a universal disaffection throughout the army, and from that time it determined upon mutinying.

"When the country of the Punjab was taken by the British a general order was issued that in every line regiment 200 Sikhs and Punjabee Mahomedans were to be entertained.

"Many commanding officers enlisted the required number, some 150, some 100. When the Sikhs and Mahomedans came for enlistment the commanding officer promised that they would never interfere with their hair and beards; on this stipulation the Punjabee Mahomedans in particular took service willingly. Some years afterwards a general order was issued by Gen. Anson, the late Commander-in-Chief, directing the Mahomedans to cut their beards after a prescribed fashion. On this order being understood the Punjabees petitioned their respective commanding officers, saying, 'When we enlisted we were promised that our beards should not be cut, and we cannot and will not cut them.'

"This was reported by the commanding officers to the Commander-in-Chief, but his Excellency would not listen to them, but directed that the order should be carried out, and that those who refused to submit were to be dismissed the service. Many Punjaub Sepoys, rather than have their beards touched, took their discharge and went to their homes. These men on the road bitterly complained how the commanding officers had broken faith with them, and said there was no dependence to be placed upon the English—they say one thing and do another. The Hindoostanee Sepoys were also much displeased with this beard-cutting order and with the way the Punjabees had been treated. Several good men, who took their discharge on account of this order, re-enlisted in this regiment, and I have often heard them talking about this order, and how they had lost so many years' service.

"In September, 1856, a general order was issued, to the effect that all recruits hereafter enlisted must swear that they would go wherever their services were required. When the old Sepoys heard of this order they were much frightened and displeased. 'Up to this day those men who went to Afghanistan have not been re-admitted to their caste; how are we to know where the English may not force us to go? They will be ordering us next to go to London.' As I have said above, any new order issued by Government is looked upon with much suspicion by the native army, and is much canvassed in every regiment.

"Lately the British Government desired to introduce the English rifle into the ranks of the native army, for this simple reason—the rifle can throw a ball with accuracy some nine hundred yards, and, consequently, is much superior to the musket. It was, of course, given by the Government, with a view to save the Sepoys' lives in action; but the natives of this country are such ignorant, bigoted fools that they never will believe anything is intended for their good. Three depots were appointed for the purpose of teaching the new rifle exercise; one was stationed at Dum-Dum, one at Umballa, and one at Sealkote; one Naik and four Sepoys, one European officer, one native officer, and one havildar, were to be sent to learn the use of the new rifle. Among the Sepoys sent there were many Brahmans. When these men were learning a Kallasie from Fort William went to the Sepoys who were on duty at the fort, and told them that the cartridges of the new rifle were made up with the fat of cows and pigs, and that if they bit these cartridges they would lose all caste. On hearing this great suspicion seized their hearts; the Brahmans especially objected to touch these cartridges, but were told that the Government would force them. When they saw the cartridges they said:—'If we touch these cartridges we shall lose caste; so how can we put our teeth in them?' About this time the men at Dum-Dum wrote letters to all the other regiments in the service. From reading these letters the whole army were induced to believe that the time was come when the Government intended to force them all to Christianity. All this was told me by the regiments at Dinapore.

"From this imperfect relation of facts the Government will perceive that for the last sixteen years the Sepoys have been becoming more and more mutinous. The different orders, as above described—viz., the messing together in gaol, the remarks and proclamations of missionaries, the annexation of Oude, the swearing in of recruits to go wherever they were ordered, and the arrival of the new rifle, set the whole country and army mad. The chieftains and sirdars kept constantly telling the Sepoys that it was better to die than to give up their religion. For this reason alone the 19th Native Infantry at Berhampore mutinied, and when this regiment was ordered down to Calcutta to be disbanded they gave out wherever they went that they were martyrs to their religion. They said—'We have lost our bread, but have held fast our religion. The Government wanted us to bite the cartridges, and thus lose our caste, but we would not do it.' This was nothing but lies on their part, because the Government never issued the new cartridges to them at all; the old blank cartridges that they had been in the habit of using were alone issued; no new rifles had been issued to any except to the depots, so why should the Government have issued cartridges? When the regiments at Meerut heard that the 19th had been disbanded, for, as they thought, objecting to touch the new cartridges, they came to the determination to mutiny. Then the commanding officers began to promise their men that they should never be forced to use the rifle; but the Sepoys would not believe them, but called them liars, firmly believing what their countrymen and comrades told them. At this time the whole were alike in a state of mutiny.

"The force at Meerut having mutinied, and murdered as many officers as they could, went off to the King of Delhi and proclaimed him King. They told him that the whole army had thrown off their allegiance to the British, and were now at his disposal; 'So now,' said the native officers, 'you are our chosen and hereditary King. Give the order, and we will make arrangements to fight these Caffres of English.'

"The King of Delhi has had very little intercourse with the world, and still less with the native army, except latterly for treasonable purpose; but he readily believed what the troops told him, and at once proclaimed himself King, and preparations to fight were at once commenced. When the troops at Cawnpore heard what was going on at Delhi they mutinied, and were ready to march to Delhi, but the traitor Nana Sahib, having taken up arms, persuaded them to stay with him. The acts of cruelty performed by this fiend are now patent to the world. This wretch thought that by the change of Government he would become one of the magnates of the land. It was he who ordered the Sepoys to kill all the Europeans, their wives, and their little ones. I don't think the Sepoys would have killed their officers had the Nana Sahib not instigated them to do so; but in Hindostan one man acts as his fellow does.

"In due course of time the regiments at Dinapore mutinied, and put themselves under a Rajpoot sirdar, Koor Singh, of Jugdespore. With these three regiments Koor Singh thought himself strong enough to defy the English, and he proclaimed himself Rajah of Shahabad, which title he retained for about a week. At the time of this mutiny I was with the head-quarters of my corps at Patna, and I did all in my power to prevent the Sepoys from mutinying, but to no purpose; they looked always upon me as not one of their own brotherhood. When I knew the time had arrived for these regiments to mutiny I reported the circumstance to my commanding officer and the Commissioner of Patna, Mr. W. Tayler, and these gentlemen made their arrangements to prevent the city of Patna from rising. My early information enabled all the Europeans and their families to assemble at the Commissioner's house, and all I did to show my loyalty, both at Patna and Dinapore, are well known to the authorities at those places, and doubtless this has been reported to the Government, as I have been handsomely rewarded.

"It is perhaps needless for me to state that since the English came to Hindostan they have always been most particular in not interfering with the religion and the prejudices of the people, but in my humble opinion they have erred in only entertaining high caste people in their army. I really believe that had the inferior castes been entertained, as is the practice in the Bombay army, the rebellion never would have reached the height it has done. What can it signify, as long as a young man is of the requisite physique, whether he is of a high or low caste? I believe had the men of low caste been entertained, they would have done anything or gone anywhere the Government desired. A mixture of creeds is highly essential in the native army to prevent disturbances.

"Another reason (and, in my opinion, a very serious one) why the army become mutinous and disaffected is this:—Promotion all went by seniority, and not, as it ought, according to merit and proficiency. All the old men, from length of service worth nothing as commissioned or non-commissioned officers, received promotion, while younger men, in every way fit, languished in their lines, saying, 'What use is there in us exerting ourselves; we cannot get promotion until our turn comes, and that time can't come until our heads are grey and our mouths toothless.' For this reason the Sepoys for the most part drew their pay, and were careless with regard to their duty. The higher ranks of the native army, from old age alone, were quite incapacitated from doing their duty, even had they the will to do it. I state confidently that the generality of native officers were an encumbrance to the State; instead of commanding Sepoys the Sepoys commanded them, and instead of the commissioned and non-commissioned ranks preventing the men from mutinying, they rather persuaded them to do so.

"I will now endeavour to explain why the feelings and intentions of the Sepoys did not become known to their European officers. In former times the officers used to keep native women, and constantly had the native officers and Sepoys in their society, and did more to please them. These women exercised a good deal of influence in the regiment. This was all in accordance with the feelings of the Sepoys. By acting in this way the officers did good service to the Government, because they became better acquainted with the character of their men, and with what was going on in the lines. In latter times this has not been the case. It appears to me, the officers who have been appointed to the service within the last twenty years are better educated than the officers of former times were. I think more books have been published lately. Now the officers marry English ladies, and there is less in common between the officers and Sepoys; of late years the Sepoys have not confided in their officers. The consequence of all this has been, that when the mutiny broke out the officers were misinformed as to its extent. I have ever been in the habit of keeping my commanding officer informed of all that occurs. If all native officers did likewise the army could not mutiny.

"I beg to state that in my opinion the natives of Hindostan are only fitted for militia or police, for this simple reason—that they are averse to serve in any other country than their own, for the Government must be well aware that no regiment has ever gone on board ship without showing more or less discontent.

"In my opinion the Santhals would make excellent material for soldiers. I have seen a great many kinds of men, but I have never before seen men like the Santhals, who are of opinion that everything the Almighty has been pleased to make must be good, and consequently eat everything; they have no prejudices of caste or religion to fight against; for this reason I conclude they would do anything and go anywhere the Government desires. It is true these men are savages, but they could be taught, even as other men are, for it is a well-known fact that 'civilisation begets civilisation.'

"I consider that I ought to know the feelings of the late native army. In 1763 my grandfather was in the service of the British, and in due course became and died a subadar. My father was born in the army, and accompanied it everywhere until he became a man. He entered the service in 1801, and died a subadar in 1853. I was accustomed to hear of former times from his own lips. From the time of my birth I accompanied my father wherever his regiment went, and in his regiment I was enlisted. Both my grandfather and father, as well as myself, were in the same corps. I rose to be havildar major of my regiment, and then, through the interest of Captain Rattray, had the good fortune to get transferred to the Bengal Police Battalion, where I have risen to the rank of subadar and sirdar bahadur. For the above reasons all the doings of the army and the customs thereof are well known to me. My home has ever been with my regiment, and I have never known any other, and I look upon the Sirkar Company as my guardian.

"Should the right hon. the Governor-general wish to ask me any questions I should consider myself only as too much honoured, and if I could be of any service to the Court of Directors in this moment of difficulty I should only be too glad to be sent to London and explain my opinion before any one, for I could say a great deal more than I have here written.

"I am well aware that whatever orders have been issued by the Government have been done with the view to the benefit of the sirdars and people of this country; but the people of Hindostan are so bigoted and obstinate that they will understand nothing but what their fathers did before them; and it must ever be recollected that the natives are liars, and have two tongues—one for their officers and one for the lines; so that when they went to their officers to learn anything, or to be told of anything new, by way of flattery, they said 'How very good! you English are very clever,' &c., but in their hearts were really afraid that it must be intended in some way to affect their religion, and on their return to their lines would talk it over with their comrades and say, 'Although I knew it was all a lie and very bad, yet by way of flattering the Sahib I said quite the contrary.'

"In conclusion, I trust that the Government will take what I have written in good part; I have written, as far as I know, the truth, without fear. If I have written anything improper I trust the Government will forgive me, for what I have written is intended for the good of the Government, and I have written the truth because I know from experience that the English love the truth.

Sikh Police Battalion.

RUSSIA IN CENTRAL ASIA.

The Invalide Russe has made another communication upon Central Asian affairs, of which we had heard little or nothing since the reported massacre of the Russian garrison at Tashkend—which event, by the way, finds no mention in the official reports, the Russian troops being distinctly alluded to as alive, and still in occupation of the place.

The breach with Bokhara is now complete. It may be remembered that when the Russian force drove the Khokanese out of Tashkend they did so at the express solicitation of the principal inhabitants of the place, and the determination of the general to take this course was confirmed by the movements of the Emir of Bokhara, whose hostility by this time was becoming apparent. Alim Koul, the Kokan ruler, had been killed, and his successor, the Emir's nominee and relative, who had been at Tashkend in the spring, took flight to Bokhara. The latter then despatched a force to the city, where some Bokharian troops were already established, though they were the first to fly on the approach of the Russians, leaving their banners behind them. The Russians being established, the Emir made a formal demand for the surrender of the place, and compliance besides with all kinds of preposterous pretensions, failing which he threatened war with the Czar, not only on his own part, but on that of all the Mussulman population of Asia. Then came reprisals on the part of the Russians, who placed Bokharian commerce under a kind of land blockade, and the plunder of some Russian caravans by the other side soon set hostilities fairly on foot. In the meantime the Emir was crowning his success against Khokan, and a long series of punishments and cruelties signalled his victory; but he could not consolidate his triumph, for the news of an insurrection obliged him to return to Bokhara, leaving the khannat again to his relative Chondozer. The Russians not, of course, yielding Tashkend at his demand, the Emir tried to propitiate them with presents, and asked that General Tcherniaiew would at least not cross the Tchirtchik until the return of an embassy which he had sent to St. Petersburg. To recognise the occupation of the other bank of the river by the Emir would involve an admission of his pretensions; and, moreover, it was on the other side that lay the granary necessary for the subsistence of Tashkend. It was, therefore, imperative to dislodge the Bokharians from the position they had taken up, and a Russian force was despatched for the purpose. The enemy, however, gave no trouble, but fled very conveniently, and the Russians in two days occupied an advanced boundary about thirty versts from Tashkend. The position now occupied is considered secure and favourable to the consolidation of Russian power in Turkistan.

From that time Bokhara has given no particular trouble, at least as far as Russia is concerned. The Governor-General of Orenburg, in his despatch, alludes to rumours at Tashkend in September, having reference to new projects of the Emir, to the appearance of his detachments on the right bank of the Syr Daria, and to a general armament of his people. These reports, however, have been contradicted by merchants trading with Bokhara, who declare that the Emir has quite enough to do in quelling rebellion in his own territory, to which allusion has been already made. The Russians, thus left comparatively at peace, have been able to settle and consolidate affairs in Tashkend; and the manner in which they have effected this object is most creditable to their judgment and moderation. Without supposing for a moment that Russia very much regrets the necessity she is under of making advance after advance in Central Asia, we may still suppose her to be actuated by common prudence, and desirous not to involve herself in responsibilities too great for her strength. For this reason we can easily conceive that the occupation of Tashkend was a matter of necessity rather than of choice, and that its prolongation may not endure after the occasion has ceased to exist. Most certainly the Russian authorities have done their spiriting very gently in dealing with the inhabitants of the city. There is no pretence of considering the place as Russian territory. On the contrary, the Governor of Orenburg, in his despatch, very frankly says:—"It is much more advantageous for us to have a neighbour an independent state, bound to us by the ties of friendship, and the interests of commerce, than to extend the frontiers of the empire, and to expend large sums in the maintenance of a Russian administration in a Mussulman city consisting of nearly 100,000 inhabitants. Nevertheless," he adds, "in order to give to this city the opportunity of developing itself it is indispensable, in the first place, to consolidate its independence, and to demonstrate once for all in a striking manner to the Asiatic sovereigns that the protection of Russia guarantees our friends, under all circumstances, against the attacks and the despotism of their neighbours." To this end, and for the maintenance of the independence of Tashkend, which the Emir of Bokhara refuses to acknowledge, the Russian troops are left provisionally in that place. In order, we are told, more forcibly to elucidate the question, General Kryjanovski caused to be brought before him the principal civil and ecclesiastical functionaries of Tashkend, and, after having announced to them that the Czar desired to restore to them the city which his troops had conquered, he invited them to express a preference for some particular form of administration. But the terror, it seems, inspired by recent experiences, had made so profound an impression upon them that they, as well as the principal inhabitants of the place, at once presented an address to the Governor-General declaring that they wished to remain subjects of Russia, and praying not to be left to the mercy of Bokhara and Khokan. They do not even comply with the Russian invitation to elect a chief from among themselves; but prefer that the administration, both spiritual and temporal, being left in its old state, the Russian general shall hold all confirmatory power, in return for the protection afforded by the troops, the department of taxation alone being under his more immediate control. Even in this respect, however, they make some stipulations; and they further pray that none of the inhabitants of the city be enrolled as troops, have troops quartered upon them, or pay the ancient death fees, and that they be relieved also from certain other grievances which they particularise.

It is in accordance with the wishes of the people thus expressed that the Russian protection is to be maintained; and in the interests of peace, order, commerce, and the welfare of the country generally no civilised nation can justly take exception to this step. With regard to certain political contingencies in connection with India, they are not only remote and improbable, but can have no weight in comparison with advantages which the maintenance of a strong rule in Central Asia cannot fail to secure. Should any general conspiracy among the Mussulman population ever be brought about, Russia would not only divide with, but would divert the current of fanaticism from ourselves; and in the last resort, while at peace with Russia in Europe, we could scarcely fail to find her an ally in the East. In the meantime our commerce must surely profit by the development which is already taking place in material prosperity. "Even at the present time," says the despatch already quoted, "notwithstanding the continual pillage and the impositions it has had to suffer during a long period of years from the Khans of Khokan and the Emirs of Bokhara, Tashkend is one of the principal markets of Central Asia. Its bazaars and its caravansaries swarm with the representatives of entire Asia—one sees there even Hindoos from the environs of Madras. If we should succeed in preserving this city from political troubles, and in guaranteeing it against the ravages and the despotism of the Asiatic Khans, it may be affirmed almost with certainty that Tashkend will attract, even at an early future, the principal merchants of Bokhara and Khokan, and will become the principal mart of commerce of Central Asia, as well as the chief market for the manufacturing products of Russia." For this purpose the interests of the latter country clearly lie in avoiding the responsibility of actual rule, so long as the simpler process of protection will suffice, and even this may not be required, either in Tashkend or elsewhere, when civilisation shall have fertilised the barren barbarism of these wild wastes, and compelled them to peace and production.—Standard.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BILLS ON INDIA.—The biddings for 35,00,000 rupees in bills on India took place on Wednesday, the 6th inst., at the Bank of England. The proportions allotted were:—To Calcutta, 22,33,000 rupees; to Madras, 2,67,000 rupees; and to Bombay, 10,00,000 rupees. The minimum price was as before—1s. 11½d. on Calcutta and Madras, and 1s. 11½d. on Bombay. Tenders on Calcutta and Madras, at 1s. 11½d., will receive about 18 per cent. and on Bombay, at 2s. 0½d., about 8 per cent.; above these prices in full.

THE MARQUIS DE ST. MAURICE, who has been more than once before the magistrate at Westminster, asking for advice in reference to a claim against the India-office for an increase of pension, as a retired officer of the Indian service, made another application to Mr. Arnold on Wednesday week. The Marquis drew the magistrate's attention to his (the magistrate's) final words on the occasion of his applying for summonses against Major-General Pears and Mr. G. P. Cochrane, military secretaries to the Indian board, for suppression veri, on the 15th ult., which ran thus:—"I have given myself some pains to listen to your long application, hoping that, after having heard the whole of your claim, I might be able to render you some assistance; but you have not set forth any grounds upon which I could grant you a summons. I am very sorry to hear such a pitiable tale, but I cannot help you; and your only remedy, if remedy you have, which I much doubt, is by filing an application in the Court of Queen's Bench." The latter part of that sentence, the word "claim" instead of "application" preceding it, had induced the erroneous belief in the minds of his friends and the public—who sympathised with him—that the magistrate had conveyed the idea that his claim on the East India Company was not valid, and he could not assist him; instead of which he (the Marquis) had not the slightest doubt himself but that his worship only wished to inform him that he could not assist him in his application for summonses against the two gentlemen mentioned; and that the reference to redress in the Court of Queen's Bench was to a similar effect. He wished his worship to state more fully his grounds for refusing the summonses, that his friends might not be at all perplexed as to the grounds for refusal, or acknowledgment of the validity of the claim. Mr. Arnold observed: What he had said he had said, and was not going to re-open the question. When the Marquis applied first, he told him merely that he could not grant the summonses, and could give him no redress. He had advised neither for nor against the claim. The Marquis said that was the very explanation he applied for; and, after thanking his worship, withdrew.

BERRY V. DA COSTA.—This action, for breach of promise of marriage, was tried in the Court of Common Pleas on the 7th inst. The declaration alleged that the defendant promised to marry the plaintiff, but failed to do so; and also that he seduced her. The pleas were not guilty; that a reasonable time had not elapsed for performing the promise; and that the plaintiff was not ready and willing to marry the defendant. The plaintiff in this case was a young lady residing at Camden-hill, Kensington, the daughter of a widow, who carried on the business of a dealer in Honiton lace. The defendant, a young man about twenty-eight or twenty-nine, was the son of a merchant, and would succeed to very large property. An attempt was made to prove defendant's father's will; but it failed in consequence of the original will and probate being in Calcutta. The only document produced was an exemplification of the will from Doctors' Commons, and there was no seal or act of the Court upon it. The evidence on both sides having been heard, the jury, after considering for a few minutes, found a verdict for the plaintiff—damages, £2,500. The result was greeted with loud applause, which was, of course, stopped by the officers of the court. A good deal of excitement prevailed among the audience, and it having become known that the plaintiff (described as "of considerable personal attractions") was present, she was on leaving surrounded by an eager crowd, who escorted her through the great hall, and pressed round the cab into which she got, struggling to get a glimpse of her.

BOMBAY, BARODA, AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY.—The half-yearly meeting was held at the London Tavern on Friday, Col. French in the chair. The report contains the following announcements:—The total receipts up to the 30th June on stock, shares and debentures were £5,397,406. 10s., of which the sum of £253,449. 10s. (less £600 bonds repaid) was received in the last half-year. The total amount of audited expenditure in England and India to the same period (including stores, materials, &c.) was £5,077,010. 3s. 6d. The expenditure brought to account during the last half-year amounted to £533,251. 4s. 1d., and was incurred principally in works, bridges, viaducts, permanent way, stations, and rolling stock. In addition to this there had been a further outlay in India to the same period, amounting to £114,980. 0s. 6d., which was awaiting the audit of the Bombay Government. The line has been kept in good order, and the measures proposed by the company and sanctioned by the Government, for the strengthening of the larger bridges, have been, and are being carried out with all possible despatch, including the doubling of the superstructure for the second line of rails. To meet the rapidly increasing demands of the traffic, ten new and powerful engines and 1,000 wagons were ordered some months since, and further provision will, no doubt, shortly have to be made. The receipts from passengers, parcels, &c., have increased from £15,683, in the June half-year of 1864, to £107,472, in the corresponding half-year of 1865, being an addition of £61,789. The receipts from the same sources per railway mile have increased, in the same period, from £246. 12s. to £351. 4s. 4d., being an addition of £104. 12s. 4d. over the whole line, although the mileage has been so recently and largely extended. The effect of the opening to Bombay has been materially to alter the relative percentage of the various classes of travellers, both as to numbers, and especially as to receipts. The latter is to some extent, no doubt, attributable to the increase in the first and second-class fares, which came into operation in February last, as referred to in the last report. The detailed revenue accounts of receipts and expenses for 1864, and the half-year ending June, 1865, have not yet been received from India. The directors are unable, therefore, at present, to make the usual comparison with regard to working expenses, or net revenue. The chairman, in moving its adoption, expressed his gratification at the generally satisfactory position of the line. He had no fears of the ultimate success of the company. They started from a town with a population of 800,000, and at the terminus was another of 175,000; there were intermediate towns having a population of about 100,000, and plenty of smaller ones with populations of from 20,000 to 40,000. Their line ran through 185 miles of the richest country in the world, thickly populated, and the people rich to a degree, and above all imbued with a strong commercial spirit. Application had been made to the Government to sanction a more detailed survey between Baroda and Neemuch on the road to Delhi. The result of the last survey showed the country to be very favourable to the formation of a line. Mention had been made of an extension to Kattiawar, through a very rich country, every inch of which was under cultivation. The chiefs of the country were so favourably disposed towards the construction of a railway there, that they themselves were willing to subscribe £200,000, a most unprecedented thing in India. The report was adopted unanimously; and this being all the business of the meeting, the proceedings closed with a cordial vote of thanks to the chairman and directors.

THE INDIAN CARRYING COMPANY.—The report of the directors states that their anticipations at the half-yearly meeting in June had been borne out by the result of the year's working. The revenue account for the year showed a fair balance of profit, and as heavy deductions had been made from the earnings in Calcutta to cover the loss incurred in Bombay and Madras, and as a large sum had been written off against this year's account for bad debts of previous years, in addition to a proportion of the loss by fire at Madras, the directors considered that there were good grounds for more favourable anticipations for the future. The Bombay business for the year had been worked at a considerable loss; but the improvements which had been effected during that period in the management and conduct of the business had given renewed confidence to the public. The receipts for the months of July, August, and September last had been more than four times as much as those of the corresponding quarter of last year. In the Madras presidency the course of business during the last six months ending the 30th of June last showed a decided improvement; so that the net result of the operations for the whole year had proved more favourable than it was for the first six months. The Quartermaster-general, in recommending to the Government the renewal of certain contracts which were about to expire, had reported "that the transit arrangements had been satisfactorily carried out by the company." In the Calcutta presidency the receipts had kept up well during the twelve months, and had even exceeded the amount which might have been expected from the results of the first half of the year. The total gross receipts for the year in this presidency were £118,704, and on this the percentage of profit was larger than in the previous year. During the year 28 new agencies had been opened in Bengal, the North-west Provinces, and the Punjab, which had naturally swelled the expenses for the year, and diminished for the time the divisible profit. The sum to the credit of revenue account, including the balance from last year, was £3,696 (out of which a dividend for the half-year ending the 31st December, 1864, had been paid), and the reserve fund set aside out of revenue amounted to £1,500. The directors now proposed to pay a dividend, as before, at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, free of income-tax, for the half-year ending the 30th of June last, and to carry over the balance to the next account. The capital account showed that £50,000 had been received, and £32,862 expended, leaving a balance of £17,138.

CHARGE AGAINST THE AUTHORITIES OF HONG KONG.—The Times publishes a leading article strongly condemning the arrangements of the military authorities in China, more particularly as they affect the 2nd battalion of the 11th Regiment. "It appears that about the middle of September last the troopship Adventure arrived at Yokohama from Hong Kong, having on board some detachments from the 11th Regiment, including officers, men, women, and children, to the number of about 300. The condition in which these troops were landed is described as pitiable in the extreme. Some of the men were so prostrated that upon landing they lay down on the ground, and several others, who attempted to march up to their barracks, fell out from sheer exhaustion, while every man among them appeared in a more or less wasted condition. The women were, if possible, still more emaciated, and, burdened with their equally sick and helpless children, appeared wholly unable to reach their destination. Although the ship appears to have been in port for a day or two, and the condition of the troops might, therefore, have been communicated to the authorities on shore, no provision seems to have been made to assist them in reaching the barracks. Several of the women employed coolies to carry their children, and another was indebted to the kindness of a private person for a chair in which she and her four young children had to be carried up the hill. The neglect, however, of proper provision for these sick persons on their arrival in Japan is the least part of the alleged complaint. It is a more important question to inquire what was the occasion of such serious and widespread sickness among a body of troops, and for an explanation on this point we are referred to the treatment of the regiments at the port from which they had been despatched. They had arrived, as we have said, from Hong Kong, an unhealthy station at all times, but which during the last summer has suffered under an unusual amount of sickness and mortality. The military hospitals have been quite full, the men have had to occupy the verandahs, many have even been treated in the barrack-rooms, and it has also been necessary to hire additional buildings to supply increased hospital accommodation. During the prevalence of this deadly malaria the 11th Regiment, which appears to have suffered most severely, arrived at Hong Kong, and, so it is said, found that no arrangements had been made for its reception. At a moment when the healthiest situation and the greatest care in their encampment were vitally necessary, the troops were quartered on a piece of ground that had been a Chinese burial-place, the exhalations from which were most deadly. It was here that the sickness was contracted which brought them into the lamentable condition in which they arrived in Japan, and they may well have thought themselves doomed if, after being brought to the verge of destruction by the neglect of proper arrangements for their reception in one place, they found that no attempt had been made to provide some relief to their weakness on their arrival at the other. It is further alleged that, in the midst of all this sickness, the medical staff at Hong Kong is wholly insufficient to perform the duties entailed upon it. We are told that during the prevalence of this sickness at Hong Kong nearly all the heads of departments have been absent from their posts, and have been enjoying the more congenial climate of Yokohama. Not only, in fact, was the General Commanding-in-Chief then present in Japan, but he was accompanied by the two senior medical officers in the China command, one of them being the principal medical and sanitary officer of her Majesty's forces in China. Representations, it should be added, are made that these officers were at Yokohama in the ordinary course of duty; but the fact does not appear to be denied that in a period of extraordinary sickness one medical officer has been left without any assistance in his charge, and has even been burdened with additional duties; nor does it seem to be disputed that, from whatever cause it may arise, some principal heads of departments were absent from Hong Kong during a season of emergency."

REDUCTIONS IN THE ARMY.—The Army and Navy Gazette refers as follows to certain announcements made in these columns:—"The Cabinet, we may presume, is still too busy in the work of self-construction to give its serious attention to our Naval and Military establishments for the ensuing year; and the estimates, which were intended to be all prepared by the 14th of January, will now be much later than usual. With regard to the army, rumours of reductions, although based only on conjecture and a study of probabilities, are not to be dispised. As we announced, some months ago, a cavalry regiment is to be taken off the Indian establishment, but whether this will involve the disbanding of the 21st Hussars, the acceleration of the return home of the Inniskillings, or the delay of the departure of the 11th Hussars, we know not. In the infantry, owing to a diminution of the Madras establishment, the 80th Regiment is under orders for England as well as the five battalions coming home in the ordinary course of relief. It is not improbable that the Bombay force may also be reduced by a battalion, in which case the first battalion of the 20th would also come home in 1866. It is also not unlikely that the strength of each of the battalions may be reduced in men, although the officers are not so likely to be touched."

EAST INDIA COMPANY.—At the general court of proprietors of the East India Company, held on Wednesday, the 13th inst., Colonel Sykes, M.P., in the chair, an announcement was made that the company's dividends would be ready for delivery at the bank on the 6th of January next. From an account read by the secretary it appeared that the capital of the security fund of the company on the 1st of December amounted to £777,178. 14s. 3d. Consols, and £5,391,286. 18s. 9d. Three per Cent. Reduced—together, £6,168,465. 13s.; costing, £5,634,880. 14s. 2d. The investments were—£10,422. 19s. 7d. Consols, cost £9,285; and £6,000 Exchequer Bills, cost £6,021. 2s. 8d.; total, £15,306. 2s. 8d. There was no notice of motion, and the court adjourned.

THE DIRECTORS OF THE CHARTERED MERCANTILE BANK OF INDIA, LONDON, AND CHINA have announced the declaration of a dividend of 5 per cent. (free of income-tax) for the half-year ending the 31st inst., making, together with the dividend of 8½ per cent. last July, 13½ per cent. per annum.

Brown,	Black,	Regina,	Souble Blue.

The majority of our Dyes are entirely soluble in boiling water, and will dye without the addition of other ingredients.

ANILINE DYES.—"I shall commence my observations on dyeing, by referring especially to the remarkable and beautiful colours derived from coal tar, the introduction of which into this art may be said to constitute the chief distinction, as far as dyeing is concerned, between the present and the former Exhibition, creating, in fact, a new era in the tinctorial art. Coal tar colours deserve attention for their power, as well as for the facility with which they may be applied, for one grain will deeply tint half a gallon of water, and little or no skill is required for their application."—Vote Report by Grace Calvert, Esq., F.R.S., Ph.D., Honorary Professor of Chemistry.

EXPANDING SADDLE.GIBSON AND COMPANY

Respectfully invite the attention of MILITARY MEN, EQUESTRIANS, and OWNERS OF HORSES, to their Newly-Invented EXPANDING SADDLE, which admits of ready adjustment to the size of any horse, creating a secure and easy seat without the slightest inconvenience to either horse or rider. The principle of EXPANSION and CONTRACTION comprises a simple arrangement of mechanism within the saddle so perfect, that by merely turning a screw the pad is proportioned to the size and form of the animal, on which it firmly rests with a uniform pressure, and is securely retained in its position by means of an ordinary girth.

This invention has obtained the approval and distinguished patronage of HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF, and from the very favourable opinions expressed by competent judges, and all who have had an opportunity of testing its merits, there is no doubt it will come into general use; indeed, its success is already established.

THE NEW THEORY IN RIFLES.

Lieutenant James Forsyth, in his excellent work, "The Sporting Rifle, &c.," first promulgated the startling theory that Rifles could be so constructed as to lessen the elevation by increasing the charge of powder. This theory, which the Advertiser has proven to be correct, alters the whole position of Rifles in favour of the sportsman. Formerly, with a high trajectory, the bullet which would have hit a tiger in a vital part at 100 yards, would pass over his back at 25 or 50 yards. By the new system, as elaborated and perfected in DOUGALL'S LO-KEAST BRECHLOADERS, there is a point-blank range to 150 yards, combined with a velocity and striking power hitherto unknown. (See TIMES, 11th October, 1864.) No other rifle possesses the same advantages.

Quintessence of Jamaica Ginger and Camomile.

GINGER has long been deservedly known as an excellent domestic medicine, and combined with camomile, it is the most efficient stomachic tonic known, for while the ginger relieves the stomach from distension and flatulency, arising from impaired digestion, the camomile strengthens the coats of the stomach, and by that means gives it a healthy and invigorating tone. So highly concentrated is this preparation, it is unimpaired by age or climate, and well adapted for exportation. In Gout, Spasms, Dysentery, Cholera, or those complaints incident to tropical climates, it is invaluable, as in numerous cases a dose or two has checked and frequently cured most alarming attacks. No family should be without it. Sold in half-pints, quarter-pints, and one-eighth pints.

Agreeable Seidlitz Powder, in one bottle, protected by a case, with measure and spoon included. The advantage of this preparation is the perfect combination of the solid ingredients of the Seidlitz Spring in one compound powder.

It is very cooling and refreshing, well adapted for exportation, or travellers by land or sea.

Aromatic Tincture of Quinine.—For the prevention of Fever, Intermittent or Remittent Ague, and other effects of Malaria.

No person exposed to the influence or predisposing cause of Fevers should be without it, for if taken in small doses daily the system will become so thoroughly impregnated with its principles as to be rendered proof against all attacks of Contagion or Malaria.—Sold in pints, half-pints, and quarter-pints.

The above articles prepared only by THOS. WILKINSON and Co., 270, Regent-street, London, W.

MRS. JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTHING SYRUP, FOR CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH.—This infallible remedy has preserved hundreds of children when thought past recovery from convulsions arising from painful dentition. As soon as the Syrup is rubbed on the gums the child will be relieved, the gums cooled, and the inflammation reduced. It is as innocent as efficacious, tending to soothe the teeth with ease; and so pleasant, that no child will refuse to let its gums be rubbed with it. When infants are at the age of four months, the Syrup should be rubbed on the gums, and parents should never be without the Syrup in the nursery where there are young children; for, if a child wakes in the night with pains in the gums, the Syrup immediately gives ease, thereby preventing convulsions, fevers, &c. The great success of this medicine during the last twenty-five years has induced unprincipled persons to imitate it, under the name of American Soothing Syrup, and copying parts of Mrs. Johnson's Bills, &c. Parents will, therefore, be very particular to ask for JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTHING SYRUP, and to notice that the names of BARCLAY and SONS, 95, Farringdon-street, London (to whom Mrs. Johnson has sold the recipe), are on the stamp affixed to each bottle.

Sold by all chemists and medicine vendors.

Earl Russell sent to the College of Physicians a communication received by him from Manila (where Cholera had been raging fearfully), to the effect, that, of all remedies tried, Chlorodyne was the most effective.—See Brit. Med. Jnl., Dec. 31, 1864.

CHLORODYNE (TOWLE'S). Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Cramp, Ague, Consumption, Asthma, Cough, Colds, Bronchitis, Sea Sickness, &c., immediately relieved by a dose of TOWLE'S CHLORODYNE, which is admitted to be a most wonderful and valuable medicine, and preferred by the profession for its known composition and moderate price.

IMPORTANT TO SHIPPERS AND EMIGRANTS.
Liverpool, Feb. 22nd, 1864. Ship Gertrude.

Mr. TOWLE. Sir,—Having recently arrived from Bombay, and during our stay there myself and crew being violently attacked with dysentery, so general in India, Captain Clements, of the ship Marselles, lying near us, seeing the condition we were in, kindly sent a bottle of your Chlorodyne, from which myself and crew found immediate relief; and during the voyage home proved a most effective and valuable medicine. Having been instructed in saving my own life and that of others, we feel it a duty and pleasure to send this statement of facts, to make what use of you think proper, believing that no vessel ought to leave port without a good supply in her medicine chest.

Prepared and sold in Tins, 1s. 1d. and 2s. 9d. each, by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, &c., 79, St. Paul's Church-yard, London, E.C. and Retail by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Vendors in the World.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS.

Cold and damp are the frequent causes of ailments which prove troublesome though rarely dangerous unless culpably neglected. A cold in the head, throat, or chest, may be safely stopped and expeditiously cured by rubbing Holloway's Ointment twice a day upon the neck and chest, and by taking its curative powers with appropriate doses of his purifying and regulating Pills. The conjoint and reciprocal agency of these medicaments exercises the highest salutary effect over the urinary, vascular, and secretory systems, which colds always inconvenience and disarrange. The phlegm, cough, and shortness of breath gradually disappear under this rational treatment, and the strength and vigour of the constitution are increased rather than diminished during the course of cure.

THORNTON'S HISTORY OF INDIA.

BY

LIONEL JAMES TROTTER,

THE PUBLISHERS' NOTICE.

Indian History since the recall of Lord Ellenborough has been so fruitful of great events and striking episodes, that we cannot but think the time has fully come for continuing Mr. Thornton's unfinished work. The two campaigns on the Sutlej, followed by the conquest of the Punjab, the second Burmese War, crowned by the annexation of Pegu, the splendid reign of Lord Dalhousie, illustrated by the establishment of railways, the swift growth of the electric telegraph, the gradual settlement of the Punjab, all these things, followed as they were by the annexation of Oude, and the mighty explosion of 1857, which annihilated the old Sepoy army of Bengal, nearly shattered to pieces the power founded by Clive and Hastings, and brought about the political death of the great East India Company, seem to furnish abundant matter for at least two interesting volumes, written with due conciseness and a careful regard to truth.

The history of a time so fraught with stirring incidents and momentous issues can hardly fail, with fair handling, to interest Englishmen of very diverse tastes. We have therefore arranged with a gentleman of some literary culture, Captain L. J. Trotter, late of the 2nd Bengal Fusiliers, for the production of two volumes, which shall bring the history of British India down to its natural halting-place, the death of Lord Canning.

As only a limited edition is being printed, we shall be obliged by an early intimation from such of our friends as wish to complete their copies of "Thornton's History."

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

WE have received our usual files of papers from Calcutta, via Bombay, to the 22nd of November, and from Bombay to the 28th of that month.

The peace with Bhootan had been at last announced, and in Calcutta and throughout the Presidency, had excited nothing but indignation and disgust—feelings which will probably be shared by our countrymen everywhere, as the state of the case becomes known. The Treaty was signed on the 11th of November, at a place some miles in advance of Buxa, by Colonel Bruce on the one side, and "two miserable envoys" from the Deb Rajah on the other, "Few of our officers," the Friend of India tells us, "would attend, to save themselves the pain of witnessing such humiliation." The envoys, it is declared, in general terms apologised for the insults heaped upon Mr. Eden and the members of the mission; and after some difficulty they restored the Eden treaty. "The Deb Rajah," it is added, "has agreed to cede to us for ever the eighteen Dooars, to deliver up all the captives, and should he fail to induce or coerce the Tongso Penlow into restoring the two Armstrongs abandoned in the Dewangiri rout, to ask us to help him to do so after a period of two months. There are the usual provisions for free trade and the rendition of criminals. In return for this we are not only to continue the permanent payment of £2,500 a year, but to increase it gradually until it is doubled. The first payment will be made the moment the guns are restored. These are the terms proposed originally by the Bengal Government, and always dangled before the eyes of the Bhootas as a lure for their submission. The mission and the war have all along been Mr. Beadon's and Mr. Eden's, but no one dreamed that the former would be able to induce such a man as Sir John Lawrence to offer such terms in the present stage of the affair. The natives, when they do not chuckle over our defeat, are as loud in their denunciations of the humiliation of Government as the English. And these terms have been offered and accepted just at the beginning of the season, when our enormously expensive expedition was marching to the frontier. The evil is that we have no guarantee that Tongso Penlow will give up the guns, and that the two months' stipulation may be a ruse intended to put off our advance till the hot season is again upon us. Thus we have neither peace nor war, but the expense and mortality of the former, and the humiliation and disgrace of the latter." It should not be forgotten, too, that our own Government have been continually inviting the Bhootas to make overtures of peace, and have manifested so much consideration upon this score as to make it appear that they were themselves the most anxious of the two; and this, added to the fact that to bring about the arrangement they agree to increase the former annual payment, has naturally conveyed the impression upon the native mind that the Bhootas are the gainers, and the British the losers by the war, from the renewal of which they are glad to escape upon any terms they can get. A charming satisfaction this for the disasters and humiliation of the last campaign.

We give the comments of the principal Calcutta journals upon this subject elsewhere. The Delhi Gazette, and all the other provincial papers we have seen, are equally loud in their condemnation of the policy of the Government.

A private letter from Bhootan, written just before the peace, notices that since the recent death of the old Dhurmrajah, the throne of Poonakha has been vacant, but the infant Dhurmrajah is now set on the Guddee, and is at Tassisudon with the Deb Rajah. The infant Dhurmrajah, it was reported, would be installed in December.

The cold weather and the Government were fairly settled in Calcutta. The Legislative Council was to meet on the 1st of this month. Mr. Massey had made no sign, but was supposed to be prepared for all contingencies—the first, of course, being the enormous war charges which have been incurred for the peace.

The death of Lord Palmerston, and the anticipated reconstruction of the Ministry, had given rise to renewed expectation of a change at the India Office, and several statesmen were named by political sportsmen as Sir Charles Wood's successor, the favourite being decidedly the Duke of Argyll.

A correspondence between the Governor-General in Council and the Governor of Bombay upon the subject of "service" telegrams is referred to in another column. It is generally considered that the former has made a mistake in the matter, though he may be considered, after a certain fashion, to have apologised to Sir Bartle Frere. Colonel Marriott, who cannot help himself, is of course treated with less consideration.

The people were still starving in the distressed districts of Bengal. No rain had yet fallen, and where there was no irrigation it was evident that nothing could save the autumn crops. It was expected, however, that the import of the new crop from the prosperous Eastern districts would prevent actual famine in Orissa and Behar. A letter from Patna makes the extraordinary statement that the people in that district are beginning to eat children for want of other food, and two women, it is declared, were caught roasting a child.

It is believed that the present year's cotton crop will be much below that of the previous three years.

A Central Committee had been formed in Calcutta for the transmission of specimens of art and manufactures to the Paris Universal Exhibition.

At Bombay the principal news was of a mournful kind, being the sudden death of the Advocate-General, while conducting a case in the High Court. The Governor was on a tour in the Southern Mahratta Country. Lord Edward Seymour, who arrived in Bombay by the previous mail, had joined his Excellency's camp.

Affairs in Central Asia were still unsettled. It is reported that Meer Khudayan Khan, to whom the Ameer of Bokhara had made over the Khanate of Khokund, unable to cope with the Russians, has sought the protection of Bokhara, and is endeavouring to engage the Affghans in a religious war against the Russians; also that the Emir of Bokhara had proposed an alliance with the Emir of Cabul against Russia and England.

It has been stated that the murderer of Lieutenant Ommaney had confessed that he had received a promise of two hundred rupees from the Akhoond of Swat for every European he killed.

It was reported that the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab and his suite had been shot at while crossing a river.

The money market is described as dull in Calcutta, though there is still plenty of money, and at Bombay, we are told, the market is very stringent and the demand very active.

The next arrival from India will be the Calcutta mail, which may be expected in London via Marseilles on the 27th inst.

The Calcutta letter in to-day's Times contains the following in reference to the treaty with Bhootan:—"It has raised throughout India, and among all classes, a cry of annoyance at our humiliation, which resembles nothing so much as the indignation excited by the refusal of Lord Canning's advisers in 1857 to recognise the importance of the mutinies. . . . The scene which is said to have taken place at the signing of the treaty is significant. The envoys from the Deb Rajah are coarsely described by the correspondent of one paper as 'a pair of hangdog countenanced scoundrels, accompanied by about 200 rag-tag and bobtail, two yaks, some fine mountain racers, and half-a-dozen nondescript ponies.' Not till we sent out a native officer to coax them could they be induced to come nearer us than within seven miles. They remained a week with Colonel Bruce, C.B., our Political Officer, when the hitch seems to have been the 'fully' apologising for the insults offered to our mission, and giving up the treaty signed by Mr. Eden. What is the 'full' apology for disgrace such as no civilised Power has ever suffered in the person of its envoy no one yet knows. The officers in our camp were invited to be present at the conclusion of the treaty, but most of them preferred not to witness such humiliation. After it was all over the two Bhootan envoys received the usual khillut of musical boxes and bags of gold mohurs, and left next day for Poonakha."

The case of Hill v. Finney—an action brought by a captain in the Bombay cavalry against his solicitor for neglecting his case in the Divorce Court—has been before the Court of Queen's Bench every day during the past week. We postpone our notice of these extraordinary proceedings until their conclusion.

We notice that the first volume of the continuation of "Thornton's History of India," by Captain Trotter, has just been issued by Messrs. W. H. Allen and Co. We shall take an early opportunity of noting our impressions of this important work.

UNHEALTHINESS OF NEEMUCH.—To the Editor of the Times of India.—Sir,—It is astonishing that this place should not have been abandoned as a station for European troops before now. It is one of the most unhealthy in India; the mortality amongst Europeans from 1860 to 1864 averaging 41 in a thousand, whereas in most stations in this Presidency, during the same period, the average has been only about 9 in a thousand, while at Mhow, which is not more than 150 miles distant, the mortality is only at the rate of 12 per thousand. Thus, taking the least favourable view of the case, the stationing of the European force at Mhow, instead of at Neemuch, would effect an annual saving of the lives of 38 soldiers in every thousand. This calculation does not take into account this present year, in which one-fourth of the Europeans have been swept away by cholera alone.—EXPERIENTIA DUCET.—Times of India.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

A STORM IN AN OFFICIAL TEA-POT.

MONTHS ago—in the early summer—Major-general Wormald, who had then just retired from the service, addressed an inquiry to Lieut.-colonel Marriott, Military Secretary to the Government of Bombay, as to the mode in which he should draw his pension, as he was going to New South Wales. He urged particular reasons why a reply should be sent by telegraph, and Colonel Marriott returned him an answer through that channel. For so doing he was called to account by the Government of India, the telegraph being reserved, by order, for urgent messages upon public affairs, and was accused of nothing more nor less than a breach of trust. In a memorandum which he drew up for the information of the Bombay Government, he refers to the correspondence, and justifies his conduct by appealing to a few simple facts.

The message, says the Colonel, was on the public service, not on his own private affairs. He considered it his duty to reply to General Wormald's question, and could have franked a letter upon the subject with perfect propriety. In making use of the telegraph he was impressed with the belief that the case was an exceptional one, and warranted a slight departure from ordinary rule; and he conceived, moreover, that it was his duty to exercise a certain discretionary courtesy on behalf of Government, and that he was acting according to their wishes in the matter. The General had offered to remit the cost of the reply in postage-stamps; but as this course would have involved more trouble to himself and others—owing to the formalities attendant upon the transaction—than the cost of the message was worth, and be a waste of public time which could be far more profitably employed, he had not availed himself of that arrangement; conceiving, besides, that the order was made rather to prevent the too frequent use of the telegraph than to save expense. Under these circumstances he expressed his surprise at the reproof which he had received, couched as it was in no very courteous terms, and im-putting to him a private and sordid motive in not paying for the telegram himself.

Colonel Marriott's memorandum is dated the 21st of June last. On the 12th of August Sir Bartle Frere follows on the subject, in a minute concurred in by the Hon. B. H. Ellis. The immediate object of the Governor's minute, however, is a charge of a similar kind made against his private secretary, Mr. Grey, the responsibility of which he takes upon himself, as Mr. Grey has since vacated his post. The head and front of his offending, as explained by Sir Bartle Frere himself, is as follows :—

"A young civil servant, under the Commissioner of Sind, applied to the private secretary to know if he could have leave to Europe, having just heard that his father had had an illness, which threatened a speedy termination of his life. The public interests involved depended whether the Commissioner could spare the services of the young man, who in his haste to apply for leave had forgotten to mention whether he had asked the Commissioner's consent.

"I believe in disposing of this part of Mr. Grey's daily work, I said, 'Tell Moore he can have his leave if Mansfield consents; you had better telegraph, otherwise it will not be in time; and tell him I am very sorry to hear of his father's illness.'

"With the exception of the last words, my own and Mr. Grey's concern with the matter was purely official, and I do not see that any of us could have been reasonably expected to pay for the telegram. Had it occurred to me to consider minutely the component sentences of the message, I should doubtless have remarked that my sympathy with the family of an old dying general officer was only incidentally connected with her Majesty's service. I do not think I should have told Mr. Grey to telegraph what was official, and to send by post what was more personal, nor to make two messages of it, and to pay for the one, and send the other on service; but had I thought of it, I should have been quite willing to pay for the whole; so, I am sure, would Mr. Grey, or the young man to whom it was addressed. The fact of it is, in disposing of a considerable amount of work, the whole of which was virtually official, and none of which would have come before us except officially, neither Mr. Grey nor I gave a thought to such nice distinctions. I cannot but think that had we done so we should have been guilty of a somewhat pedantic waste of highly paid public time; and I am quite certain that, as a financial question, it would not have paid the Government that we should have done so."

And he adds further on :—

"Let any one compute the price of any of these messages, and compare the total with the value of the highly paid time wasted by the Telegraphing Department in examining hundreds of innocent service messages, while searching for one of doubtful character by the Government of India and of Bombay by the Post-office, printing-office, &c., and the bad economy of this system will be at once apparent.

"Any incidental good effect in shape of greater carefulness impressed upon some officers is more than counterbalanced by the stimulus which any one experienced in human nature will at once see must be given by such a system to a wish, in all ill-regulated minds, to thwart such a system of vexatious supervision; while in better regulated minds there cannot but be produced an amount of irritation the reverse of what is conducive to a harmonious and zealous co-operation for the good of the Government service.

"But if it is worth while to hunt for these occasional abuses of official franking, I would submit that a much simpler and readier course might be found by imitating the system followed in the Post-office. Let telegraph officers in a certain position, say the superintendents of circles, have power to charge for messages improperly sent on the public service. The officer so surcharged would, if he could justify his frank, and if dissatisfied with the final decision of the Telegraph Department, appeal to the Government of India, who would then only intervene where there was duplex vindice redus."

In reference to the memorandum of Colonel Marriott, which he takes that opportunity to annex, Sir Bartle Frere bears the most cordial testimony to the colonel's high character, and the impossibility of his having been actuated by the motives attributed to him; expressing, moreover, his confidence that the Viceroy in Council will direct the withdrawal of the slur cast upon that officer in the Secretary's letter.

The concluding paragraphs are still more bold :—

"And I would submit at the same time that there is a not unimportant want of formality in conveying such censures direct to a ministerial officer of this Government. If it is necessary to tell a Secretary of this Government that the Governor-General in Council considers him, even by implication and conditionally, guilty of a breach of trust, I submit that such opinion should be conveyed not personally to the officer so condemned, but through some other channel to the honourable Board, and that we should be left to deal with the offender, who must, if justly charged, be utterly unworthy of our continued confidence.

"After circulation, copies of these papers and of this minute should be submitted to the Government of India by the Chief Secretary."

The answer of the Supreme Government has just appeared in the Gazette of India.

In reference to Colonel Marriott's case, the Viceroy in Council tells that officer he is in error in supposing that he could with propriety have forwarded General Wormald an official answer to his inquiry by letter, the rules of the Post-office being analogous to those of the telegraph in reference to private communications, in which category it is held that the message question would be included. The use of the telegraph, Colonel Marriott is told, was still less justifiable; but the Viceroy in Council explains, in reference to the "slur" cast upon his character, that the charge of breach of trust was not intended to imply that the Colonel had a "private and sordid motive" for what he did, but that offences of the kind were "no doubt the consequence of mere thoughtlessness, and an inadequate appreciation of the nature of the Act; but this very want of consideration for public rights, and also, it must be added, for the orders of Government, makes it the more necessary to remind Government officers who so act, that to make use of the telegraph at the public expense on trivial occasions when its use is forbidden, much more for the transmission of messages which ought to be paid for by the persons in whose private interests they are sent, is in fact a breach of trust, however unintentionally committed."

In reference to that part of the minute which refers to Colonel Marriott's case, the Governor-general "thinks it only necessary to say that he regrets the spirit in which his Excellency has commented on the orders of the Government of India, and that he does not think the observations of his Excellency are fairly applicable to the occasion."

"Adverting to the first five paragraphs of the minute of his Excellency the Governor, I am desired to point out that the objection meant to be taken to the message despatched to Mr. Moore by his Excellency's private secretary has been misapprehended by his Excellency. The objection to such a message is that, as the intimation of leave being granted is made by telegraph solely in the interests and for the convenience of the officer who has applied for leave, such a communication should not, under the rules and orders relating to the use of the telegraph, be made by telegraph unless its transmission by that means has been specially asked for by the officer applying for leave, and he has signified his readiness to pay for its transmission. Upon this question I am directed to beg his Excellency's attention to the last circular letter issued by the Government of India on the subject of the use of the telegraph by public officers, dated the 18th of June, 1864. At the same time I am to say that, if it had been known that the message in question had been despatched by his Excellency's express order, it would have been allowed to pass unnoticed."

In the above it will be seen that the Governor-General in Council does not take quite the same ground as in Colonel Marriott's case. It is not denied that the communication is of a service character, which it must be, considering that replies to applications for leave are forwarded officially through the post as a matter of course. The question is therefore narrowed to the urgency of the particular case warranting the employment of the telegraph; and this point might, without any dangerous laxity, we think, be left to the discretion of an authority so high as the Governor of a Presidency. Sir Bartle Frere is evidently of opinion that the reception by a General Officer of a pension which he has honourably earned, and a tribute of respect to another General Officer, who, in a dying state, desires to see his son, are not matters with which the public service is entirely unconcerned, and to be classed as having reference to private interests à la. On the contrary, he appears to think that a Government should be as solicitous to see that its servants have their dues—whether pecuniary or personal—as to exact that they shall not fail in the performance of their own duties. But this is evidently a mistake in the opinion of higher authority; and it may be supposed that Sir Bartle's expression of official sorrow at a family affliction tended to aggravate the offence. For the future, perhaps, the safest course for mere Governors of Presidencies, and other subordinate persons, would be that which suggested itself to the offender—to send the bare business message in one telegram at the public expense, and the courtesy with which they may desire to clothe it in another message, at their own cost. And where an officer holds a post in which politeness is really a State necessity—as in the Political Department, for instance—a certain monthly allowance might be made to him for the purpose, just as is done for forage and other expenses incidental to particular duties. Another question also may be expected to arise out of this affair—whether the expression of courtesies in service letters conveyed by post may not also be considered a breach of trust, since they cost time if not money, and would certainly not be conveyed at the public expense alone. In the stiffest despatches there are such superfluities as “I have the honour to be your obedient servant,” and in demi-official communications there is often a great deal of personal matter introduced. Are all these to be cut off next, and Indian officials be made to pelt one another with epistles having no other object than to hit the mark?

We really think that Sir John Lawrence has been a little too stern in this matter, and has not made sufficient allowance for the human feelings which linger sometimes in the most hardened officials. We can quite understand that it is necessary to prevent exuberant authorities from exchanging friendly sentiments, gossip, or scandal, as the case may be, at a very limited number of words to the rupee, and paid for by the public. But governors and secretaries to Government should surely be allowed a little discretion in minor matters of courtesy, which are often more nearly connected with the public service than some people suppose. In Europe it is said, by those clever persons who know everything, that jewellery, gloves, and all kinds of agreeable articles de luxe frequently travel in ambassadors' bags, and that Royal messengers are continually scouring about from one country to another with despatches which form the least part of their commissions. No notice is taken of these little interchanges of attention in the West; but in the East, it seems, even a governor is not allowed to be obliging by electric telegraph.

FAMINE EXTRAORDINARY AT PATNA.—The following statement, dated Patna, November 6th, is extracted from the Poona Observer. There must be, we think, some mistake in the matter; at any rate we decline to believe so horrible and sickening a story without better evidence than that contained in the present paragraph:—“Such is the state of affairs in these districts, that people have commenced eating their own children. The people in question are not systematically cannibals; but what can they do? Provisions of all sorts are sold at exorbitant rates, or are not at all procurable. Hence they must eat something, if body and soul are to be kept together. The other day the police brought up two women before the magistrate, and said they were roasting a child one year old, to eat it. From inquiries made by the last named functionary, it appeared that the child had died, and that one of the females, the mother, was induced by the other, her friend, both in a state of starvation, not to consign its dead remains to the river, but to feast on it. The magistrate could not, under the circumstances, inflict any punishment on them.” Rice, the chief food of the people of Behar, is sold at the rate of 8 and 9 seers a rupee, and dall, the second article of consumption, at 7 and 7½ seers. Hence it is that they do not scruple to do anything.

BENGAL.

THE BHOOTAN BLUNDERS.

Mr. Beadon would seem to be Sir John Lawrence's evil genius. The Viceroy who, as an ordinary Chief Commissioner, saved India in 'Fifty-seven, has been charmed by the most skilful of charmers, into adopting as his own a policy more dishonouring to our name than any of the blunders which have marked the whole course of the Bhootan affair, and full of the seeds of political and financial embarrassment. The Bengal civilian who, when a secretary, led Lord Canning to the ruin of his reputation and the empire to the brink of destruction, and who as Lieutenant-governor gave Lord Elgin no rest till in spite of his better judgment he permitted a mission to be sent to Poonakha, has now induced Sir John Lawrence to adopt the same degrading policy, to sanction the same suicidal terms of peace, which, from the first, have led the Bhootas to treat us with alternate contempt and fear according to the season. Since the meeting of the Governor-general and the Lieutenant-governor at Bhaugulpore, Col. Bruce has been instructed to promise the Deb Rajah peace, to offer him twice our former payment of Rs. 25,000 if necessary, and to allow him two months in which to induce, or coerce, the refractory Tongso Penlow, to restore the two Armstrong guns which the cowardice of the Assam sepoys forced our officers to abandon in the Dewangiri rout. And in return for this privilege of paying annual tribute and waiting till the fighting season comes to an end, in reliance on a weak Bhoota's promises which have so often failed us, we are to have, what? Not honour, certainly; not revenge; not a just atonement for the past and undeniable guarantees for the future, but the pleasure of paying upwards of a million sterling for the expedition which has never set out, the promise that a small party may advance to Poonakha to guard Colonel Bruce from a repetition of the fate of Mr. Eden, the precious treaty that honourable gentleman signed,—which we would recommend Government to present to the new Imperial Museum with a copy of the bills of mortality and military charges appended,—and a slice of marshy territory with a few hill posts which we do not want.

We desire calmly to weigh the terms on which we offer peace to the Bhootas, but it is difficult to abstain from bitterness when we think of the past, and reason from that to the future. Every blunder—we might now correctly use the term disaster—has arisen from a conflict of authorities, and from the abdication of its better judgment and supreme power by the Government of India. The Secretary of State, the Governor-General, the Commander-in-Chief, the Lieutenant-Governor, and their civil and military agents on the spot, have from first to last misunderstood and opposed each other. We are of those who believe that the invasion of Bhootan was necessary, but why Lord Elgin should have treated its savages like a European Court, and have yielded to Mr. Eden's intense desire to distinguish himself as a diplomatist, we cannot conceive. The first blunder lay in sending an envoy instead of an army—a mistake against which the repeated experience of former missions, and declarations of former Governors-General, ought to have warned him. When that blunder resulted in the deepest disgrace a civilized power has suffered since certain men were told to tarry at Jericho till their beards had grown, the reason for war, immediate, sharp and decisive, were increased a thousand-fold. But diplomacy was again resorted to, promises were made to the chuckling durbar at Poonakha of the old tribute, if they would send back the treaty and the captives, and promise to behave better for the future. The Governor-General's letter to the Deb Rajah of 9th June, 1864, was the second blunder. True, it was sent with Sir C. Wood's approval, and Sir John Lawrence wished rather to advance on Poonakha the first moment it was possible, but his Excellency does not seem to have urged his views with that persistency to which even Sir C. Wood would have yielded, after boasting in Parliament that he gave the Viceroy “undeviating support.” Then came the third blunder, and if loss of life alone be considered, the most serious. Our native troops took up positions on the crest of the hills last cold season. Badly led, and lulled into security by the hope of a speedy termination to the campaign, they were driven out of Dewangiri on the right, and the stockade in front of Buxa on the left. The authorities now over-estimated the valour of the Bhootas as much as the Bengal Government had before led them to undervalue it, and our troops, instead of being altogether withdrawn from the terai at a time when the Bhootas will not enter it, or, if they were to be kept, being posted on the top of the ridge where they would have enjoyed the climate of Kuraiong, were doomed to rot and die of miasma in the marshes, till in some cases there were regiments with hardly a European officer, and in others officers without men to command.

And now the fourth blunder has been committed by Sir John Lawrence himself. As if determined that there shall be no conflict of authorities for the future, his Excellency seems to have thrown himself into the hands of Mr. Beadon, of all men, just as he did last year in accepting the policy of Sir C. Wood. It would seem that it was better to be a Chief Commissioner ten years ago than a Viceroy now. Looked at in itself, the Bhootan difficulty was from the first much less serious than any one of the hundred expeditions which Sir John Lawrence and the Punjab Irregulars brought to a successful conclusion in the North-west hills. But after two years of blundering, which has resulted in terrible sepoy mortality, in the disorganisation of our finances, and, what is worse, in humiliating our name throughout Southern and Central Asia, we are about to retire defeated and overreached in the eyes of every Asiatic, with the prospect of a renewal of the war in a year or two. We are disposed to give every weight to the fact that we have gained a strip of marsh and hill territory, even though we do not particularly want it. Our new frontier is to strike in a zig-zag direction for 200 miles east of Darjeeling, so as to run up here and there into the hills, where we shall have healthy fortified posts, and thus to make the defence of the terai portion quite unnecessary. Darjeeling will be enriched and rendered safe by a considerable accession of fine hill country and the eastern slope of the valley of Teesta, while the rest of the Dooars will far more than pay their expenses. Our Bengalee captives will be restored, and we have a promise that in two months Tongso Penlow may condescend to send us back our guns.

But the two considerations cannot be overlooked, apart altogether from the cost of the affair, that the Rs. 50,000 will be regarded as tribute paid by us for peace, or for the guns and the Eden treaty, and that the promise to coerce Tongso Penlow may unavoidably fail, or be a rous and intended to fail. As to the stipend, it is said that the Bhootas will starve if deprived of the Dooars, or a money equivalent. It is even said that the Deb Rajah has applied for a little farm to supply his own wants. All our information shows that if the Bhootas choose to work instead of oppressing the Dooar cultivators as hitherto, they have a country sufficient to supply the wants of ten times the population. Take Mr. Edm's glowing description of the extensive plain of Paro; look at the pictures drawn of the valleys watered by so many streams. We do not speak of copper and tin, of iron and lime, for to extract or quarry them might be too hard work; but tea, and cotton and saffron. The cultivation of the former has always been forbidden lest the trade from China and Thibet be injured. Captain Austen declares that the two latter might be grown with ease all round the capital. Yet, instead of driving these wretched lamas and officials to take advantage of the bounty of nature around them, we mean to pay them that they may eat the bread of idleness and resume the congenial duty of oppression. Fifty thousand rupees a year is after all a small sum, but it has in Asia a significance like that which is for ever associated with Aceldama. It is the price of the deepest disgrace we have yet suffered in Asia.

And the Deb Rajah is to coerce Tongso in two months, and send us back our guns? It may be so, but he cannot if he would, and as to persuading him, there is equal doubt. But, after our past experience, are we to believe a Bhoota? Two months?—just the time when it will be beginning to be too late for a force to march from Dewangiri the weary 200 miles of pathless rock and valley to Tongso castle. Is it not a trick to gain another year? And if it is not, if the guns are returned, and the price of dishonour is paid, is this such a termination of an expensive and deadly series of quasi-campaigns as is likely to prevent all necessity for the renewal of the war at no distant period? Truly, we have reason to congratulate ourselves on a war beginning with our envoy's disgrace and treaty, and ending with the doubling of our "tribute!" When we consider that such terms are accepted, and that by Sir John Lawrence, we must declare that the last end of the business is worse than the first.—Friend of India.

THE PEACE WITH BHOOTAN.

The great event of the day is the conclusion of hostilities with the Bhootahs and the signing of a treaty with that country on the 11th instant at Buxa. When we say that the following are the articles of the treaty, our readers will be at no loss to understand the feelings of indignation, shame, and sorrow with which it is regarded by all classes of the European community in this part of the British Empire:—

"Perpetual peace between the two nations.

"The eighteen Dooars ceded to the British for ever.

"All Bengalee and Assamese prisoners to be delivered up.

"The British Government to make an annual allowance to the Bhootan Government of Rs. 25,000, to be increased gradually to Rs. 50,000; the British to retain the right to stop payment of the whole or a portion of the allowance.

"Rendition of criminals. Free Trade. Disputes with Sikhim and Cooch Behar to be settled by British Government.

"The Bhootahs have made a full apology for the insults offered to the Hon. Mr. Eden.

"Government will not pay up the first instalment of Rs. 25,000 until the Deb Rajah makes Tongso give up the two guns lost at Dewangiri, and, if the Deb Rajah wishes it, the Government will render aid in compelling him to do so."

It is not too much to say that this miserable agreement has been greeted with an outburst of indignation by the press. An immense amount of money has been expended, the Empire has been ransacked from the Khyber to the extreme limit of Assam for the means and materials wherewith to push the war to a successful conclusion; we have suffered fearfully by the deadly climate of the Coors; the honour of the British flag was tarnished by the discreditable stampede at Dewangiri; the nation was insulted in the person of its envoy; the Bhootahs have laughed at our beards for twelve calendar months in the presence of astonished India; and now, after having been "wronged and insulted," we are deliberately "betrayed." Letters from the frontier tell of the strongest excitement and disgust pervading all ranks of that army which was to have marched to Ponakha, and chastised Bhootah insolence in its stronghold, but which has now to march crest-fallen and humiliated (though through no misconduct of its own) back to its cantonments, with feelings more easily imagined than described. People in Calcutta stare at each other in blank amazement, and inquire "what will they say in England," whilst all are at a loss to conceal their shame and the "deep damnation" of this most disgraceful treaty. It is difficult, indeed, to speak of it without transgressing the limits of propriety. How it will be received by the Rajahs and Princes of India, who have long been taught to regard the dominant power as a sort of incarnation of all that is great, powerful, and wise, it is not difficult to imagine. The marvellous display of courage and hardihood which the Government made when struggling against and triumphing over all Upper India combined, raised the prestige of the nation to a height which it had never occupied, but the gross and almost incomprehensible blundering which has marked our every step in this unfortunate Bhootan business has now laid it in the dust, where it will remain till some more energetic hand is put forth to raise it aloft again. Sir John Lawrence, the Hon. Mr. Cecil Beadon, and the Hon. Ashley Eden are at present, in consequence of this discreditable imbroglio, the most unpopular personages in the country. To the vacillation, conceit, and want of moral courage of the last-named gentleman is to be attributed all the infamy which this treaty has cast upon the nation. Insulted and outraged at Ponakha by a set of savages whom he might have swept off the face of the earth by the handful of disciplined sepoy of whom his escort was composed, his presence of mind and resolution failed him at the very moment, when the honour of the country he represented required their most conspicuous exercise; and he signed a document, the prolific parent of discord and disgrace, at a time when his position as an envoy should have taught him that death at his post was preferable to such ignominy. To Mr. Beadon, whose administration of Bengal has been more strongly marked by weakness, inconsistency, and vacillation than that of any of his predecessors, is due the deep disgrace of having made the worse appear the better reason, when he persuaded the Viceroy to consent to a treaty with the Bhootahs, than which none more discreditable has been known to the world since the days of Cintra. But whilst the conduct of these gentlemen has been only in accordance with what has long been known of them in India, that of the Viceroy is simply incomprehensible. Men look in vain for the iron will, the indomitable resolution and the keen sagacity which made the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab one of the foremost "Men of the Times." That the man who never flinched when the storm of the mutiny roared around him, who faced the most trying dangers with unshaken nerve, and whom no artifices and intrigues could deceive, should have lost his balance so completely as he appears to have done, and have been betrayed into failure by so miserable a diplomatist as the present Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, is, as we have said, simply incomprehensible. We have now to see what they will say in England.

(Englishman.)

The most important event of the fortnight is the termination of the war with Bhootan, by what our enemies will assuredly regard as the purchase of peace from that power. At the very time when our preparations for the march upon Ponakha were almost complete, when the Bhootahs had all to lose by the continuance of hostilities, and we ourselves nothing but disgrace to gain by their premature cessation, a treaty of our own making has been concluded, the terms of which are such as rather befitted a conquered people to ask, than a great and powerful one to offer. We are to pay the Bhootahs an annual allowance of twenty-five thousand rupees, to be increased to fifty thousand if they abstain from molesting us, retaining, as an equivalent, the Dooars, which it will probably cost us more than that to administer, and getting back the guns that were taken from us, and which we thus show that we prefer paying for to fighting for. As, however, the guns are still in possession of our only formidable opponent, the Penlow of Tongso, who is not a party to the treaty, and is practically independent of the authority of the Durbar, we have also obtained the permission of the Durbar to coerce him in case he refuses voluntarily to surrender them; so that there is still a possibility of a renewal of hostilities with the only individual who would have in any case been likely to oppose our progress. Free trade between the two nations is another condition of the treaty; but, though this may be considered as a concession on the part of the Bhootahs, it is one which, by passive resistance, they can always render abortive, without absolutely breaking faith with us. This humiliating treaty has caused a general cry of indignation throughout the country. It will do more injury to our prestige than any event of the last century; for the disgrace which it involves is one in which we have acquiesced, and which we therefore cannot avenge. Though we cannot now recede from the engagements so unfortunately entered into, it remains to be seen whether the Home Government has sufficient sense of our true position in this country to mark its unqualified disapproval of the transaction by the only course open in such a case—whether they will at once restore confidence to the European community in India, and that dignity to the Viceregal office which it has so sadly lost, and afford to our native subjects and neighbours an assurance that they cannot expect to oppose our power with impunity.

STATE OF THE HOOGLHY.

An unforeseen catastrophe, for such we may justly designate an occurrence which, even for a time, completely interrupts the commerce and communications of a great capital, has suddenly cut off Calcutta from all communication with the sea by means of the Hooghly. A channel in the river at Middle Point has silted up without warning, and not only is the mail steamer Mooltan prevented from going to sea, but no vessels of considerable draught can either come in or go out. The Golden Fleece, which left this morning, is detained from the same reason, and the in-coming mail steamer, along with other arrivals, will, of course, be unable to come up to town. Though there are hopes that the channel may be cleared by Saturday or Monday, it is not by any means certain how long we may be thus shut out from sea. As soon as we have better information of the real cause and nature of the impediment, we shall have more to say on this important subject. We believe the occurrence to be unprecedented, and whether it is indicative of progressive deterioration of the navigable qualities of the river, or is an accident that may happen only occasionally, we know now to what extremities of inconvenience we are liable by depending solely on the Hooghly for communication with the sea.—Englishman, Nov. 9.

We learn that, with the utmost promptitude, the agent of the Calcutta and South-Eastern Railway Company, on hearing of the obstruction of the Rangafulla Channel, offered to afford every facility at Port Canning for the accommodation of the Simla, in case it should be thought advisable to send her there after disembarking her mails in the Hooghly. The Simla only drawing 17 feet, this, in the present case, has not been necessary; but the very fact of the mail steamer being liable to be delayed by the sudden silting up of the channels of Hooghly, points to the urgent necessity of the P. and O. Company making such arrangements at Port Canning as will enable them to take to the Mutlah without loss of time, whenever occasion requires. The advisability of making Port Canning the permanent station for the mail steamer must depend upon the extent to which further experience shows us to be liable to accidents like that which has just occurred. There are some points, however, which, in connection with the alleged cause of the present delay, we do not altogether understand. It appears from the Telegraph Gazette that the ship Nagpore, drawing nearly twenty-three feet, passed in safety only yesterday the spot which, we are told, it is probable the Mooltan will be unable to pass for some days. We can, moreover, hardly believe that there is no alternative channel in case of the Rangafullah silting up. We should like to know how old is the latest chart of the Hooghly, and when the last general examination of the river, from Calcutta to Saugor, took place. If the Bankshall authorities have to depend entirely upon the reports of the River Surveyor, who, having nothing at his command but an old brig, cannot possibly do his work in a satisfactory manner, we can only say that the public are made the victims of an amount of apathy which is almost incredible, and wholly inexcusable.—Ibid, Nov. 10.

The official papers, while they show that the report of there being only six feet of water in the Silver Tree Channel last week arose from a pure misunderstanding, at the same time afford sufficient evidence that the channel is in a very precarious condition, and cannot, in fact, be depended on for two days together. The matter is one of great public importance. Every possible information on the subject should be afforded daily, so long as the channel remains in its present unsatisfactory and dubious state. There should be no disposition in any quarter to make matters look better than they really are, and they certainly cannot be much less encouraging than they are at present.

From inquiries made on Saturday, we learn that a pilot has reported only seven feet four inches at low water in the Silver Tree Channel, showing that the water there is gradually decreasing; and we learn, further, that the River Surveyor has reported that, within a few feet of the buoy marking the boundary of the new channel or opening, there are only six feet. We hope this state of things will speedily mend, and we trust that, during this time of suspense, the Bankshall authorities will take steps to keep the public informed of the state of these intricate channels.—Ibid, Nov. 20.

MISCELLANEOUS.

OPERATIONS IN BHOTAN.—REOCCUPATION OF DEWANGIRI.—The following letter from the late seat of war appears in the Delhi Gazette:—"The 12th and 44th Regiments N.I., both corps not being able to muster between them 600 men, occupied the heights of Dewangiri on the 31st, without meeting with the least opposition. The march from Koomreekhatta was a very difficult one, and it took them nearly 14 hours to do it, though the distance is only 16 miles. A great part of the road is through the bed of a river, and the water was hip deep in places. Besides over 800 coolies, fatigue parties from both regiments are employed in clearing jungle, which they found so high as to completely cover the ruins of the buildings that were blown up by Toombs' force. It is said that there is a Bhooteah force at a place called Saleeka, three marches from Dewangiri, where there is a stockade and a magazine, and where the two guns they took from us are reported to be.

Colonel Richardson with his Staff, and Colonel Agnew, the Commissioner, are at Dewangiri. The 14th Bengal Cavalry have gone to Dutma, why, no one seems to know. The ground there, I believe, is quite impracticable for cavalry, being overgrown with grass and reed jungle twelve feet high, and broken up by jheels and watercourses. They lost a great many sowars and camp followers at Dutma last April and May, and it certainly does not seem to be a very wise proceeding sending the regiment back there. A portion of the Left Wing 39th N.I., from Cherrapoonjee has gone on to Tezpoore, and the remains of the 43rd return to Gowhatty from Rungea. The only troops here at present are the Eurasian battery of artillery (waiting here for mules to replace the elephants they at present use for carrying the guns), and about 150 sick left behind by the 12th and 44th N.I. The general impression is that there will be no fighting; the Bhooteahs are inclined to give in, and as a proof that they are in earnest this time, they have returned to us the prisoners they took last cold season. None of us, I fancy, will be sorry when it is all over, a march over the hills to Toungsoo with only 80 lbs. of luggage (including bedding) will not be a pleasant one. The arrangements for carriage do not seem to be particularly good; the pack bullocks that have been sent up are miserable looking beasts, and are certain to break down. Last cold weather campaign proved the worthlessness of bullocks as means of carrying stores, &c., and that was mostly in the plains. The troops for the advance ought to be coming up by this time, but there is no word of them yet. I believe the 6th N.I. are at Dhoo bree, but they have been there nearly a month. This is a dreadful place for earthquakes (we had three distinct shocks on different days in one week), but they don't do much harm. Weather very warm. I believe that this has been an unusually dry season for Assam in the whole of September. We had only a couple of showers, and those were not very heavy. In October we had hardly any."

DEPARTURE OF MR. SAUNDERS.—The Hurkaru says:—"The Mooltan has carried from our midst one to whom was justly conceded the title of the "Father of the Press" on this side of India. Mr. J. O'Brien Saunders, for so many years editor and managing proprietor of the Englishman, has at last laid by his weapons, and sought rest from the battle of life in his own land and amongst his own people. Mr. Saunders was a member, and not the least known member of a family that has done India good service, none the less efficient, and none the less valuable that it has been done in the front ranks of the interlopers, and among men who worked hard and fought hard in the cause they had taken up, because they had a stake in the country. One brother wrote the celebrated Cotton Report, another conducted one of the most influential journals in India, with a spirit and moderation, which have made its name and his own familiar in all Indian homes as Household words. Mr. Saunders was connected with the press for nearly thirty-five years, a period which carries us back to the days of Lord William Bentinck, and the very planting of all those influences which give a character and form to British rule in India at the present day. Mr. Saunders was a writer on Indian subjects when the question was, shall we educate the natives? And he has now laid aside his pen in days when we have a native civil servant, a native barrister, and numberless natives who have won their degrees from the Calcutta University.

COTTON.—We may, we believe, safely predict that the year 1866 will see even higher prices of cotton than have yet obtained. Pretty accurate estimates have now been formed of the out-turn of the American crop of 1865, which is sure not to exceed 400, and will probably be nearer 300,000 bales—a quantity wholly insignificant in comparison with what was at one time confidently expected. In the meantime, the fall in the price of cotton, and the much exaggerated estimate at first formed in all quarters of the future prospects of American cultivation, have had so discouraging an effect upon production throughout the other cotton-producing countries, that, even including a fair portion of the four hundred thousand bales America is expected to produce, the deficiency will be as great as, if not greater than, in any former year. A fresh impulse will be given to cultivation here and elsewhere, but this will not tell till 1867, when a moderate crop may also be looked for from America. In 1866, then, we expect remarkably high prices, and in 1867 prices probably not inferior to those of the latter part of the present year. We have before us the Official Report on the Cotton Crop of the North-Western Provinces for 1865, from which it will be seen that the breadth of land has diminished much more largely than could reasonably have been expected. In May and June prices had fallen in some parts as low as eight and nine rupees per maund; and, though they immediately began to recover from this excessive depression, they had not topped fourteen to sixteen rupees up to the end of September. Since then, of course, there has been another great rise, and in the middle of October this staple was selling at Mirzapore at thirty rupees per maund. If the rise continues, or is sustained, of which there cannot be any longer much doubt, it is probable that three-fourths of the crop will find its way into the export market. The outturn, however, is likely to be insignificant, the area under cultivation has actually fallen below the limit of 1861. The estimated yield is only 8,24,540 maunds, from which we may make a liberal deduction for contingencies, against an actual crop of 16,59,917 maunds last year.—Englishman.

THE CASE OF THE "EAGLE SPEED."—The tragedy of the Eagle Speed, in Calcutta, apparently conveniently forgotten, is exciting in England indignation quite as strong as was at first displayed here. After commenting with just severity on the conduct of those concerned, the leading London journal concludes with the assurance that the weight of responsibility will be apportioned by judicial decision. To us, who know the actual result, this assurance, reasonable as it was, reads like bitter satire. How has the responsibility been apportioned? One man, perhaps the least to blame of all the responsible parties, has been made the scapegoat of the rest, because, he being a Government servant, it was no trouble to reach him. Those who were most to blame, but were fortunate enough not to serve the Government, have not even been brought to trial. An attempt was made to blind the public by a commission of inquiry, the object of which, if it was accomplished was nothing else. The public voice was certainly hushed; but if any other practical result was arrived at, it has been carefully concealed. We are not even aware what was the nature of the decision of the committee, if it ever came to any decision at all. The public have formed their own decision, and the public press have freely expressed it, that all concerned, from the protector of emigrants to the able-bodied seamen, shamefully neglected their duty. We presume that had the commission formed a different opinion they would, in justice to those concerned, have made it known.—Englishman, Nov. 16.—It must not be supposed that, by our article of yesterday, we intended to blame the commission for the result of the inquiry in the case of the loss of the Eagle Speed. They have, of course, done what they were appointed to do—made a report. That the inquiry has not got beyond that stage, and that of the report itself the public know nothing, is the fault, not of the commission, but of the Government.—Ibid, Nov. 17.

OUR POLICY TOWARDS RUSSIA.—The Friend of India gives publicity to a report which, had it referred to any other statesman than Earl Russell, we should have unhesitatingly pronounced a canard; as, however, it is quite impossible to say to what lengths of absurdity the "meddle and muddle" policy of the new Premier may lead him, we take the report, as the Friend gives it, cum grano salis, till shown to have no foundation. It is said, then, that Earl Russell has remonstrated with Russia regarding her policy of aggression in Central Asia. On what possible grounds England could assume the right of remonstrance respecting the policy of Russia, as far as it has yet been developed, we cannot conjecture. None of the Powers touched have any relations with England, upon which we could ground such a remonstrance; and much as Russophobists may dread the proximity of Russia to our Indian frontier, we cannot help thinking that, to lay claim to so wide a neutral ground between the two boundaries, would argue an excess of both timidity and presumption.—Englishman.

THE RANEE OF TIKAREE AND MR. WILLIAM TAYLER.—The application for a review of judgment in the cases between the Ranee of Tikaree and Mr. William Tayler, will, we understand, be heard almost immediately after the opening of the High Court. Mr. Tayler, we believe, will argue the case in person. The controversy cannot but be interesting to the public. The imputations cast upon Mr. Tayler by the two judges, Messrs. Norman and Loch, are of the gravest character, and such as those who know Mr. Tayler will not readily believe; while the charges brought against the judges themselves by Mr. Tayler are such as, if substantiated, must have very serious results.—Englishman.

CHARGE AGAINST AN OFFICER.—We regret to hear that the Government regards the proceedings of Major J. Williamson, commanding 26th R.N.I., with extreme displeasure. Major Williamson, it is said, continued to draw company command allowance instead of making it over to the wing officers. The pay department has received a rather severe "wig" for not having noticed the matter earlier. We believe, however, the real blame should rest on the office of the Controller of Military Accounts. The conduct of Major Williamson has been reported to the Commander-in-Chief.—Hurkaru.

A CRUEL JOKE.—The Competition-Wallah system has now been completed by the enlistment of the son of an undertaker in its ranks. In the intervals of his studies for the examination the youthful aspirant for the honours of a civil service career neglected no opportunities of keeping up the paternal profession, and stood "mute" on various occasions at the burial of dignitaries. The public will be now relieved of much anxiety as to the occasional want of decorum manifested at the interment of great men in the country. The new member will undertake to advise on all points of form. After young Mr. Calcraft has duly performed the "executive" department in the case of a high criminal, the funeral obsequies can be performed with the strictest regard to etiquette.

MASTER PILOT BEAN.—We find that the Marine Court, lately assembled for the purpose of trying Licensed Master Pilot Mr. J. S. Bean on a charge of drunkenness, found him guilty, and sentenced him to be dismissed the service. The jury recommended him to mercy, and solicited the Lieutenant-Governor to mitigate the sentence. His Honour, having perused the proceedings, was unable to overlook a charge of drunkenness, conclusively proved, and consequently confirmed the sentence of dismissal.

LIEUT. BOILEAU, of the 17th Cavalry, has been killed at Sonapore in a sky race, by his horse bolting into a top of trees.

OPENING OF THE NEW PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH AT ALLAHABAD.—A large congregation, including his Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, were present at the first opening for Divine service of the newly-erected Presbyterian Church, St. Andrew's, at this station. The services were conducted by the Rev J. Williamson, Presbyterian chaplain, after which a collection was made to meet the debt which we mentioned in a previous issue as having accrued. We are happy to state that the call was met in a most liberal manner, and Rs. 972 were placed at the disposal of the reverend gentleman to help to wipe off the debt.—Pioneer.

RAILWAY COMMUNICATION STOPPED FOR WANT OF FUEL.—The Delhi Gazette mentions that the trains on the East India Railway had been all stopped at Allahabad for want of wood! Alluding to the subject in a subsequent publication, the writer explains that the contractor did not fail in his engagement, but the railway authorities made the inexcusable mistake of not providing for the additional goods and special trains that run at this season of the year. The mail on one occasion was detained 14 hours; one or two passenger trains did not run at all, and many successive ones were very late.

BENARES, Nov. 10.—The 9th Regiment Native Infantry which quitted Fyzabad on the 25th ultimo, arrived here on the 5th instant en route for Bhootan. The 26th Punjab Infantry, also bound for the Eastern Frontier, has reached this. They proceeded by rail to Sahibgunge. Lieutenant J. Cook, of the 14th Native Infantry, has been appointed officiating Deputy-Assistant Quartermaster-general at Sahibgunge to superintend the crossing of the troops there. He left this on the 30th ultimo. The detachment of her Majesty's 58th, which was stationed at Azimgurh and Jounpore, have joined their head-quarters at this station. The Convalescent Depot at Parisnath has been broken up, and the men have been ordered down to Fort William.—Delhi Gazette, Nov. 14.

THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR OF THE PUNJAB SHOT AT.—A report has just reached us that, whilst crossing some river—our informant does not say which, but we suppose the Jhelum, or the Ravee—the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab and his party were fired at by some fanatic or fanatics. Beyond this vague report, we have received no further particulars; but we shall certainly not neglect to lay before our readers any information we may receive on the point the moment it reaches us.—Bombay Gazette.

COLONEL BECHER.—The rumour gains strength that Colonel Becher, the Commissioner of Peshawur, is about to retire, and various are the conjectures as to who is to be his successor. The last announcement is that Major McNeile, the energetic Deputy Commissioner of Loodianah, and now Commissioner of Jhansi, is the coming man, to be succeeded in his post by Major Farrington, Deputy Commissioner of Unruitsur, who has, we observe, just arrived in Calcutta.—Delhi Gazette, Nov. 18.

JUNG BAHADOOR.—We learn, not without pleasure, that Sir Jung Bahadoor, as the Indian papers call him, is about to visit England again, accompanied by his sons and by two brothers. His Excellency the Viceroy has sanctioned his proceeding to England as "ambassador from the Court of Nepal." Mr. Nash, a captain in the Nepal service, is to come with the embassy.

H.M. 45TH REGIMENT.—In consequence of great mortality in her Majesty's 45th Regiment at Neemuch, the regiment has been ordered to Mhow, but a European garrison is to be maintained at the former place.

MR. PENNINGTON, the principal Sudder Ameen of Dacca, is about to retire from the service.

THE CHIEF COMMISSIONERSHIP OF OUDH, says the Delhi Gazette, will be offered to Colonel Lake on the retirement of Mr. Charles Wingfield. It is well known that the appointment of Financial Commissioner of Oudh was first offered to him but declined.

MR. H. A. P. B. RIDDELL, the Director-General of the Postal Department of India, is about to retire from the Civil Service.

THE GOVERNMENT BALL on Thursday night, in honour of the Queen's Birthday [the Prince of Wales's is meant, we presume], was not so well attended as usual. His Excellency the Governor was present, but his Highness Prince Azim Jah did not attend, as he was informed that Sir William, owing to his recent accident, would be unable to descend the steps of the Banqueting Hall to receive him, and he feared that such an omission of formality might be made a precedent. The Hon. Mr. Pycroft, the Senior Member of Council, occupied the Governor's chair at supper, his Excellency being compelled to desist from attempting to mount the stairs.—Madras Times.

CASE OF SUTTEE IN MYSORE.—It has been a matter of congratulation that the barbarous and inhuman practice of self-sacrifice, yclept Sutte, is fast disappearing under the strong hand of the British raj. A case, however, has lately occurred in Mysore under the following circumstances:—Most of our readers are aware that irrigation in the Madras Presidency is carried out by means of tanks, that is, a natural valley which receives the discharge of the watershed of a certain tract, and is crossed by a bank or bund to retain the water within the smallest compass. This bund is composed of earth faced with stone, and if this be at all imperfect breaches very frequently occur. It seems this was the case at three different times with a tank in the vicinity of a village about 100 miles from Bangalore. The breach had been closed twice, and on the third occasion the inhabitants of the village were fully persued that a human sacrifice was necessary for the success of the undertaking. Accordingly, it seems, they inveigled a boy to the site of the tank, and, after strangling him, threw him into the water, so that it might appear he had met his death by drowning. It would most probably have passed off so, but that a Roman Catholic priest chanced to see the body when it was taken out, and his suspicions were excited. Accordingly he brought the matter to the notice of the authorities. The case is still under investigation, and four men are in custody. It seems they were bribed by the Gowdahs (zemindars) of the village to commit the murder, and these being in some way connected with the Amildar, accounts for his taking as little cognizance of the matter as possible.

BRUNTON'S PATENT PRESS COMPANY.—The buildings of the company have been partially restored, and work resumed. On Wednesday, the 8th inst., one single press turned out two hundred bales of pressed cotton, the time occupied being under twelve hours, viz., from half-past seven A.M. to seven P.M.

SUDDEN DEATH OF THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL IN COURT.

We regret to announce the sudden death, at noon, on the 14th Nov., in the High Court, of the Hon. Arthur James Lewis, Advocate-General at Bombay, and a Member of the Council of his Excellency the Governor for making Laws and Regulations. The learned gentleman attended in Mr. Justice Anstey's court on behalf of Government, in a suit brought by Wishwanath Atmaram against the Secretary of State for India in Council, the merits of which were discussed for about an hour; and, after addressing the Court for some time, he sat down in his chair. Suddenly, he was observed to faint, and a gurgling noise proceeded from his throat. He was removed in his chair into an adjoining room, where Dr. Hewlett, who happened to be in court, attended upon him. Dr. Haines also arrived shortly afterwards, and rendered prompt assistance; but the deceased gentleman did not rally, and died within a few minutes of the time when he was addressing the Court. His death arose from disease of the heart. Upon learning the sad intelligence Mr. Justice Anstey immediately adjourned his Court, and shortly afterwards the other Courts were also adjourned until Thursday morning.

Mr. Lewis was the son of General Lewis, of the Bombay army—an officer who, when a colonel, filled the position of Judge-Advocate-General of the Bombay presidency. He was born in Bombay in 1801, being a twin brother of the late Captain Robert Lewis. When a boy Mr. Lewis went to England, and after the usual course of preparation at Eton, he matriculated at Oxford, and graduated at that University in due course. Selecting the law as a profession, he entered himself a student of the Middle Temple, and was called to the bar on the 16th of May, 1828. His practice was chiefly confined to the Equity Bar, at which he held a distinguished position, and was frequently retained in causes in which the late East India Company was concerned. He was engaged, amongst others, in the memorable case of the Rajah of Sattara; and his efforts in connection with it brought him very prominently into public notice. The deceased gentleman also took a leading part in the debates in the Court of Proprietors of the East India Company, and thus attracted the notice of Colonel Sykes, who was chairman of this body at that time; and it is believed that in consequence of the favourable impression which Mr. Lewis produced on the colonel's mind, he was appointed to the position of Advocate-General of Bombay, when it became vacant by the resignation of Mr. Le Messurier in 1857. The appointment was conferred on Mr. Lewis in April or May of that year, and he returned to Bombay shortly afterwards, where he continued to reside until March last, when failing health induced him to visit England. The change, however, did not prove very beneficial, and against the advice of his friends he returned to Bombay about a month since and resumed his official duties.—Times of India.

CONSPIRACY AT CABOOL.—CABOOL, Oct. 18. —A conspiracy has been detected. Sirdur Wully Mohamed Khan, the Governor of Cabool, has been imprisoned by Sirdar Ibraheem Khan, a son of the Ameer. Sirdars Mohamed Ruffeek Khan and Surwur Khan, sons of the late Sirdar Sooltan Mohamed Khan, and Surfuraz Khan, son of Khoda Bukhah Khan, have fled towards Taizee. It is said that Wully Mohamed Khan, and the above-named Sirdars, together with Meer Hajee Sahib, had conspired and had drawn up a deed, to which the seals of the chiefs of the Jubber Khyle, Kuzzulbaush, Raika, Ahmed Zaie, and other tribes, were affixed. It was agreed upon that the moment Sirdar Ubdoolrahman Khan, the son of Uzzul Khan, with his troops, had arrived at Bamean, they (the conspirators) were to make Ibraheem Khan a prisoner. Shaikh Meer, who was also one of the conspirators, revealed the plot to Ibraheem Khan, who lost no time in securing Wully Mohamed Khan in the Balla Hissar. The house and other property of Ruffeek Khan have been confiscated, and Sirdar Futteh Mohammed Khan, with a body of troops, has been sent in pursuit of him. A letter received by the Bookhara Ambassador has been forwarded to the Ameer to Candahar to-day. It was as follows:—"The Russians have entered my territory and intend to make encroachments upon all the cities inhabited by Mussulmans, and the English are close to your frontier. Under these circumstances, is it right that enmity should exist between me and you? You keep your own brother Uzul Khan treacherously in prison. I advise you strongly to be as kind and considerate to your brothers and relatives as was the late Ameer Dost Mohamed Khan. I would recommend a treaty of alliance between the two Powers, that is, between Bookhara and Afghanistan."

THE EXTENSION OF THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY TO BURNHURST was opened on the 20th Nov., and it is expected that the line to Budnair will be opened about the middle of December.

THREATENING LETTERS.—On the 20th Nov. one of Messrs. Ritchie Stuart's peons, a mere lad, presented Mr. Justice Anstey, while on the Bench, with an anonymous letter of an intimidating and excessively obscene character. The boy was of course immediately taken into custody, when upon his person was found another letter addressed to Mr. Justice Couch, at that time presiding in the Insolvent Court, of even a worse description. The boy's story was that the letters were given to him by a Parsee, named Rustumjee, in the employment of the Asiatic Banking Corporation, but upon being taken out by the Sheriff's officer to discover Rustumjee, he failed to point him out. Mr. Justice Anstey, therefore, after some consultation with Mr. Justice Couch, sent the boy to the county jail for gross contempt of Court, until such time as he should purge his contempt by revealing the real perpetrators of this wicked and foolish outrage. These persons will not, we are assured, long enjoy the impunity of a vicarious punishment in the person of the miserable sepoy, their victim. There will be no difficulty in tracing them out; and nothing will give us greater pleasure than to see these cowardly assailants receive the full measure of the punishment which this eminently Oriental method of attack richly entitles them to. Some parties are, it appears, directing an organized system of intimidation of this sort against Mr. Justice Anstey, by letters couched in every form of obscene and foul malignity.

CHANGES IN THE COMMISSARIAT.—We understand that Captain F. P. Mignon, Assistant Commissary-general, Poona division of the army, proceeds to Mhow to assume charge of the commissariat department of that division, and Captain M. W. Willoughby, Assistant Commissary-general at Mhow, will take charge of the commissariat department at Poona. During Captain Mignon's tenor of office he has given every satisfaction both to Government and the troops in the performance of his public duties. Captain Willoughby was at the head of the office here during the height of the mutinies, and had charge of the cattle department, and it was through the exertions of this officer that there was no delay in moving troops to Central India and elsewhere on the shortest possible notice.

ANOTHER RAILWAY ACCIDENT ON THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA LINE.—Another accident happened on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway at half-past one o'clock on Sunday morning, the 12th Nov., between sixty-three and sixty-four mileage, near Khurdee, but which was fortunately unattended with any loss of, or injury to, human life. It appears that at the time in question No. 20 up goods train came into collision with a water buffalo which had strayed on to the line; the engine passed over the animal, but the whole of the trucks, twenty in number, were thrown off the line by the shock, and eleven of them fell down an embankment. Two of the trucks contained sheep and the rest seeds and grain. One of the sheep vans was completely smashed to pieces, and some sixty of the sheep killed, but strange to say, a shepherd who was lying amongst the poor animals escaped unhurt, but somewhat frightened. When assistance was rendered, he declared he was not hurt, but wished to know "what had become of his sheep," asking anxiously, "where they had all gone to." Strange to say, the buffalo over which the engine passed was not cut through, and the only mark of blood to be seen upon the carcass was near the tail. The jungle-wallahs carried away the whole of the dead sheep, but left the buffalo to the hyenas and vultures.

THE LAST OF THE EXHIBITION PROJECT.—At a meeting of the shareholders of the Bombay International Exhibition Company, held on the 22nd Nov., the resolution passed at a previous meeting for winding up was confirmed, and liquidators were appointed.

SHOCKING CATASTROPHE.—About half-past two o'clock in the morning of the 23rd the steamer Bombay Castle, commanded by Captain Wadge, was entering the harbour on her return voyage from China. She had signalled for and received a pilot on board, and all went well until just before reaching the Inner Light Vessel, when a country vessel was seen on her starboard bow, quite close to the steamer. The helm was immediately put hard a-starboard, the engines stopped, and then turned astern full speed; but all without avail, for the steamer struck the boat on the port bow, and on backing clear of her she immediately filled and went down. All the boats were at once lowered, and with the pilot-boat proceeded to the spot, for the purpose of saving the lives of those on board. Sad to relate, however, fifteen men, women, and children were drowned. The remainder, consisting of twenty passengers and ten of the crew, were taken on board the steamer and brought into harbour. This native boat, or cotta, left Boree Bunder on Wednesday night, with cargo and passengers, bound for Forebunder. It is, of course, premature to offer an opinion as to who is to blame in the matter. It was a hazy morning, with no moon, and the tide had commenced to ebb about an hour.

MILITARY ITEMS.—The Head Quarters of the 4th (King's Own) Regiment from Poona to Bombay, and H.M.'s 45th Regiment from Bombay to Poona, will take place by train in the course of this day.—H.M.'s 72nd Highlanders will embark for England on the 17th Nov.—H.M.'s 96th Regiment is expected to arrive at Poona from the Cape of Good Hope at the end of December.—H.M.'s 44th Regiment will proceed from Belgau to England; a detachment will leave during the month, and the rest in December.—H.M.'s 56th Regiment will proceed to England from Deesa when relieved by H.M.'s 49th Regiment. A detachment of the latter has already left for Ahmedabad, and will commence their march on the 10th November to Deesa.

DEATH OF MR. GROVE, OF THE COLDSTREAM GUARDS.—We regret to announce the death of W. Chafyn Grove, Esq., aged 22 years, of the Coldstream Guards, at the Royal Family Hotel, yesterday evening. This young officer, it appears, was suffering from consumption, and by the advice of his medical attendant he first proceeded from England to Australia, and from thence he arrived at Bombay and Poona. Dr. Hoffman accompanied the deceased as private medical attendant.—Poonah Observer, Nov. 14.

HOWARD V. MULL.—This long impending action, brought by the late Director of Public Instruction against the manager of the Times of India, has been commenced in the High Court. The proceedings have already occupied three days, and still stand adjourned.

ARRIVAL OF MR. MARKHAM.—Among the passengers who arrived in the Carnatic on Sunday night was Mr. Markham, of the India-office. We understand this gentleman has been deputed by the Government to visit the planters along the Western Coast of India and try to induce them to cultivate the cinchona tree, in order that a new source of the supply of quinine may be obtained.—Bombay Gazette, Nov. 28.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL HOLDICH is, it is said, to succeed Sir John Garcock in the Peshawur division.

"When a comdg. officer of a brig. of R.A., or of a regt. of British cav. or inf., acts in command of a brig. on the half staff allowance, he shall receive his regimental pay and allowances in addition to the half salary of the acting appointment. The same rule may be applied in the case of an officer not of the staff corps, and not holding a regimental command, succeeding to the command of a brig. Whenever an acting officer comes upon the full staff salary, he will of course receive staff corps pay only, in addition to the staff allowance. It is to be distinctly understood that an offic. officer's claim to the higher allowances (as also those of regimental officers appt. by his tempy. removal from the corps) must depend on confirmation of his appt., until the appearance of which in gen. order no additional allowance should be made."

LIFE OF THE DUKE OF WELLINGTON.

By the Rev. G. R. GLEIG, M.A., F.R.G.S., Chaplain-General to the Forces, and Prebendary of St. Paul's. Popular Edition, carefully revised and corrected, with copious Additions from Authentic Sources.

"Mr. Gleig has written the life of our greatest hero as it has not been written yet. He has made good use of materials which for completeness and accurate detail have, perhaps, no parallel. French and English authors alike have contributed to his resources, and he has filled in the outline of the hero's portrait with a minuteness of drawing and a vivid colouring which are entirely satisfactory."—Saturday Review.

THE APPOINTMENT OF LORD HARDINGE

FORMING A SEQUEL TO

THORNTON'S HISTORY OF INDIA.

BY

LIONEL JAMES TROTTER,
late of the 2nd Bengal Fusiliers.

THE PUBLISHERS' NOTICE.

Indian History since the recall of Lord Ellenborough has been so fruitful of great events and striking episodes, that we cannot but think the time has fully come for continuing Mr. Thornton's unfinished work. The two campaigns on the Sutlej, followed by the conquest of the Punjab, the second Burmese War, crowned by the annexation of Pegu, the splendid reign of Lord Dalhousie, illustrated by the establishment of railways, the swift growth of the electric telegraph, the gradual settlement of the Punjab, all these things, followed as they were by the annexation of Oude, and the mighty explosion of 1857, which annihilated the old Sepoy army of Bengal, nearly shattered to pieces the power founded by Clive and Hastings, and brought about the political death of the great East India Company, seem to furnish abundant matter for at least two interesting volumes, written with due conciseness and a careful regard to truth.

The history of a time so fraught with stirring incidents and momentous issues can hardly fail, with fair handling, to interest Englishmen of very diverse tastes. We have therefore arranged with a gentleman of some literary culture, Captain L. J. Trotter, late of the 2nd Bengal Fusiliers, for the production of two volumes, which shall bring the history of British India down to its natural halting-place, the death of Lord Canning.

As only a limited edition is being printed, we shall be obliged by an early intimation from such of our friends as wish to complete their copies of "Thornton's History."

BY DAVID THOMAS ANSTED, M.A., F.R.S., &c.

AND

ROBERT GORDON LATHAM, M.A., M.D., F.R.S., &c.

The Illustrations drawn on Wood expressly for the Work, by PAUL J. NAFTEL, Member of the London Society of Painters in Water Colours.

'The "Channel Islands" is an excellent book of its class—well conceived, well written, well illustrated, well printed. It is the produce of many hands, and every hand a good one. Nearly every thing which a man can desire to know about Jersey, Guernsey, Alderney, and Sark—about their history, Geography, and natural history—Professor Ansted and Dr. Latham have contrived to tell. Altogether the contents of the volume are as varied and interesting as a well-sustained drama; and to this drama no more graceful and picturesque scenery could have been furnished than we find in the illustrations so profusely given by artists worthy of the subject and equal to their worth—Paul Nafel and M. Petere Le Lièvre. The result is not a merely handsome volume of the old "Keepsake" style, made to sell and be looked at, but a book of rare merit and value, made for instruction and delight, to be read with pleasure and to be referred to with profit.'—Athenaeum, Nov. 15, 1862.

EXPANDING SADDLE.GIBSON AND COMPANY

Respectfully invite the attention of MILITARY MEN, EQUESTRIANS, and OWNERS OF HORSES, to their Newly-Invented EXPANDING SADDLE, which admits of ready adjustment to the size of any horse, creating a secure and easy seat without the slightest inconvenience to either horse or rider. The principle of EXPANSION and CONTRACTION comprises a simple arrangement of mechanism within the saddle so perfect, that by merely turning a screw the pad is proportioned to the size and form of the animal, on which it firmly rests with a uniform pressure, and is securely retained in its position by means of an ordinary girth.

This invention has obtained the approval and distinguished patronage of HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF, and from the very favourable opinions expressed by competent judges, and all who have had an opportunity of testing its merits, there is no doubt it will come into general use; indeed, its success is already established.

MRS. JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTH-
ING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH.—This infallible remedy has preserved hundreds of children when thought past recovery from convulsions arising from painful dentition. As soon as the Syrup is rubbed on the gums the child will be relieved, the gums cooled, and the inflammation reduced. It is as innocent as efficacious, tending to produce the teeth with ease; and so pleasant that no child will refuse to let its gums be rubbed with it. When infants are at the age of four months, the Syrup should be rubbed on the gums, and parents should never be without the Syrup in the nursery where there are young children; for, if a child wakes in the night with pains in the gums, the Syrup immediately gives ease, thereby preventing convulsions, fever, &c. The great success of this medicine during the last twenty-five years has induced unprincipled persons to imitate it, under the name of American Soothing Syrup, and copying parts of Mrs. Johnson's Bill, &c. Parents will, therefore, be very particular to ask for JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTHING SYRUP, and to notice that the names of BARCLAY and SONS, 95, Farringdon-street, London (to whom Mrs. Johnson has sold the recipe), are on the stamp annexed to each bottle.

Sold by all chemists and medicine vendors.

asthma, or shortness of breath are also within the range of the sanative powers of this remarkable medicine. The cures effected by these Pills are not superficial, not temporary, but complete and permanent. They are as mild as they are efficacious, and may be given with confidence to delicate females and young children.

ANILINE DYES.—“I shall commence my observations on dyeing, by referring especially to the remarkable and beautiful colours derived from coal tar, the introduction of which into this art may be said to constitute the chief distinction, as far as dyeing is concerned, between the present and the former Exhibition, creating, in fact, a new era in the tinctorial art. Coal tar colours deserve attention for their power, as well as for the facility with which they may be applied, for one grain will deeply tint half a gallon of water, and little or no skill is required for their application.”—Vide Report by Grace Calvert, Esq., F.R.S., Ph.D., Honorary Professor of Chemistry.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

WE have received our usual files of papers by the Calcutta mail; but the only later dates are from Madras and Ceylon—being to the 27th and 30th of November respectively. As we have seldom, for some time past, received more than one day's later news from Calcutta by the direct mail, it is plain that this route is being practically superseded, as far as the mails are concerned. It is therefore most desirable that whatever change in this respect is intended be put in practice as soon as possible.

In reference to the feeling in India on the subject, we find these remarks in the Pioneer:—"Those of our subscribers who reside any distance from Calcutta, Madras, or Galle will do well to remember that the English mail by Galle for them is a perfect farce. As one instance out of many, we may mention that the papers and letters despatched from England on the 3rd Oct., and which went via Marseilles and Bombay, were delivered here twenty-four hours before the Galle mail, which left England seven days previously. And shortly it may be expected that via Jubbulpore even the Calcutta folks will receive letters via Bombay before those previously sent them per the mail which runs to Galle come to hand."

There is more news from Madras than usual; but little that appeals particularly to notice.

The re-organisation of the local army still excites discussion and discontent, and the officers who have suffered from the change have not been put into better temper by some particularly cool treatment which they have received from authority. When the order first came out they were invited to send in the particulars of their complaints, with a view to the provision of a remedy. They adopted this course with some punctuality, and now they are told it is too late—that nothing can be done for them.

The monsoon has set in at the Presidency, and relieved the people of much apprehension. Prospects are now much better than they were, and everything more cheerful.

A triple murder has been committed at Cannanore by a native gentleman of high rank. The delinquent is in custody.

From Ceylon we have the same curious mingling of news as usual. Coffee is always the first item, then the Governor, and he is followed by the Military Commission, the Ceylon League, and the names of a great number of Bills which either have been passed, will be passed, or will not be passed, as the case may be, through the Legislative Council. The remainder of the paper (we here allude to the Colombo Observer) is usually given up to local quarrels. This time there is less than usual to notice, the most exciting item being an announcement that the Ceylon League are preparing something like an impeachment of Mr. Cardwell, and the most melancholy one, the termination of the search after oysters, with the information that none were to be found. There was a report, too, of the termination of the labours of the Military Commission, with a result mentioned elsewhere; but the statement is not made upon official authority.

The next arrival from India will be the Bombay mail, which has not yet been telegraphed from Suez, but, in the ordinary course of things, would be due in London on the 5th of January.

The Times of this day contains an article upon the Bhootan Treaty, of which it is disposed to make the best; but its tone is woefully apologetic. Here is an extract:—

"Such are the conditions of the Treaty now condemned. It is said that the Bhootas, instead of losing anything, are actually gainers of £2,500 a year in the shape of increased 'tribute,' that the Chief who had been foremost in insulting us, and who retains our guns, is no party to the Treaty and that if we are compelled to move against him ourselves, it will be when the two months of the year most favourable to military operations have gone by. In short, the Bhootas, after offering us the most scandalous offence, are left better off than before, while all India and Central Asia will naturally imagine that we have been discomfited in our attempt to coerce and chastise them. That the expedition would have been attended with the greatest difficulties, and could have resulted in no profit, is not disguised; but it is urged that much of the expense had been already incurred in the organisation of the invading force, and that the great, and to us invaluable, fruit of the war would have been the establishment of our prestige and the maintenance of our honour. This honour, it is said in India, we have now jeopardised to save ourselves the cost and trouble of a mountain campaign.

"It is not difficult to discover from the terms of the Treaty what its promoters really designed. We can state on good authority that the terms now accepted by the Bhootas are precisely those which would have been proposed had the first expedition penetrated to the capital of Bhootan and there dictated peace. They were the terms which had been framed and decided upon from the very beginning of the affair, nor have they been, except in the clause concerning the captured guns, either reduced or enhanced. The policy of the Indian Government was directed to security for the future, rather than revenge or punishment. These Bhootas are utterly uncivilised; they had little knowledge of the consideration due to an Envoy, and were scarcely, in a political sense, responsible people.

The object was to get the peace kept on our borders for the longest time and at the smallest cost, and the only effectual instrument in our hands was the rent which we paid them. This money was nothing to us; it was everything to them, and it has been made the machinery for working on their minds. The promise that the payment should not be stopped induced them, beyond doubt, to come to this agreement now; and the prospect of an increase, conditional on their good behaviour, is more likely than anything else to insure the conduct we desire. We are applying this machinery at the very outset, for the first instalment of the money is not to be paid until the Armstrong guns are given up. It is, we think, extremely probable that this policy is well calculated to secure its object, and that our territory on the Bhootan border will, at an expense not exceeding £5,000 a-year, be protected in future from the attacks which have hitherto disturbed us.

"The only question is, whether in these obvious considerations of prudence we may not have lost sight of what our position demands. We may have taken excellent measures for the preservation of peace on the Bhootan frontier; but if we have allowed the Bhootas to think themselves victorious, and other people to draw their inferences from the example, our loss may be greater than our gain. That is a point on which it would not be easy to pronounce an opinion, but it is also a point on which the Indian Government would be most competent to decide, and on which we need not suppose that Sir John Lawrence would be improperly biased."

The Pall Mall Gazette last night discussed the question in a similar spirit. The Standard and the Morning Herald take a very decided tone in condemnation of the settlement.

WHAT MR. COPE THINKS OF RUSSIAN INTRIGUE.—We have received the first number of the new weekly paper for the Punjab, the North Indian Herald, published at Unrisur. The writer of an article reviewing our present position in India says of our native subjects:—"Thirty years' residence in India, and a fair study of its population, entitle us to bear witness to the truth of the adage that it is impossible to change the skin of the leopard, and that no measures, however mild, can, until the pure light of Christianity shall pervade the whole continent." When talking on the state of their country to some stalwart Affghans lately, they asked the writer whether it was the intention of the British Government to assist the Ameer against his enemies—"Why should our Government interfere in your international squabbles?" "Well, if you won't the Roos will!"

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

WEDNESDAY, December 27, 1865.

THE TREATY WITH BHOOTAN.

It would be difficult to deny that there is a great deal of foundation for the indignation among our countrymen in India at the Treaty with Bhootan. In the first place, the ultimatum of the Government, conveyed in Sir John Lawrence's last letter to the Deb Rajah, distinctly declared that no peace would be made until the Durbar could give a substantial guarantee that the conditions would be carried out by the Penlows and the people. Considering the haughty tone of this despatch, and the threats by which it was freely accompanied, the sudden abandonment of the position is certainly inconsistent, and has all the appearance of weakness. Hitherto our rulers in India—whether in the right or in the wrong—have at least been distinguished from Orientals in saying no more than they meant, and refraining from any approach to braggadocio. They have trusted to acts rather than words, and though the lion's skin may have fallen short at times, they have never condescended to eke it out with the fox's. A little attempt of the kind was made, to be sure, in the early days of the mutinies, in the way of conciliatory overtures; but the policy was a dead failure. It only encouraged the enemy, and the mistake had to be atoned by the employment of superior physical force, by which alone the final victory was secured. But in the case of Bhootan there is now a precedent for a distinct expression of intentions which it is decided not to carry out; and the next expression of defiance which our Government has occasion to make will assuredly be measured by that example. There would be some consolation, however, and some credit, also, if the terms of the treaty were satisfactory in themselves; but unfortunately they are not. We submit to the cession of the Dooars, already formally annexed to our territory, and we consent to pay for them—just as if our old relations with the country had never been disturbed, and we had acquired the Dooars by an amicable arrangement. And not only do we make this concession—which will be understood in India to mean paying tribute or black mail—but we make the return of the Armstrong guns part of the bargain, and lay ourselves open to the imputation of buying with money what we cannot obtain by arms. Nothing can be more unfounded than such accusations. We are strong enough to abolish Bhootan as an independent State during any given cold season. The recovery of the guns would be a mere matter of detail, supposing that we chose to fight. But this is the worst part of the affair. Our submission would be excusable if it were compulsory. But it is not to be justified when we have not only the resources for compulsion at our command, but have them all arrayed and equipped, at the cost of months of trouble, and something more than a million, it is said, of money. Moreover, if such a treaty was to be made, why not have made it earlier? It required no army to back it. The Deb Rajah always knew the nature of the terms that would be accepted, and was prepared to accede to them. The difficulty was as to the basis of negotiation—the concurrence of Tongso Penlow, which would include, of course, the return of the guns. If our Government were prepared to waive this vital condition, the thing might have been arranged at any time since the last campaign. The aggressive position has been so much waste of time and money.

It is true that the treaty made with Mr. Eden has been restored, and an apology extorted from the representatives of the Durbar. But the document, already repudiated, would not be a very valuable accession unless obtained from a Power with whom we might consider ourselves upon equal terms; and the apology is worth still less, since it does not come from the Tongso Penlow, who was the perpetrator of the insults. Nor are the minor conditions of much moment. Free-trade, for instance, is not a very useful privilege in connection with a country without commerce—as Bhootan may be almost literally considered, and which has at any rate so many opportunities for evasion. This, and the other subordinate provisions, indeed, could never be enforced unless we deputed a Resident at the Court—which would be rather a stretch of consideration, to say nothing of the trouble and outlay. That the Dooars will pay their expenses to the Government there is little reason to doubt; but even a commercial balance would be a very poor return for the loss of prestige by which the settlement has been accomplished. And not only loss of prestige but loss of an equally important kind—loss of heart by our own people, by the officers and men of the expeditionary force, and by the army generally. The latter is a very serious consideration, and one with which it is not safe to trifle.

We do not pretend to know whether the policy is that of the Home Government or of the Viceroy on the spot, acting upon his own opinions or those of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal. It has been said, on rather good authority, that Sir John Lawrence himself is the responsible person, and that he has been actuated by a strong dread of the trouble of the intended campaign, and a regard for his exchequer which induced him to prefer a certain substantial advantage to the romantic idea of vindicating the honour of the country. But the author of the policy, whoever he may be, will soon find out his mistake. The Tongso Penlow is less likely to yield now than before; for he has a couple of months given him to consider his position, and a very little delay after that will bring the cold season to a close, and he is not likely to dread a renewed threat of hostilities a year hence after his experience of the result of the late preparations. In every way the arrangement is an unfortunate one; and so it is evidently considered in this country, where the most that has been said in its favour is merely in the way of apology. India wants peace. Any policy that can preserve it is entitled to respect and support. But the action of the Government in this matter is not likely to attain that end. It is declared in India that the Deb Rajah and the Tongso Penlow have been in accord all along, that the Rajah represents the accommodating friend and the Penlow the unconscionable dog of Sheridan's comedy; and that their object has been to delude the British into a treaty for the sake of getting over the cold weather and postponing a settlement for another year. If such were their intention they have most certainly succeeded, and our own Government have at any rate tied their own hands and made it appear that they prefer any terms to the necessity of fighting—which is the last character we can afford to incur in India, and one that we can never hope to sustain with impunity.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE INDIAN ARMY.—No. 1.

THIRD SERIES.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—I commenced these letters with a view of showing that THE GREASED CARTRIDGES ALONE were the cause of the Sepoy revolt. Having brought the description of the termination of that war and the attendant rebellion to an end in the second series of these letters, it appears desirable to consider what were the true causes that affected not only the army, but the populations of the north-western provinces of Bengal and other parts of the Peninsular, not being military. The long and interesting letter of Shaik Hidayut Ali, published in your last two numbers (Nos. 697 and 698), afford, as I conceive, a faithful description (from a faithful native officer, whose ancestors, as well as himself, had served in the native army of Bengal from the days of Clive to its self-dissolution in 1857), of the impression made on himself of the causes of the military revolt, and he has also offered a suggestion for the future composition of a new army more likely to be faithful and willing to perform all the duties required of it, whether at home or abroad, by land or by sea.

The author of the document to which I have alluded ascribes the first disaffection of the Bengal army to the result of the Affghan Campaign, in 1838-41; to the exposure and hardships endured in a climate like that of Afghanistan, where it is pretended the Hindoos lost caste by purchasing their food solely from Mahomedans, and from being compelled, through the severity of the weather, to clothe themselves with skins which did not even preserve their limbs from being frostbitten, and the sickness and death brought on by its inclemency. We have already shown, in p. 63, second series, that, out of 17,000 soldiers and followers, only one individual escaped death or imprisonment; and as the Hindoo tradition forbade them from crossing the boundary of the Indus, emphatically called the Attock, or barrier, those who eventually returned from captivity gave frightful representations of the sufferings to which their officers had led and exposed them. Their attachment to some and confidence in all was shaken; and the prestige of the European race, who had succumbed before the native Affghans, was at once dispelled.

From the period of the return of the Bengal army from the Affghan war that army was gradually affected with discontent, insubordination, and insolence towards their officers, which the latter found it difficult to control, reduced as they had been by the system that took away the best from among them. But there is a martial spirit latent in the military classes of India that always sustains them when called on to fight. So that the same troops that were insubordinate in time of peace were always ready to shed their blood in time of war—a spirit which did not even desert them in the defence of Delhi, nor in the attacks on Cawnpore and Lucknow.

But other causes existed. While they objected to cross the Indus they objected more seriously to embark on shipboard; and although the order which required recruits in future to swear to serve wherever they might be required, the men already in the army, not enlisted on the same terms, assumed it to be a cause of disaffection to them. It was in this state of the army that a new rifle musket was introduced in the place of a similar weapon which required the ball to be greased, the grease of which, applied by themselves, was made up of wax and oil. They pretended to believe the assertion of one of the men employed in the arsenal near Calcutta to make up the new rifle cartridges that the latter were greased with beef suet and hogs lard, both of which were equally an abomination in the eyes alike of Hindoos and Mahomedans. But in reality, as Hidayut Ali truly asserts, and has been sufficiently shown by

Kaye in his first volume of "The Sepoy War," no such greased cartridges were ever made. "H. D. A." also states with equal truth that the system of promotion among the Sepoys produced indifference and want of zeal in the men, who could only be advanced according to their standing in their company and the regiment without reference to their deserts—that ere a private reached the grade of a Native officer he was too old and inert to do his duty. He states also that, for a reason he assigns, there was less acquaintance and confidence between the men and the European officers than formerly existed, and he arrives at the conclusion that the predominant race composing the Bengal army of 1857 were wholly unfit for any army in which subordination was essential. Finally, he suggests as far better material, men of the same race as the Sonthals, one of those aboriginal tribes which are the faithful guardians of the palaces and the travelling escorts of the princesses of Central India, which formed the bodyguard of Hyder Ali, the foundation of the Madras army of Clive, of Lawrence, and Coote, and of the invincible sappers and miners who bear on their colours "Ubique," and who have accompanied the Indian army in all its battles and sieges for more than a hundred years, whether on the banks of the Yellow River of China, or the Red Sea, washing the shores of Africa and Arabia, or serving alike with the Bombay troops in Sind or the Bengal forces in Afghanistan and the Punjab. The same race too, which forms a valuable part of the army of Bombay, but whose very shadow the insolent Brahmin in the Bengal army pretended would pollute the food of his little circle within which he sat to prepare and eat his solitary meal. Is it to be believed that in the country in which these purists reside, especially under a Mahomedan rule like that of Oude, such practices would for a moment be tolerated by the population, especially since they are not suffered to operate in the armies of Bombay and Madras among the very same race, which are recruited from the same localities as the great bulk of the army of Bengal? The indulgences granted by Europeans on the banks of the Ganges are not suffered to exist in other parts of India—such as the refusal of a servant to touch the basin which his master has used to wash his mouth, but requiring a scavenger to be employed to throw away its contents. It has been this foolish cession to certain prejudices that eventually prepared the Bengal army to become the ready instrument of an attempt to subvert our Government in India, which for the period of twelve or fourteen years has been breaking through the legitimate rights of the people, great and small, and which rendered the Sepoy war a great political and religious revolt.

Of this Hidayut Ali affords abundant proof, in speaking of the disposal of the King of Oude, and the annexation of his country without any intelligible cause but that of might and the avidity of territorial dominion, with all its concomitant advantages to the white race, and the increase of revenue to the State. Hidayut Ali observes that but one common feeling exists throughout the army and the country both in respect to the annexation of Oude and the refusal to recognise the usual right belonging to adoption in the case of Nana Govind Row. The whole country in the North-West Provinces was loud in its discontent, and but one sentiment prevailed, that, when the British Government had so changed its policy towards native princes, to effect their destruction and to deprive them of their legal rights, what security was there for the future? During the year 1856, on the introduction of the British rule into Oude, a course of inquiry was instituted to ascertain by what right the several chiefs, whose number, we have seen, amounted to 1,584, held their estates, some of them of longer standing than our own rule; and endeavours were made to introduce a system such as had been carried out in the neighbouring province of the Doab (the portion of Oude transferred to the British Government in 1803), to create an independent peasant population holding direct from the State, to the ruin of the Oude chiefs. This measure, connected with the fact of 40,000 of the Bengal army being raised in those provinces, carried the great body of their population with it, either to incite the Bengal army to revolt, or to sympathise with and encourage them to do so. A civilian servant of high standing, and of extensive experience in the adjustment of landed rights in the Punjab, wrote from Allahabad to the Times in London, in Sept., 1857, that, "had we treated the landholders in the Punjab as they have been treated here, the Sikhs would have risen to a man, Delhi could not have been besieged, and Havelock would probably at this moment, instead of defending Lucknow, be defending Calcutta." As it was, the revolt enabled those whose lands had been mortgaged by their tenants, and had been awarded to the mortgagees by the Civil Courts, to avail themselves of the moment to recover them, and to hold them till the end of the war, when they were compelled to abandon them. This sore still rankles in the breasts of that class of the landed interests in the North-West Provinces; nor are the peasantry similarly situated in the Bengal settled provinces better satisfied with their condition under the decision of Sir Barnes Peacock.

The judgment of Sir James Outram at the concluding part of the Oude war, and the wisdom of Lord Canning in adopting his advice by ensuring to the Oude talookdars their existent estates in the time of the late Government, brought about that submission to our arms without which the war would have been protracted, and more blood and more money expended, to no purpose.

FRENCH INFLUENCE IN INDIA.—It is stated by the French papers that General d'Orgoni has left by will 100,000fr., the yearly interest of which is to be given to extend French influence in India. The interest would be £200. Two hundred pounds a-year to extend French influence in the mighty British Empire in India! The so-called "general," an adventurer of a gasconading character, lately died in Burmah, where he had induced the King to give him one of the many trade monopolies.

BENGAL.

BISHOP BUGNION ON RUSSIA.

According to the Neilgherry Excelsior a certain Bishop Bugnion, when at Ootacamund, sought an interview with the Governor, in order to give him some information as to the designs of Russia. He firmly believes that the Russians will be in this country before long; he has seen an imperial missive to a Russian general authorising him to organize a force of 300,000 men, at the time when it was officially announced that the military strength of the empire would be reduced by the disbanding of two or three regiments. All this is rather shadowy. Who is "Bishop Bugnion," and where did he see the missive?

The Madras Times enables us to tell who he is. He is a Swedenborgian—a Swiss by birth and a naturalised Russian, whose doctrines were not so palatable to the Russian authorities that they would allow him to live at peace. He has established himself at Yercaud, in the Shevaroy hills in Salem district, where he hopes to establish the New Jerusalem, and whence he has issued a pastoral, which seems to be of an innocently silly and blasphemous character. He hopes to attract the Hindoos by such a miserable degradation of Christian truth as this:—

"If your legend gives Bhowam or Paravata for wife to Siva, it is because Woman in general represents the affections, and notably when it acts on the affections of the spirit, the good affections which destroy and exterminate the evil. It is thus that, when confining ourselves to the primitive revelation, having on one side allegorical superfetation which the ages have successively added, according to the tendency of human nature to seek after the marvellous which strikes the imagination, one easily sees that the difference between the Bible and your ancient scriptures is the difference that exists between Truth absolute and Truth relative, between divine dogmas disengaged from human traditions, and the same dogmas changed and amplified by these traditions."

Applying that pernicious symbolism which so deluded the undeniably great Emmanuel Swedenborg, and may prove anything, he says:—

"The first chapters of Genesis are purely symbolical, giving, under the emblem of the creation in six days, the history of regeneration; that is to say, the different states to which the new man is subject when created in us until all is peace and repose in him, a state which is called the seventh day, and of which the repose of the Sabbath was an emblem. This is not until the last incarnation of Vishnu, which your priests announced for 1866 or 1867, and does not coincide with the second advent of Christ; and as the second advent is accompanied by the revelation and understanding of the internal sense of the word, and as the Horse is the emblem of understanding, it was given to represent the horse Kalki as the last incarnation of Vishnu, as well as the internal sense is represented in the 19th chap. of Rev. under the figure of the Lord or the Word of God mounted upon a white Horse. In studying the Bible with its true key, the language of Symbols, you would be astonished at the profundity, at the depths, and at the harmony of the Holy Books, and struck by the infinity of the love of Para Brahma or Bhagavat, who speaks to us. You would exclaim, There is Truth—Yes, the 5,000 years are accomplished; Behold the Madeira who, at the end of this time, was to bring you a new law!"

Bishop Bugnion has made a mistake if he thinks that his new symbolical gospel of a Vishnu-Christ will attract Hindoos, Buddhists, or Mahomedans, and that the New Jerusalem will be founded by him in the Shevaroy hills. The Jesuits tried the same principle of compromise and failed. Even the worthy "Friends" who visited Calcutta were for a time deluded in the same way. Perhaps the name Salem has struck the Bishop's fancy, for he announces that he is to be followed by a large colony from Europe. After this we do not despair of seeing a Mormon settlement round the Nynce Tal Lake, and Jumpers on the Neilgherries, to the great scandal of true Christianity and bewilderment of the natives.—Friend of India.

OFFICIAL FESTIVITIES.—On Friday last the Lieutenant-Governor invited the elite of Calcutta to a ball at the Belvedere House, which was beautifully lit up and decorated on the occasion, and invited native gentlemen to it. The party went off with great eclat, and the guests, both European and native, came away well pleased with the reception. His Excellency the Viceroy honoured the occasion with his presence. The Viceroy's Levee and Drawing Room will be held on the 1st proximo, and it is worthy of remark that "Native chiefs and gentlemen" have been especially "invited to attend." There will, it is clear, be no invidious distinction made between native and European gentlemen in the Drawing Room. We are glad that his Excellency has graciously acknowledged native public opinion in the matter of court etiquette. We need hardly observe that our rulers lose nothing, but gain much, by a little conciliation and attention, which a people subjected to foreign domination know how to appreciate.—Hindoo Patriot, Nov. 13.

THE FIRST NATIVE BARRISTER.—The Bengalee says:—By the last steamer another member of the Tagore family of Calcutta has returned from England in a position hitherto beyond the reach of native gentlemen. Baboo Ganendro Mohun Tagore, the son of Baboo Prosunno Coomar Tagore, takes his place at once as a Barrister of the High Court. It is remarkable that the first native civilian should be a Tagore, as well as the first native Counsellor. They are nearly related, though one is a Brahmo and the other a Christian. Both are sincere, pious men, and ornaments to the nation. The career of Baboo Satendro Nath Tagore is, however, but just begun. Baboo Ganendro Mohun has already attained Indian and English celebrity. He left his home a grown-up man, with a thorough education, one of the first men amongst Bengalees. He returns to it still in the prime of life, having filled the honourable office of professor of Hindoo Law in the London University, and practised successfully as a Privy Council Advocate, occupying the ear of the Lords in a remarkable degree. It is undoubtedly a matter for congratulation that the highest positions in the country are no longer the exclusive rights of the dominant race. A native colleague of the Chief Justice, a native "learned friend" of the Advocate-General, a native covenanted magistrate—these are conditions and destinies overleaping the wildest dreams of the Bengalee of the days even of the liberal and the high-minded Bentinck. It behoves the native community to give a splendid reception to Baboo Ganendro Mohun. The virulence of caste and prejudice no longer prohibit rational and even social intercourse with a countryman, though he has defied orthodoxy, yea, embraced Christianity. We have fortunately dug the grave of all superstition which interferes with the worship of worth and intellect. It will redound to the honour of all concerned if an ovation were provided for the new barrister worthy of him and the occasion, which introduces the man of action to the men of thought, eager for future action.

FALL OF AN AEROLITE IN SHERGOTTY.—Towards the end of August the inhabitants of Umjhiawar, near Shergotty, were startled by the fall of an aerolite in one of the uplands of the village. As usual in cases of this kind, the "stranger" was at once handed over to the authorities, and by them to the Commissioner of Patna. From the Commissioner it passed on to the Bengal Government, which, in the cause of science, has handed it over to the Asiatic Society, with a request that as soon as full particulars have been received respecting its fall they should be communicated to the authorities of the British Museum by the Society.—Bengal Hurkaru.

JUNIOR CIVIL SERVANTS.—It appears that since the introduction of the competition system of examination of the civil servants, the salaries of the junior members of that service have been restricted to £500 per annum while holding the office of assistants to the magistrates or other officers of a higher grade, but after they have passed the prescribed examination in India they are promoted to higher offices and emoluments. A reference has lately been made to the Secretary of State by the Government of India, as to whether a junior civil servant holding the appointment of an assistant to a judicial commissioner in a non-regulation province is entitled to receive a higher pay than £500 a year. The circumstance which gave rise to this question appears to be, that the assistant to the judicial commissioner of the Punjab, drawing a salary of Rs. 750, besides a personal allowance of Rs. 100 per mensem, had presented his pay bill for audit, which was retrenched by the auditor of the province, on the ground that a junior civil servant is not entitled to a salary above £500 a year. The above-mentioned officer, however, has just made a representation to the Government of India to the effect that it would really be painful if the same indulgences were not extended to the junior members of the service, who have entered it by a competition examination, which were all along enjoyed by the ex-students of the Haileybury College, though the duties of both are equally responsible. Several Parliamentary Acts bearing on this important question were cited in support of the aforesaid representation. The Governor-general in Council, however, has referred the case to the Secretary of State, and has recommended it for his favourable consideration.—Englishman.

THE SURVEY DEPARTMENT.—To meet the requirements of the Survey Department in this country, the Government of India, at the instance of the Surveyor-General, has submitted a proposition to the Secretary of State to train up eight European gentlemen in England in the arts of photography, photo-lithography, electrotyping, &c., for service in India. On their arrival in this country those gentlemen will have to remain on probation in the Surveyor-General's office at Calcutta for a period not exceeding eight months, during which time a subsistence allowance of 200 rupees a month will be allowed to them. After the expiration of the period of probation they are to be posted to different places in India on a salary of 800 rupees each per mensem.

OPIMUM AND THE DROUGHT.—There is, we understand, every probability of the prolonged drought seriously affecting the area of opium cultivation; and the part of the country where the want of moisture is being most felt is also that which produces the most and the best opium. This will have a beneficial effect on the revenue of the present year by its tendency to sustain, if not to raise, prices. The opium-growing ryots, however, will feel it as a severe addition to the failure of their other crops, as the advances, which must now be curtailed, would have helped many to stave over the effects of a bad season.

LEGAL CHANGES.—It is not unlikely that some changes may take place on the bench of the Small Cause Court, but it would be premature to mention the rumours that have reached us on the subject. Should a High Court be inaugurated in the North-West in January next, as is now generally believed, there will probably be some transits both from and to the bench of the Calcutta High Court. The report seems to be gaining general credence, that Mr. Peterson is the Chief Justice elect of the High Court to be formed at Agra or Allahabad.—Englishman.

WRECKS.—CALCUTTA, Dec. 16.—The Isabella Hercules Brenner, from Liverpool to Madras, put into Beypoor on the 14th inst. disabled. The Castor W. has been abandoned off Arencompane; crew saved.

MURDER IN CALCUTTA.—A horrible murder has been committed in Calcutta by a native servant. Mrs. Rozario, wife of the crier of Messrs. Cook and Co., reproved a servant for insolence in her husband's absence, slapped him on the face, and ordered him down stairs. On her going to the kitchen to prepare her child's food, the man went to the bedroom and cut its throat with a knife. The grandmother and then the mother ran up, when he severely wounded both, jumped over the window and escaped. Mrs. Rozario is in a dangerous state. The police are on the murderer's track.

SILKWORKS FROM JAPAN.—We understand that the steamer Emeu has on board for Marseilles from Japan about 2,000 boxes of silk-worms' eggs, each box measuring about 3 feet by 1 foot 3 inches. They are lined with tin and perforated. All the boxes are placed on the main deck. Eight French gentlemen are in charge of the above, who are also taking with them two cases of mulberry trees. In order to make room for these on board the Emeu, half of the cargo of the P. and O. steamer Aden, from Shanghai, was obliged to be landed at Hong Kong.—Straits Times.

A MELANCHOLY AND FATAL ACCIDENT recently occurred at Mirzapore. Mr. Aubert, connected with a large indigo firm, was driving a four-in-hand, when, owing to carelessness on the part of the groom, the reins became entangled, and the horses, taking fright, broke away from all control. Mr. Aubert, a great favourite, was picked up in a state of insensibility, and died in the course of the day. But a few days before, at the neighbouring station of Chunar, Major Edward Osborn was thrown from his horse, and broke his leg.

BULLION ARRANGEMENTS.—The Government of India has sanctioned the adoption of the tola and its decimal divisions in all calculations concerning the receipt and conversion of bullion, in supersession of the system of carats and carat grains for gold and pennyweights and halfpennyweights for silver at present in use. The decimal form is universally employed by modern assayers, and as nearly all our imported silver is purchased in Europe, it is important to have a corresponding system here.

THE BISHOP OF CALCUTTA'S TOUR.—The Bishop of Calcutta has commenced his return tour from Murree, and is expected in Calcutta on 5th February next. He will visit, on his way, Peshawur and the frontier stations, Mooltan and Lahore, which he hopes to reach on 17th December. Passing down by Looliana, Sirsa, Hissar, and Rohtuck, he will be at Delhi on 7th January, at Agra a week after, and at Allahabad on 28th January.

THE QUEEN'S EVIDENCE IN THE WAHABEE CASE.—We are glad to see that Elahi Buksh, whose confession alone led to the conviction of the Patna Wahabee, Ahmedoolah, is to be conditionally pardoned. He will be released from prison, but will be under the surveillance of the police, and strictly confined within certain limits fixed by himself. He will be put in possession of his house at Patna and receive a donation of Rs. 500 out of the proceeds of his other property.

FAIR AT DARJEELING.—We observe that an annual fair is to be held at Darjeeling, and that the local exhibition, if attempted, will be made subordinate to the general objects of the fair. At least a year's notice is to be given, the time being fixed according to the present practice of the Tibetan and Nepalese traders in coming to Darjeeling. The site has been selected on the Lebong Spur, on which accommodation for traders has already been provided by the Darjeeling Municipality.

THE RAILWAY.—The Viceroy has nominated Mr. G. W. Kellner, Assistant Accountant General in the P. W. D., to proceed to Bombay and Madras, for the purpose of introducing the new system of railway appropriation into those presidencies.

MURDER AT CANNANORE.—A triple murder was committed on the 14th of November in the town. A native murdered three females by cutting their throats. One of the victims was a young girl married about a month ago. The murderer was seized sword in hand. The females are relatives of the beef and bread contractors of the 102nd Regiment. He went to Tellicherry, and only returned home late last night. He had just gone upstairs, when the women were below taking their supper. Suddenly the man rushed in and murdered the unhappy creatures, and was rushing upstairs again, when the men in the house, hearing the noise, came down. The murderer attacked the first man he met, who turned out to be the contractor himself. He inflicted several wounds upon the poor man, when he was seized and secured. The murderer proves to be the son-in-law of the Rajah's sister. The contractor is a very wealthy man, and has, I believe, built a large three storied house, which is an eyesore to many who know him. The weapon the murder was committed with is a Moplah knife, very unwieldy, and something like a cleaver. After murdering the three women, he went upstairs, where he was met by the contractor and his son-in-law, when a terrible struggle ensued. It lasted for about fifteen minutes, during the whole of which time the house was in a dreadful state of uproar and confusion. The bodies of the women lay on the ground weltering in blood, and the house in many parts was blood-besmeared. No assistance was rendered by the natives, but afterwards a policeman came in, and secured the man. The three women have since died, but the contractor is doing well in hospital. It has since transpired that the Arrakal Rajah of Cannanore has been arrested, and placed in close confinement within the walls of the fort at Cannanore, in reference to the recent murder of the three females at the palace, and that two members of the Madras bar have been engaged to proceed and defend the rajah's case. Fourteen thousand rupees is, we learn, the fee proffered. Mr. Ballard, the magistrate of Malabar, is engaged in the investigation of the case. Great excitement prevails at Cannanore.—Athenæum.

STEAM PLOUGHING IN MADRAS.—Last evening a large number of people had collected to witness the experiments in ploughing by steam. The steam-engine, "Lady Dennison," was posted on the Esplanade, opposite to Patcheapah's Hall, near the railing, and at three o'clock precisely commenced the process of getting up steam. The crowd gradually thickened from the north-west angle to the south-east angle of the Esplanade till the whole railing from one angle to the other presented a mass of heads that could not be numbered. With very few exceptions the spectators were natives; and after a good deal of puffing and spurring from the engine, the crowd were on the qui vive of expectation to see the steam-engine move off with wonderful speed across the Esplanade. But after waiting for more than half an hour, during the whole of which time the wonderful "fire-plough" and its grand achievements were the subject of talk, the plough was seen to move lazily along, kicking up the dust as it went. It continued to do so till it had reached the north-eastern angle of the Esplanade and came half back, when all of a sudden something seemed to get out of order, and the plough failed to work any more up to a quarter-past five. Nobody knew what was the cause of the disorder, till it was found on inquiry that the "anchor" had got fast in the soil, and much faster than had been anticipated. Then came the most amusing part of the business; manual labour was called in to aid mechanical force, and about a dozen coolies set to work to liberate the fast stuck anchor from the soil that surrounded it. Up to the time we withdrew from the scene, which was at a quarter-past five, their efforts were simply fruitless, and on surveying the work the steam plough had accomplished in an hour and three quarters, we found it to be about as much as two old women may have been expected to do with a pair of forks. Madras Athenæum, Nov. 14.

OFFICIAL PROMISES.—In the Commander-in-Chief's order which gave the death blow to the old Madras army, his Excellency in paragraph two observes as follows:—"In carrying into effect so comprehensive a measure as the new organisation of the army, probably, in the distribution of officers, notwithstanding the greatest care, some errors may have crept in; the Commander-in-Chief, therefore, directs that any officer who may conceive that his individual interests have been overlooked or compromised, will at once, in the usual way, refer his case (through the military secretary) for his Excellency's consideration, stating explicitly the specific appointment he anticipated to fill, or may have considered he was entitled to succeed to, with a view to affording, where necessary, the requisite redress." Nothing could be more liberal than the above, and of course we are bound to believe that it was written in all sincerity; at all events, depending upon the promise, so magnanimously held out, we are aware that several officers, who have felt themselves aggrieved by the new appointments, have, in accordance with the chief's invitation, submitted their case for his consideration; but will it be believed that the stereotyped answer to all has been, "sorry to say nothing can now be done?" This, we fear, is but a sample of what is yet in store for the Madras army.—Athenæum.

THE PROPOSED NEW CENTRAL RAILWAY STATION.—A mixed committee of engineers, railway managers, and merchants, having been appointed by order of the Home Government to examine into the question of providing a more eligible terminus for the railway at Madras, perhaps a few remarks from an outsider may not be considered impertinent to the question. There can be no doubt that the stations of Royapooram and Perambore afford the minimum of facilities to the Madras public. Further extensive station accommodation being absolutely necessary, the Secretary of State has concurred with all whom it concerns, that "it would be a folly to perpetuate a blunder," and though some lacs of rupees must have been spent upon the line to Royapooram, including the extensive station buildings there, it has, nevertheless, been considered advisable to do away with the Royapooram station altogether, and to select some more eligible site. Without then disputing the fact of the unsuitableness of Royapooram for the grand railway terminus at Madras, it may nevertheless be fairly a question whether it would be so wise a plan to take up the rails and altogether to abandon Royapooram as a station, there being already extensive godowns and store sheds close to the sea beach, with a landing place, all suitable for landing and storing coals, rails, chairs, &c., and within a few hundred yards of the station, three of the largest cotton presses in Madras; besides the advantage of being within a short distance of the custom house, the government godowns, the new pier, and the timber beach at Casemode, and, in fact, not far from the centre of the greater part of the present trade of Madras. The question now put is, whether it would not be better to retain part of the present terminus at Royapooram as a beach terminus, just as Nine Elms and Blackwall are river termini to extensive lines of railway. It can be no disadvantage to a gigantic railway system like that of Madras to have as many inlets and outlets as practicable; independent of the value of such a terminus for its own accommodation only, it might be made valuable for the convenience of others without much trouble.—Athenæum and Daily News.

THE MONSOON.—Our monsoon set in with good will last week, and toward the close of it the rains were very heavy. Judging from appearances, we should say that they have likewise extended widely over the country, for the rivers in these parts have been in flood since Friday night. A great volume of water has come down the Cortelyaur, and raised the Ennore lake and Northern canal higher than for several seasons past. The Cooum also is full, and the bar by the Marine Villa was out yesterday, Madras being deluged as to its lower parts. We have been visited too with very boisterous winds, amounting, in fact, to a smart gale since Saturday morning, and the ships in the roads were warned off during the day. There must evidently have been very bad weather out in the bay. We have not seen so rough a sea for many years back. The wind lulled a good deal toward Saturday evening, but grew again more violent in the night, and continued exceedingly strong all Sunday, with occasional heavy squalls and great bursts of rain; and as the day wore on a severe gale set in from the north-east, which lasted without intermission until Monday morning. The night of Sunday was most tempestuous, and we fully expect to hear of much damage among the buildings and trees in town, as abundance of rain accompanied the wind storm nearly the whole time of its continuance. It seems probable that we shall have further experience of the same kind of weather before a change takes place, which is a source of great rejoicing, for the failure of the monsoon hitherto had awakened the gravest anxiety regarding the prospects of the ensuing season. Our total rainfall from the 1st of January until last week was only 21.54 inches, being no less than 17.38 below the average of the previous twenty years. Upwards of nine inches fell on Saturday and Sunday. The prices of all the necessities of life had likewise run up to a great height, and much distress existed among the poorer classes, more especially those dependent on small fixed salaries drawn from Government or private employ. If, however, the rainfall has been as general as we are led to hope, and lasts a short time longer, it may be expected that the dealers will somewhat reduce their exorbitant rates, though they are sure to keep them as high as possible, for prices once raised to the famine mark never fall again to the previous level of abundant seasons. We are very glad to say that, notwithstanding the violence of the wind and sea for some days past, only a few boat accidents are recorded as having taken place, but, unhappily, two of them were attended with loss of life.—Athenæum and Daily News, Nov. 27.

WASTE PAPER IN MADRAS.—To such an extent is government in detail carried in Madras, that the Official Gazette notifies quarter by quarter the amount of waste paper saved in the public offices. For instance, the superintendent of stationery states that, last quarter, he had received 213 bags, 16 baskets, and 10,000 lbs. weight of waste paper, besides 425 unserviceable books from the General Hospital. This is a parallel in economies to the mistake which applied the order allowing only three pence a month to each Omlah to the judges and high officials, who were subsequently allowed fifty each after grave debate in council.

THE GUN CARRIAGE MANUFACTORY.—Lieutenant-colonel T. H. Campbell being about to proceed to Europe on sick certificate, we hear that Lieutenant-colonel A. M. Scott will be appointed to act in his stead, as Superintendent of the Gun Carriage Manufactory.

SCARCITY IN GANJAM.—In compliance with the requisition of the Collector of Ganjam, the local government has purchased 2,000 bags of rice, which will be forwarded to Cuttack by the first available opportunity.

BOMBAY.

THE BENCH AND THE BAR.

Mr Justice Anstey was engaged during the whole of Friday, the 17th November, in the hearing of a suit brought by one Marianbaee against Raju Fukeera and others, in respect of certain landed property. Mr. Mayhew and Mr. Green appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Hayllar for the defendants. A certain passage in a will was one of the principal disputed points in the case; and Mr. Mayhew, in concluding his speech in reply, stated to the Court what he thought was the proper construction to be put upon the passage, viz., that the bequest was intended for the children and grandchildren of the testator; but remarked that he would leave it to his Lordship to put on the passage any construction he thought proper.

Mr. Justice Anstey observed that if Mr. Mayhew had made the remark in an ironical sense, it was a contempt of court; but if not so, then it was uncalled for. His Lordship said that the manner in which Mr. Mayhew addressed the court showed that he had not been in any of the courts of England.

Mr. Green, Mr. Mayhew's junior in the case, came into Court at this stage, when—

Mr. Justice Anstey: Mr. Green, your leader has not adduced any authorities to meet the arguments of Mr. Hayllar on the other side. Have you any authorities to cite?

Mr. Green was about to speak, when—

Mr. Mayhew (interrupting him): My Lord, I, as the leader, am in possession of the Court, and Mr. Green has no right to address the Court while I am speaking.

Mr. Justice Anstey: I have called upon Mr. Green to speak.

Mr. Mayhew remained standing, upon which—

Mr. Justice Anstey: Sit down, Sir!

Mr. Mayhew: May it please your Lordship! The counsel sat down, and the discussion dropped here.

MISCELLANEOUS.

STAFF CHANGES.—We regret very much indeed to learn that the son of one of the best friends India ever had (we allude to Colonel Sykes) is likely to have to resign his appointment on the Divisional Staff, and proceed to Europe on sick leave. All who know Captain Sykes will be as sorry as surprised to learn that he is so soon to leave us. We can, however, only hope that a change of air and the influence of a colder climate will soon restore him to health. We are really getting quite wearied with changes. One by one our best men drop off, or are transferred. Colonel Sandwith only returned to be taken from us, and sent over the hills and far away! General Smith, one of the finest officers we ever had, is to be sent to look after the "Ravls" of Rajpootana. In fact, in a few weeks we shall recognise no old familiar faces. Our best wishes will accompany all, and if we are fortunate enough to welcome another year, we shall not forget to remember in its celebration "old friends, tho' far awa'."—Deccan Herald.

AFGHANISTAN.—The Delhi Gazette's Cabul news comes up to the 17th Oct. Sirdar Mahomed Wully Khan, Governor of Cabul, had written a letter to Abdulrahman Khan, advising him to march against Cabul at once. This was intercepted and brought to the Ameer, whose sepoys were deserting in bodies. The officers and chiefs of the Cabul troops now in Turkistan advised Abdulrahman Khan to march against Cabul at once, as the troops there were dissatisfied with the Ameer, and would join him the moment the troops reached Cabul. The Sirdar said he would do so as soon as his uncle, Azim Mahomed Khan, had joined him to relieve him of the government of Turkistan. Two Cabul Battalions stationed in Herat had mutinied, and "about 400" mutineers were killed by the Governor. All the Moolas of Candahar, on learning that the Ameer was in the habit of keeping the likenesses of his son and brother, the late Mahomed Alle Khan and Mahomed Ameen Khan, before him, after a great religious altercation declared that Ameer Shere Allee Khan had become idolatrous, and that a Jehad against him was lawful. The Ameer, hearing this, ordered the ringleaders to be imprisoned. Fifteen Moolas were taken; the others fled. The battalions of Mahomed Shereeff Khan have deserted and marched with their arms and magazine for Turkistan. Abdulrahman wrote to his mother instructing her to bribe the Cabul troops, especially the Kohistanes, as much as possible, and she was carrying out his injunctions. Now that the Moolas have seen it to be for their interest to declare against the Ameer, and the Khan of Bokara supplies his enemies so liberally, his cause is almost hopeless.

ALLEGED DEATH FROM A MAHARAJ'S BRUTALITY.—It was stated by the Satya Dipaka, and other vernacular journals, some days ago, that a Hindoo girl, of the age of twelve years, had died from the brutality of a Maharaj. A rumour has been circulated within the last few days that the above information was a canard. We learn from a reliable source that the girl is still alive, and that a false report of her death was intentionally propagated by the girl's relations, with the view that, should it be once published in the papers, and afterwards contradicted by them, they (the relations) would be in a position to throw discredit upon the original report that she had been made the victim of the Maharaj's lust. We have positive information that the latter statement is a fact, but that she still survives the effects of the brutality of the Maharaj. We are bound to inquire whether the police have made any investigation into a serious matter like this. The Satya Dipaka, which published the report of the girl's death in the first instance, ought to inquire more closely into the facts of the case.—Rast Gofar. The Satya Dipaka, in replying to the above, says:—"We extract this information on the responsibility of the Rast Gofar. We are unable to give any further particulars regarding this unfortunate occurrence, simply because the caste people, who lie prostrate at the feet of the Maharajs, instead of giving assistance in any object intended to benefit the public, resist the establishment of truth, and seek to protect crime (of the Maharajs) by every means in their power. What can persons of another caste or race do for the good of people like these? We would advise the Rast Gofar not to believe readily any of the rumours circulated by these people.

CHANGES IN THE P. AND O.—We hear that Captain Black, formerly Superintendent of the P. and O. Company in Bombay, and now one of the directors of the home board, comes out by the next mail. His visit to Bombay is for the purpose of entirely reorganising the running of the company's steamers. The China boats are intended to run direct between Hong Kong and Suez, and vice versa in future. By this means the troublesome task of transshipping silk and specie at Galle will be avoided. The steamers which now run from Bombay to China will go no further than Galle in that direction, and from thence proceed to Calcutta with the passengers and cargo brought from Suez. The Carnatic, Rangoon, Mooltan and Golconda are to be sent to England at an early date, and will be replaced by vessels of a very superior kind.

THE SALE OF THE EUROPEAN GIRL.—There can, unfortunately, be no doubt of the truth of the story which has been going the round of the up-country papers as to the "sale" of Anne Maria Croucher, a European girl, by her father, since dead, to Kumalooddeen Khan Babee, of Kattywar. Our political officers could only insist on something equivalent to marriage, so the poor Christian girl has been guaranteed an annuity of Rs. 300 a month should she wish to leave the Mussulman's harem. This is not a solitary instance. Indeed, the increase of Christian concubinage and prostitution since the mutiny in India is scandalous. There is a regular trade in women between the Levant, Egypt, and Bombay. Levantine, as well as French and Italian girls, are brought by the Austrian, Italian, French, and English steamers to Alexandria, nominally for Cafes Chantants. They are contracted to regular procurers, and after passing through the pollution of Alexandria, Cairo, and Suez, the few who survive come on in the steamers to Bombay. We write from personal inquiry.—Friend of India.

NO MORE GRAIN FOR ADEN.—We understand that orders have been issued by the Supreme Government to the effect that no more grain is to be sent to Aden; and the Viceroy observed that the cause of the distress at Aden was of an exceptional nature, and special arrangements were necessary to meet it. In an isolated position like that of Aden, many people might die of starvation before supplies, furnished on free-trade principles, could reach the spot.—Englishman.

CHINA & JAPAN.

We take the following summary of news from the China Mail of Nov. 15:—

"The Salsette, with the mails from Europe to the 26th September, has not yet arrived, although the steamer Asia, which left Singapore on the 2nd inst., arriving here on the 10th inst., reported the advent of the Salsette at that port on the 2nd inst., and her intended departure for Hong Kong on the following day.

"From the north of China we have nothing to report of the slightest importance. From Peking there is absolutely no news. Sir Rutherford Alcock is on his way to Taku in her Majesty's ship Barrosa, and will, we doubt not, push on at once for the capital, we hope unopposed. No signs of any intention on the part of the Chinese Government to keep him at a distance from the seat of Government have as yet been manifested. On his way through Hong Kong and Shanghai his Excellency's attention was called to some very important questions, which will, no doubt, afford him an opportunity immediately on his arrival of trying the temper of the Imperial cabinet. During the two days of his sojourn in this city a deputation from the local committee of the China Railways Company waited on him, to lay before his Excellency a statement of what they had already done towards the attainment of the immediate object in view —the obtaining of the sanction of the Chinese authorities for the construction of a line of railway from Canton to Fatslan, and of the necessary powers as to purchase of land, &c. Repulsed in these attempts to influence the Viceroy of the Kwang Tung and Kwangsi provinces in their favour, and instructed by Mr. Robertson that nothing could be done without the immediate authority of the Emperor, they placed themselves in his Excellency's hands, and besought him in the interest of commerce and of civilisation to lend them the aid of his undoubted influence, personal and official, with the Cabinet of Peking. Sir Rutherford promised, but held out very slender hopes of any early success. He deprecated the selection that had been made of an experimental line, and suggested one somewhat nearer to the capital. At Shanghai his Excellency was met by the municipality of that settlement, who invoked his aid in the contemplated enlargement and reconstruction of the framework of the local government.

"We have to note a very successful raid by her Majesty's gun-boats, one of which came into harbour on Sunday last with a lorch in tow, supposed to be the one engaged in the attack on the Henry Darling. Such excursions and successes have a very decided effect in checking the growth of the piratical fleets, and of keeping their ravages within bounds, but nothing effectual can possibly be done until the Chinese authorities are compelled to take an active part in the labour of suppression; and there is only one way in which they can be spurred into activity. They must be made to pay for every vessel destroyed or plundered by the pirates the full value of the property lost or destroyed.

"From Swatow our advices inform us of a visit by the British consul at that port to the prefectural city of Chaochow, a few miles further up the river, and of which Swatow is the port. Of the object of this visit we know nothing as yet. We presume it was undertaken with a view to press for the opening of that city to Europeans in accordance with the provisions of the treaty of Tientsin.

"With the exception of a destructive fire, attended with loss of life, we have nothing to report from Canton. Everything is quiet there, and nothing has been heard of the rebels. From Pok-lo, and the Christian villages thereabout, we have nothing further to communicate.

"At Macao the coolie trade is still rampant, with all its abominations. The inquiries instituted, or said to have been instituted, by Governor Amaral, have ended in smoke. Day after day some additional iniquity comes to light in connection with this horrible traffic. Coolies kidnapped, imprisoned in barracoons, flogged to make them consent to sign the iniquitous contract that binds them to a life of slavery, marched with a strong guard to testify at the Government offices to their signature as given voluntarily and freely, half-starved, exposed to blindness and disease on board ship in transit to the place of their exile, tossed overboard or left on some barren isle to die, if loss of sight or sickness renders them useless to their masters. Such are the grand features of the Macao coolie trade, supported by the Governor in his official acts and in the semi-official paper he edits. Such are the horrors of a slave trade, worse than that of the poor African negro, which all nations ought to unite to put an end to."

The news from Japan is summarised in the paragraph given below from the North China Herald and Market Report:—

"YOKOHAMA.—Private advices inform us that on the 1st instant the following vessels started for the Inland Sea, for the purpose, it is said, of opening Hioga and Osaka to foreign trade:—Her Britannic Majesty's screw steamers Princess Royal, Pelorus, and Leopard; his Imperial Majesty's screw steamers Guerriere and Dupleix, and the Kienchang, gun boat; his Netherlands Majesty's ship Zoutman. The British, French, and Netherlands ministers accompanied the expedition. From our files by the same opportunity, we learn that the second murderer of Major Balwin and Lieut. Bird was arrested in Yeddo, and confessed his crime. The name of the culprit was Mamlya Hajimei. He was executed on the 30th ultimo. On the 26th her Majesty's ship Perseus arrived from Shanghai via Nagasaki. On the 20th a French gentleman about to go on board the Dupleix was assaulted by a number of Japanese officials, and severely bruised. Strange to say, no swords were drawn, and the injuries sustained were merely the effect of blows of the fist. The matter is under investigation, but no sufficient cause has been assigned to justify the assault."

CEYLON.

We take the following from the summary of the Colombo Observer of November 30:—"The weather during a considerable portion of the fortnight has been unfavourable for the export of coffee, the sea having been very rough. The result is seen in a small export of our staple.

"The Municipalities Bill is now law. The municipal limits of the towns of Colombo and Kandy are thereby defined, with the divisions into districts: nine for Colombo and three for Kandy. The Bill contemplates nine elected councillors for Colombo, and three for Kandy.

"The Police Bill is also law, and the largely-augmented supplementary Supply Bill for 1865 has been passed. The Supply Bill for 1866 is under the consideration of a sub-committee, and it is rumoured that very serious differences of opinion have arisen between the Governor and the Colonial Secretary as to the amount to be apportioned to contingent services and works. The Governor wishes to have no surplus; but whether nature abhors a vacuum or not, it is certain that Mr. Gibson does, and that he looks on the Governor, the Auditor-general, and the editor of the Observer, as equally fast in matters of revenue and expenditure. Our ordinary sources of revenue are generally productive, but we regret to learn that there is no hope of any addition for years to come from the pearl fishery. The result of the recent inspection is given in words short, emphatic, decisive:—"No oysters of any kind were found." We hope Mr. Holdsworth will be able to throw some light on this mysterious disappearance of so many millions of precious 'natives.' There is consolation, however, to compensate for this drying up of a profitable though precarious source of revenue. We hear on good authority, what we scarcely hoped, that the Military Commissioners have sent in a unanimous Report, agreeing on £150,000 per annum as the maximum sum which the colony should be called on to pay for internal protection, for which 1,000 European troops and 100 natives are deemed amply sufficient. Of course it remains open to the Home Government to supplement this force by placing here, and retaining at their own expense, a body of troops ready for the general service of the empire, and this we think they will do. If we have been rightly informed on this matter, the colony may be congratulated on the satisfactory settlement of a question which, while it remained open, was ever liable to fester into a sore.

"The Ceylon League is about to publish a telling statement of the case of the Colony versus Cardwell; and Captain Byrd has made an original political move by canvassing for fair and unbiassed opinions, while sending his own opinion cut and dried to be signed; such opinion being that the Governor consulted his dignity in appointing unofficial members of Council, who, of course, possess the confidence of the community."

Head Qrs., Umballa, Oct. 20.—The C. in C. is pleased to direct the publication, for general information, of the following despatch from the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India, received with military department No. 85, dated Oct. 6, 1865 :—

I have considered in Council your letter dated June 30, 1865, No. 260, requesting a decision on the following point, whether a line officer joining the staff corps has the option of electing either the old or new furlough regulations in regard to his service prior to admission to the staff corps.

You are inclined to agree with the Government of Madras that an officer of H.M.'s British service entering the staff corps must be considered as on the same footing as an officer of the Indian service, who, prior to joining the staff corps, has elected the new furlough regulations.

This view of the question is correct, and is in accordance with the rules laid down in para. 95 of your G.O. No. 332 of April 10, 1861, and fully explained in your reply to question 92 (unpublished), which reply was approved by me in a despatch No. 475, dated Dec. 16, 1861.

MISCELLANEOUS.

EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.—The report of the directors states that when the last meeting of the company was held the line had been opened throughout, with the exception of the great bridge over the Jumna, at Allahabad, from Calcutta to the left bank of that river opposite Delhi. After an exercise of the highest engineering skill during nearly eight years the Allahabad-Jumna bridge was completed and opened for traffic on the 15th of August last. The board most thoroughly concurred in the encomiums passed by the Government authorities upon the company's officers, namely, Mr. Sibley, engineer-in-chief; Messrs. Collet and Dunn, the district and assistant engineers; and the subordinate staff employed on the Jumna Bridge. This work, from its inception to its final completion, reflected the greatest credit upon all parties concerned. Mr. Sibley anticipated that the line from the left bank of the Jumna into the city of Delhi might be opened after the rains of 1866. The works on the Jubbulpore line were progressing. At the last meeting the board reported that the Government of India had proposed that a considerable portion of the main line should be doubled, and that after due consideration they had come to the conclusion that the object of doubling a certain portion of the line, at all events, would be better effected by the construction of the chord line from Barrackpur to Luckiesera. The correspondence which had taken place on the subject had been explained to the shareholders. The board had required that the capital for the chord line should be kept distinct from that of the main line during construction, and the Secretary of State for India had insisted that the line and the capital should be considered "part and parcel" of the main line. The board, supported by the opinion of the meeting, lost no time in again urging their views upon the Secretary of State, but without effect. After much anxious deliberation they came to the unanimous conclusion—looking to the exigencies of the traffic, and the importance of an early economical supply of fuel—that it was for the interests of the shareholders that they should adopt the latter alternative. Since the last meeting the board had been invited by the Secretary of State to furnish him with their views upon the question of bridging the Hooghly, establishing a metropolitan terminus in Calcutta, and forming junctions with the Eastern Bengal and the Calcutta and South-Eastern Railways, and, after fully considering the subject in consultation with Mr. Rendel, had recorded, and had communicated to the Secretary of State, the following minute:—"That this board are prepared to recommend to the shareholders to undertake upon the terms of the existing contracts as to land, &c., and a guarantee of 5 percent. from the Secretary of State, the construction of the proposed bridge over the River Hooghly, and central terminus station in Calcutta, according to the plans referred to in Mr. Rendel's report, or such other plans as may be agreed upon; but, considering the magnitude and special character of these works, the fact that they will be undertaken upon metropolitan and imperial considerations as well as for the purposes of the company, and that it is not possible to define either the time which will be required for the completion of the works or the return which the expenditure may be expected to yield, the board are of opinion that the company is entitled to expect that the account of the expenditure so incurred be kept separate and distinct from the general capital account for a term of ten years, calculated from the completion of the works, unless in the meanwhile the works shall have yielded a net profit of more than 5 percent. on the cost of their construction, computed upon a basis to be agreed upon hereafter or determined by arbitration." The board did not consider that the condition which the Secretary of State insisted upon, and under which the chord line had been undertaken, was at all applicable to this work; and in the hope that the reasonable terms they had proposed would be agreed to they suggested that the shareholders should give their authority to conclude a contract upon the basis set out. The cost was estimated at from £1,250,000 to £1,500,000. The gross traffic receipts for the half-year ended the 30th of June last had been £821,676, against £652,147 in the corresponding half-year, showing an increase of £169,529, and the net receipts £474,083, as compared with £327,877 in the corresponding half-year, showing an increase of £146,206.

THE GRAND CHANDELIER AT THE AGRICULTURAL-HALL.—For a country like India, where large houses require a great deal of light, any development of the art of illumination has especial interest. For this reason we desire to draw attention to the Grand Chandelier of Messrs. Defries and Sons, of Whitechapel, which forms one of the chief ornaments of the Agricultural-hall, Islington, now devoted to the performance of the new entertainment called "The Field of the Cloth of Gold." The Chandelier is the largest ever made, and may be considered a new feature in the combination of light and decoration. It may truly be said of it, in the proverbial language of critics, that it should be in every rajah's palace.

EXPORT OF BULLION.—The Peninsular and Oriental steamer Syria takes out £281,000 to Alexandria and Bombay. Of this £3,000 is gold for Alexandria, and £65,000 gold and £213,000 silver for Bombay.

ARRIVAL OF TROOPS IN INDIA.—A telegram has been received from India announcing that the Hydaspes arrived on the 10th of December, and that all were well on board. She took out the A, B, and C batteries, A brigade, Royal Horse Artillery.

A WATERSPOUT.—The Acting Collector of the Kistna district has reported to Government the occurrence of a waterspout at the village of Lellagaruvu, in the Bandar taluq, on the 14th October last. It would appear that on that date, at 10 o'clock A.M., a man near the Nishahamnaruvu Canal saw a cloud resembling an elephant's trunk, coming towards Lellagaruvu from the north-east. It descended into the water in the channel, and, with a great noise, appeared to be drawing up the water like a squirt. The noise is described as being like the firing of a cannon. The cloud proceeded some way along the surface, and passed the embankment, and over the villages of Mukollu and Kalapatum, moving along like a whirlwind. The man who saw the spout was exceedingly alarmed at its appearance, but no danger was occasioned by it to the inhabitants, their cattle or crops. This report, we understand, has been communicated to the Government Astronomer, and to the Madras Literary Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society, with the request that they will kindly favour the public with their views on it.

STAFF CORPS.—The Secretary of State has directed that an officer of her Majesty's British service entering the staff corps must be considered as on the same footing as an officer of the Indian service who, prior to joining the staff corps, has elected the new furlough regulations.

THE NEW LAW OF ADULTERY.—Sir C. H. Scotland, the Chief Justice of Madras, is evidently no friend to the peculiar Adultery law of India. A case was tried at the last sessions, in which Veerasawmy was charged with enticing away another man's wife and committing adultery with her. The only witness was the woman, and her evidence was so contradictory that the jury freed the prisoner. The Judge pointed out the demoralising influence of placing a woman in such a position as a witness against her alleged paramour.

HISTORY OF INDIA. 1844—1862.

This day is published, Vol. I., price 16s.
the Second and concluding Volume being nearly finished),

THE HISTORY OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE IN INDIA,

FROM

TO THE

FORMING A SEQUEL TO

BY

LIONEL JAMES TROTTER,

late of the 2nd Bengal Fusiliers.

THE PUBLISHERS' NOTICE.

Indian History since the recall of Lord Ellenborough has been so fruitful of great events and striking episodes, that we cannot but think the time has fully come for continuing Mr. Thornton's unfinished work. The two campaigns on the Sutlej, followed by the conquest of the Punjab, the second Burmese War, crowned by the annexation of Pegu, the splendid reign of Lord Dalhousie, illustrated by the establishment of railways, the swift growth of the electric telegraph, the gradual settlement of the Punjab, all these things, followed as they were by the annexation of Oude, and the mighty explosion of 1857, which annihilated the old Sepoy army of Bengal, nearly shattered to pieces the power founded by Clive and Hastings, and brought about the political death of the great East India Company, seem to furnish abundant matter for at least two interesting volumes, written with due conciseness and a careful regard to truth.

The history of a time so fraught with stirring incidents and momentous issues can hardly fail, with fair handling, to interest Englishmen of very diverse tastes. We have therefore arranged with a gentleman of some literary culture, Captain L. J. Trotter, late of the 2nd Bengal Fusiliers, for the production of two volumes, which shall bring the history of British India down to its natural halting-place, the death of Lord Canning.

As only a limited edition is being printed, we shall be obliged by an early intimation from such of our friends as wish to complete their copies of "Thornton's History."

EXPANDING SADDLE.

GIBSON AND COMPANY

Respectfully invite the attention of MILITARY MEN, EQUESTRIANS, and OWNERS OF HORSES, to their Newly-Invented EXPANDING SADDLE, which admits of ready adjustment to the size of any horse, creating a secure and easy seat without the slightest inconvenience to either horse or rider. The principle of EXPANSION and CONTRACTION comprises a simple arrangement of mechanism within the saddle so perfect, that by merely turning a screw the pad is proportioned to the size and form of the animal, on which it firmly rests with a uniform pressure, and is securely retained in its position by means of an ordinary girth.

This invention has obtained the approval and distinguished patronage of HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF, and from the very favourable opinions expressed by competent judges, and all who have had an opportunity of testing its merits, there is no doubt it will come into general use; indeed, its success is already established.

Quintessence of Jamaica Ginger and Camomile.

GINGER has long been deservedly known as an excellent domestic medicine, and, combined with camomile, it is the most efficient stomachic tonic known, for while the ginger relieves the stomach from distension and flatulency, arising from impaired digestion, the camomile strengthens the coats of the stomach, and by that means gives it a healthy and invigorating tone. So highly concentrated is this preparation, it is unimpaired by age or climate, and well adapted for exportation. In Gout, Spasms, Dysentery, Cholera, or those complaints incidental to tropical climates, it is invaluable, as in numerous cases a dose or two has checked and frequently cured most alarming attacks. No family should be without it. Sold in half-pints, quarter-pints, and one-eighth pints.

Agreeable Sedlitz Powder, in one bottle, protected by a case, with measure and spoon included. The advantage of this preparation is the perfect combination of the solid ingredients of the Sedlitz Spring in one compound powder.

It is very cooling and refreshing, well adapted for exportation, or travellers by land or sea.

Aromatic Tincture of Quinine.—For the prevention of Fever, Intermittent or Remittent Ague, and other effects of Malaria.

No person exposed to the influence or predisposing cause of Fevers should be without it, for if taken in small doses daily the system will become so thoroughly impregnated with its principles as to be rendered proof against all attacks of Contagion or Malaria.—Sold in pints, half-pints, and quarter-pints.

The above articles prepared only by THOS. WILKINSON (late Wilkinson, Bridge, & Co.), 270, Regent-street, London, W.

MRS. JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTHING SYRUP, FOR CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH.

This infallible remedy has preserved hundreds of children when thought past recovery from convulsions arising from painful dentition. As soon as the Syrup is rubbed on the gums the child will be relieved, the gums cooled, and the inflammation reduced. It is as innocent as efficacious, tending to produce the teeth with ease, and so pleasant, that no child will refuse to let its gums be rubbed with it. When infants are at the age of four months, the Syrup should be rubbed on the gums, and parents should never be without the Syrup in the nursery where there are young children; for, if a child wakes in the night with pains in the gums, the Syrup immediately gives ease, thereby preventing convulsions, fevers, &c. The great success of this medicine during the last twenty-five years has induced unprincipled persons to imitate it, under the name of American Soothing Syrup, and copying parts of Mrs. Johnson's Bills, &c. Parents will, therefore, be very particular to ask for JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTHING SYRUP, and to notice that the names of BARCLAY and SONS, 95, Farringdon-street, London (to whom Mrs. Johnson has sold the recipe), are on the stamp affixed to each bottle.

Sold by all chemists and medicine vendors.

Earl Russell sent to the College of Physicians a communication received by him from Manilla (where Cholera had been raging fearfully), to the effect, that, of all remedies tried, Chlorodyne was the most effective.—See Brit. Med. J., Dec. 31, 1864.

CHLORODYNE (TOWLE'S). Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Cramp, Ague, Consumption, Asthma, Cough, Colds, Bronchitis, Sea Sickness, &c., immediately relieved by a dose of TOWLE'S CHLORODYNE, which is admitted to be a most wonderful and valuable medicine, and preferred by the profession for its known composition and moderate price.

IMPORTANT TO SHIPPERS AND EMIGRANTS.

Liverpool, Feb. 22nd, 1861. Ship Grindur.
Mr. TOWLE.—Sir,—Having recently arrived from Bombay, and during our stay there myself and crew being violently attacked with dysentery, so general in India, Captain Clements, of the ship Marseilles, lying near us, seeing the condition we were in, kindly sent a bottle of your Chlorodyne, from which myself and crew found immediate relief, and during the voyage home proved a most effective and valuable medicine. Having been instrumental in saving my own life and that of others, we feel it a duty and pleasure to send this statement of facts, to make what use of you think proper, believing that no vessel ought to leave port without a good supply in her medicine chest.

(Signed) GEORGE ALLEN, Chief Officer.
J. C. CONGDON, Master.

Retail by Chemists, 1s. 1d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. per bottle. Supplied Wholesale and for Export by the Manufacturer A. P. TOWLE, Chemist, 99, Stockport-road, Manchester.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS.

Perfected and Exhibited in the Great Exhibition of 1851, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided: a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 225, Piccadilly London.

Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d.; postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 8d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 10d.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS,

&c.—The material of which these are made is recommended by the Faculty as being peculiarly elastic and compressible, and the best invention for giving efficient and permanent support in all cases of weakness and swelling of the Legs, Varicose Veins, Spasms, &c. It is porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and is drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price, 4s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s. to 16s. each; postage, 6d.

CHILDREN'S WORM TABLETS

Prepared and sold in Tins, 1s. 1d. and 2s. 9d. each, by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, &c., 79, St. Paul's Church-yard, London, E.C. and Retail by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Vendors in the World.

Observe the words "KEATING'S WORM TABLETS" are engraved on the Government stamp of each Tin, without which none are genuine.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT.

—BILIOUSNESS—DYSPEPSIA.—There is no organ in the human body so liable to derangement as the liver. Food, fatigue, climate, and anxiety disorder its action, and render its secretion—the bile—more or less deranged, superabundant, or scanty. The first symptoms should receive attention. A pain in the side or the top of the shoulder, a harsh cough, and difficulty of breathing, are signs of liver disease, which are quickly removed by friction with Holloway's inestimable Ointment. The Pills should also be taken early. For all diseases of this vital organ the action of these conjoined remedies is a specific, checking the over supply of bile, regulating its action, and giving nervous tone.

ANILINE DYES.—"I shall commence my observations on dyeing, by referring especially to the remarkable and beautiful colours derived from coal tar, the introduction of which into this art may be said to constitute the chief distinction, as far as dyeing is concerned, between the present and the former Exhibition, creating, in fact, a new era in the tinctorial art. Coal tar colours deserve attention for their power, as well as for the facility with which they may be applied, for one grain will deeply tint half a gallon of water, and little or no skill is required for their application."—Vide Report by Grace Calvert, Esq., F.R.S., Ph.D., Honorary Professor of Chemistry.

ANILINE DYES.—"I shall commence my observations on dyeing, by referring especially to the remarkable and beautiful colours derived from coal tar, the introduction of which into this art may be said to constitute the chief distinction, as far as dyeing is concerned, between the present and the former Exhibition, creating, in fact, a new era in the tinctorial art. Coal tar colours deserve attention for their power, as well as for the facility with which they may be applied, for one grain will deeply tint half a gallon of water, and little or no skill is required for their application."—Vide Report by Grace Calvert, Esq., F.R.S., Ph.D., Honorary Professor of Chemistry.The above may be procured through any London Merchant,
